ALLIES VETO A BALKAN WAR

GROG CHEATERS ALARMED OVER JUMP IN CRIME

Stickup Wave Hurts Their Business.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The gent with the soft voice and the hard eye padded forward wiping his hands on his apron. Down one side of the room was a stretch of mahogany, new polished. The light, filtering through stained windows, shone dimly on old time Milwaukee chromos on the wall, beautiful maidens in what passed for short skirts back in sinful days, lifting mugs of bock. It looked like a 2.75 per cent place, at least, but—

"What'll it be, gents?" asked the barkeep in the time honored formula. "We've got nothing but near beer," he added, hastily. "Real stuff?" Nothing stirring, nothing stirring." He seemed to be quite suspicious of the strange visitors, but at length succumbed to questions and unbosomed himself.

"Something Wrong With Police."

"There's too much crime," he said. "Holdups are getting fierce, and the guy who is working the beer racket is among the victims. And the trouble is he can't make a squawk because he's outside the law. There's something wrong with the police.

"I don't sell needle beer. No money in it. A couple of glasses and a customer gets drowsy. He lays his head on the table and goes to sleep and stops buying. Then a couple of coppers come in, [illegible], and drink up the little profits I have made. If I buy real beer I pay $55 a barrel. And the minute I begin peddling it the police start using my joint as a hangout and their thirsts are expensive. Then some night, some hophead maybe pulls a rod and hoists the joint, and my profits are gone.

"So you'll find lots of respectable places like mine have laid off everything but the soft and near stuff. But lots of the needle beer and Wisconsin 4 per cent is being sold. Sure thing guys from other districts have come in and got the protection and are cleaning up. Moon and hootch is being peddled in dozens of joints around here with a bar in the back room. Less good beer is being sold now than a couple of years ago, but moon and paint shop hootch is being ladled out.

Carries a Small Line.

"Of course, I do carry a small line of real stuff for old customers and right guys, but I'm not advertising it."

He was a typical grog cheater of the better type and his remarks echoed the utterances of many other leggers and dispensers met in a two days' pilgrimage through the shady regions.

No exposé, mind you, no write up of hellholes and gilded palaces of sin on the hip, no typographical crusade, but simply a trip through the jungle to get a slant at police and crime problems as viewed by the other side.

Worried by Crime Increase.

One discovery that sticks out is that the seamy side itself is disturbed by the jump in the stickup and robbery rate.

Another protruberant item is that betting on the races is as extensive as at any time in the last five or six years. Bookmaking is wide open in this town. There are plenty of gambling houses.

To pass the portal one has to be known. There is extra vigilance at the gate. The bookmakers say it is due to a fear of stickups more than anything else. At one club visited a sign was shown on the inner door: "Clients will submit to search." All callers were frisked in the hallway and hardware was checked with the sentinel.

"We've got to protect ourselves," said one game proprietor, "what's wrong, you ask? Well, here's one thing. Since the drive against booze and games began, many policemen have been putting in a lot of time around the liquor joints. They hang around instead of getting out on beat. When a stickup guy looks in the [illegible] window and sees two or three coppers loafing around, he knows the coast is clear, doesn't he? So he jumps in and pulls a job. Some of the [illegible] keep three or four guys all [illegible] up to be ready if a stickup [illegible]. We don't want high crime—[illegible] falls off if a hop hoists a [illegible]."

Hundred Men in Large Hall.

The views expressed in Chicago's [illegible] halls went double in Cicero, [illegible] outside the city limits. Here the [illegible] fraternity says it has to send [illegible] home with winning customers [illegible] to protect them from bandits [illegible] the line in Chicago. ORANGE LIGHT MEANS STOP AND WAIT FOR GREEN, POLICE WARN

When orange traffic lights flash on Chicago streets and boulevards the signal means "stop!"

Chicago police authorities, including park police, agreed yesterday on the strict joint enforcement of this uniform rule following several weeks of study led by the street traffic committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Following is the official interpretation of the automatic traffic signal lights, signed by Morgan A. Collins, superintendent of city police; F. E. Richards, captain of South Park police; William Stocker, captain of West Park police, and Charles E. Shaw, captain of Lincoln park police:

"Green lights mean go. Vehicles must never start to cross street intersections until they get the green signal. This means that they are not to start while the orange light is on.

"Red lights mean stop. Vehicles must be at a full stop at intersections when the red light governing that intersection flashes.

"Orange lights mean that vehicles in motion must slow down and come to a full stop as soon as possible in safety to the vehicles behind. Vehicles which are stopped are not to resume motion until the orange light is off and the green light on. Speeding up to cross the intersection before the red light flashes is contrary to the intent and plan of regulation, and is extremely dangerous."

As a fact, cars have been speeding so fast as often to be unable to stop when the red sign is flashed. For example, four cars sped on north last night after the red light was actually on at Huron and North Michigan at 7:50 o'clock and the crossing policeman made no move to halt them.

HELD AS ROBBERS; INNOCENT; SAVED

Two Men Freed When Real Bandits Confess.

Two young Ohioans, strangers in Chicago, sat in Chief Justice Hopkins court yesterday. They were charged with robbery. If convicted they faced serving from ten years to life behind prison bars for a crime of which they stoutly maintained their innocence.

Judge Hopkins entered. The two young men, Ralph Matthison and Blake Waldron, trembled in indignation at the injustice of their situation.

Judge Frees Them.

Judge Hopkins wasted no time. He brought smiles to the faces of the accused pair for the first time in weeks. He told them that the court now knew that they were telling the truth when they said they were innocent of robbery. Three men, he said, had confessed that they were the real perpetrators of the crime.

Then four complaining witnesses stepped up and apologized for having placed the liberty of the two Ohio business men in jeopardy.

Matthison and Waldron came here recently from Elyria, O., where they had operated a bus line, with the intention of repeating their business venture in Chicago. They went to a north side movie show and then stepped into their automobile and drove away.

An excited passerby who had just seen robbers rush out of the O'Connor & Goldberg store at 4616 Sheridan road after robbing the store and customers of $184, took the number of the Ohio men's car and gave it to the police. Next day Matthison and Waldron were arrested.

Four Identify Them.

John O'Connor Meder, store manager; John B. Mallers, a customer, and Rose Dorf and Bertha Hartman, employes, all identified the two as the robbers who had lined them up at the point of a gun. They were locked up and the grand jury indicted them.

Then the police picked up Harold Delaney, William Swift and Theodore Carrel. They confessed that they had robbed the shoe store among others.

"It is unfortunate and you men have the sympathy of the court," Chief Justice Hopkins said yesterday. Matthison and Waldron indicated through their attorneys that they would sue for damages on the basis of the false arrest.

WILD WHITE MEN OF HIMALAYAS ARE AGAIN SEEN

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, May 2.—A cable from Calcutta tonight states that the Italian explorer and mountaineer, Antonio Tombazi, has rediscovered the race of mysterious wild white men who live at an altitude of 15,000 feet in the Himalayas. The wild men were reported by European explorers when they first attempted to scale Mount Everest.

Sig. Tombazi declares he saw with powerful field glasses in the neighborhood of Kabur pass the figure of a white man walking erect and absolutely naked along the mountain side.

A few hours later the Italian party reached the spot where they found several footprints of various individuals of the mysterious tribe. The prints showed the feet were small, about the size of a normal white man's.

STEAL MILLIONS IN MOSCOW; HALT RED PROPAGANDA

[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, May 2.—Safe crackers took all the gold, foreign currency, jewels, and platinum kept in the safe of the third internationale by the foreign propaganda committee, it was learned here tonight from Moscow. It is known the amount stolen was worth many millions of dollars, but the committee will give no information. The safe crackers used acetylene torches, making a hole through the door large enough for a man to enter. The safe was guarded by Red soldiers, an entire detachment of whom disappeared. The loss is so serious that for the present foreign propaganda activities must be curtailed and probably abandoned.

FRENCH UNITE WITH SPAIN TO SUBDUE MOORS

Italy Asks Share in War and Spoils.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, May 1.—A combined Franco-Spanish operation to smash Abdel Krim's revolution in Morocco is rapidly developing, and a dual offensive is expected to be launched in a fortnight.

The French government is understood to have authorized Marshal Lyautey's plan which would compel Abdel Krim to split his forces and send heavy contingents to the southern border against the French instead of being able to concentrate all his available troops against the Spanish.

Political trouble over the Franco-Spanish campaign has already started, with Italy objecting strenuously to such action unless she is allowed to participate and get a share of the spoils. Both the Paris and Madrid governments declare, however, that no outsiders can interfere, insisting that French troops will not cross the border into the Spanish protectorate.

Mussolini Note Emphatic.

Despite these declarations, Premier Mussolini, who is reported to be backed by London, has sent a strong memorandum to Quai d'Orsay reiterating the Italian policy, pointing out Italy's aspirations and stressing the allies' refusal to invite the Rome government to take part in the settlement of the Tangier regime.

The preliminary operations in the French zone started with three strong mobile columns being sent from Fez toward the Spanish border in a zone heretofore a no man's land, because while it belongs to France it has never been occupied by the French military.

These columns are operating from west to east along the Ouegha river over a ninety kilometer front against the Riffian bands under the leadership of Abdel Krim's brother, who entered from the Spanish zone.

Several skirmishes already have occurred in the French attempt to herd the Riffians southward to prevent their escape back into the mountains of the Spanish area.

Will Try to Land.

In the meantime Primo de Rivera, president of the Spanish directorate, is proceeding with arrangements to effect a landing opposite to Alhucemas, where Abdel Krim's headquarters are. The Spanish are reported to have purchased several ships in England which were used in the Dardanelles and Zeebruge operations. These boats have huge doorways cut into their hulls, like drawbridges, which are let down to permit troops to pass out and land on beaches. The Spanish fleet will protect and aid the landing party with a heavy gas bombardment of the Riff positions.

The capture of Abdel Krim's headquarters at Ajdir seriously crippled the Riff leader.

Attack French Posts.

FEZ, Morocco, May 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Moroccan tribesmen operating under the orders of Abdel Krim, the rebel leader, are attacking the French zone over a front of sixty miles. At some points they have surrounded French posts, where small detachments are defending themselves in blockhouses.

The French military authorities here are of the opinion that the rebel leader has a vast project in mind, with Fez as the principal objective. The direction of the attacks thus far made by the tribes in their offensive indicates a plan for converging movement upon this city.

GIRL BANDIT GETS NERVOUS; SHOOTS TAXI CHAUFFEUR

A good looking young woman bandit, accompanied by a man companion, shot a taxicab chauffeur in a holdup last night when she became frightened because of the approach of a motorist. She and her companion fled without taking anything from the chauffeur, who was only slightly wounded.

Stanley Novak, 25, 1308 Crittenden street, Yellow cab chauffeur, said the woman, whom he described as 25 years old and pretty, hired his cab at Western and Milwaukee avenues. She directed him to drive to Winnebago and Western avenues. There she stepped out of the car. She was joined by a man, who produced a revolver and told Novak to throw up his hands.

The revolver was given to the girl while her companion went through Novak's pockets. The girl, nervous and apparently frightened because another automobile was approaching, pulled the trigger, the bullet entering Novak's right leg. The two then fled.

Two Balloons Still Sail On in Big Race

BULLETIN.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 2.—The status tonight of the balloons entered in the national elimination race that started here yesterday was:

Detroit, piloted by Herbert V. Thaden, down near Selma, Kan., distance 125 miles.

Army S-14, piloted by Lieut. William J. Flood, down near Batesville, Ark., about 350 miles distant.

Pilot balloon, Major Maurice Smith, down near Crenshaw, Miss., distant 500 miles.

St. Joseph, piloted by Capt. H. I. Honeywell, and that piloted by T. Van Orman, probably the two balloons reported early this afternoon near Cotton Plant, Ark., about 400 miles distant.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 2.—[Special.]—With two of the balloons in the national elimination race, which started from here yesterday, believed to be soaring over Mississippi, officials of the National Aeronautical association here awaited definite news of their whereabouts.

Two of the racing balloons and the pilot bag had come to earth during the day and night, one in Kansas, one in Arkansas, and the pilot car in Mississippi.

May Disqualify Two.

Aeronautic association officers also were pondering the proposition of upholding the disqualification of Capt. Honeywell and H. V. Thaden, pilots of the St. Joseph and Detroit, made today by Referee A. B. Lambert, for their delay in starting from Rosencrans field.

Capt. Honeywell's balloon was still believed to be in the air late tonight. So also was the Goodyear III., piloted by W. T. Van Orman, winner of last year's race. The last definite news from them was from Cotton Plant, Ark., about 40 miles from the Mississippi river, flying in a southeasterly direction. This was early in the afternoon.

SEAPLANE SETS RECORD.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 2.—Making a new world's record for nonstop flights for seaplanes, the all metal hull PN-9, built to fly from California to Honolulu, dipped into the Delaware river today after being in the air 28 hours and 36 minutes. She came down only because she ran out of gasoline.

The plane had broken the old world's record for seaplane endurance flight at 1:22 a. m. today. That mark, fourteen hours, fifty-three minutes and forty-four seconds, was established on July 11 and 12, 1924, by Lieuts. F. W. Wead and J. B. Pierce at Washington.

QUIZ POLA NEGRI ON GEMS, HOOTCH

Has 96-Carat Emerald, 16 Bottles of Liquor.

New York, May 2.—Pola Negri, motion picture actress, who arrived here last night on the Berengaria, was detained shortly after disembarking by customs officials on a charge of failing to declare three pieces of jewelry valued at 300,000 francs, it was learned today. Miss Negri was also charged with attempting to smuggle 16 bottles of liquor into the country.

After a brief questioning, Miss Negri was allowed to go to her suite in the hotel Ambassador. She assured the officials that she would appear at the customs house Monday and pay whatever fine is assessed. Customs authorities are appraising the jewels.

Interested in Her Gems.

She also will be asked to appear before officials of the legal department in the customs house to explain why the jewels were not declared.

Miss Negri said tonight that on several former trips to and from Europe she had never been questioned about her jewelry by the officials because she was an alien. However, her last return from Europe, before Friday, was two and one half years ago, and since then she has taken out first naturalization papers.

A 96-Carat Emerald.

The jewelry consisted of a large diamond bracelet, a 12-carat emerald ring and an unset emerald of 96 carats, she said. She explained that she had exchanged several old pieces of jewelry for the three pieces seized last night. The unset emerald, she asserted, was once the property of a king of Prussia.

When the Berengaria docked, the customs authorities seized sixteen bottles of alleged illegal liquor in Miss Negri's trunks and broke them against the dock railing. She was fined $5 for each bottle.

DEMAND SERBS AID BULGARS IN FIGHT ON REDS

U. S. Envoy Joins in Note to Jugo-Slavs.

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SOFIA, May 2.—The stern warning which Premier Mussolini sent to Jugo-Slavia to keep peace with Bulgaria has been followed by energetic allied demands in this direction, and a new world war has been averted, at least for a short period.

The American, British, French, and Italian ministers to Belgrade made a collective call at the Jugo-Slav foreign office and insisted that Bulgaria and Jugo-Slavia bury the hatchet and establish a united front against the bolshevik offensive in the Balkans.

The ministers of the same powers in Sofia made a similiar demand on the Bulgarian government, the American minister acting unofficially in both cases.

Bulgaria Withdraws Charges.

As a result of the energetic demand the Bulgarian government has informed the Jugo-Slav government that it never had "suspected that the Jugo-Slav government or any of its official branches prepared or perpetrated the recent terrorist acts in Bulgaria," although the Bulgarian government firmly insists that Jugo-Slavia has been sheltering about 1,200 Bulgarian communists and extreme agrarians through whom Moscow has carried out all the recent terrorist acts in Bulgaria.

The Jugo-Slav government officially announces that all Bulgarian communist and agrarian exiles who have been living along the Bulgarian frontier will be sent to the interior of the country.

These courtesies will temporarily calm the bitter feud between Bulgaria and Jugo-Slavia over Macedonia, which dates back to the Balkan war, but so long as the Greeks continue virtually to deport Bulgarian Macedonians from Greek Macedonia and the Serbs continue trying to make Serbs of the 1,000,000 Bulgarian Macedonians in Serbian Macedonia, the Balkans will continue in an uproar and Bulgaria will be a fertile field for the bolsheviks.

Lured by Bolsheviks.

"Your only hope is to become bolshevik and join bolshevik Russia," hundreds of bolshevik agents in Bulgaria, who spring up everywhere, tell the people. "The allies promised you an outlet in the Ægean in the treaty of peace and now refuse to give it. The allies limit your mercenary army to 20,000, and you will forever be the slaves of the Serbs, Greeks, and Roumanians, and the army posts will cost so much to maintain that all other government servants will always be poorly paid.

"You are the only former enemy country to pay war reparations, but you are treated infinitely worse than Germany, Austria, Hungary, or Turkey. If you come with us you will have Macedonia, you can disavow reparations, and you will be free."

Bulgars' Morale Grows Worse.

The morale of Bulgaria seems to be growing worse every month, and it is only a question of several months until there is another bolshevik plot, which may be successful.

The government employés are dissatisfied because they are paid starvation wages, which is the result of the expense of the mercenary army. About 500,000 Macedonians in Bulgaria, who always are aggressive, complain of the way their relatives are treated in Greece, and Serbian Macedonia, and the arrival of these Macedonian refugees, almost naked, from Greece every day serves to add fuel.

The Greek government signed a protocol in Geneva last autumn under which it guaranteed better treatment of the Bulgarian Macedonians, but Jugo-Slavia did not like the protocol and terrified Greece by denouncing the alliance several weeks later.

The Greeks waited until they floated a $50,000,000 refugee loan in England and America in the spring and then also denounced the protocol, causing great excitement in Bulgaria.

Many Workers Ousted.

The merchants and manufacturers, crushed by high taxes, are discharging employés, which causes further unrest in the country.

The 10,000 additional troops the allies allowed Bulgaria during the crisis is only for May, and there will be another rumpus when Bulgaria asks permission to keep them several months more. The Serbs are bitterly opposed to Bulgaria keeping the extra troops after the end of May, although they are badly needed here.

About 1,200 Bulgarian communists and agrarians in Serbia have carried out more than twenty important raids in Bulgaria since January, and delivered large quantities of arms and propaganda under cover of the raids.

The constant Serbian and Greek menaces have weakened the Bulgarian people, and the Serbs and Greeks thereby are playing directly into the hands of the Bolsheviks.

The moment Bulgaria becomes Bolshevik, all the Balkans, including Greece, are doomed, and that moment may be not far off.

Sexton Confesses Bribe.

Before the Sofia court martial which is investigating the cathedral outrage in which 160 died, Peter Zagorsky, sexton of St. Nedelias, today confessed that he received 12,000 levas for his part in the plot.

"Peter Abdieff, who brought the explosives to the churchyard, paid me. He said the communist party had 4,000 armed men in Sofia and immediately after the explosion the communists would establish a government, which would be supported by armed communist bands coming from the country," Zagorsky testified.

He made a complete confession, telling how the explosives were hidden at Tichow, how the communists promised to make him a big personage in the new government, and how they promised to send him to Russia if the plot failed.

"They promised to get me a Jugo-Slav passport to leave Bulgaria after the explosion," M. Zagorsky declared.

He knew of the plot to kill the king some days in advance and knew Gen. Gheorgieff was being killed in order to bring the king, cabinet, and high officers to the church, he admitted.

WAR IS AVERTED

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SOFIA, April 27.—[By courier to Vienna to escape Bulgarian censorship]—I saw another world war being hatched in the Balkans last week and saw it averted by a hair's breadth.

The Bulgarian government threw indirect responsibility for the bomb explosion in St. Nedelias cathedral on Jugo-Slavia because the latter harbors the communists who are trying to overthrow the Bulgarian government, and Jugo-Slavia began to mobilize troops on the Bulgarian frontier the middle of last week.

Premier Mussolini thereupon sent a forceful ultimatum to the Jugo-Slavs Friday, saying that if the latter attacked Bulgaria he would attack Jugo-Slavia.

The Hungarian government would have joined the attack against Jugo-Slavia, because the latter took 1,000,000 Hungarians in the peace settlement. It is likely that Moscow would have launched a Red army across Europe, overthrown the whole scheme of things, and established a dozen new soviet republics.

Old Hatred Stirred Up.

The Mussolini ultimatum temporarily calmed the quarrel between Bulgaria and Jugo-Slavia, but the old hatreds of the Balkan and world wars have been lighted again.

The history of the crisis, which has been largely held up by the censorship, follows in sequence:

I saw Gen. Rousseff, minister of the interior, electrify parliament April 21 when he announced that M. Zagorsky, sexton of the Sveti Kral cathedral, confessed that the arch plotter, Ivan Minkoff, promised to get him a Jugo-Slavian passport after the explosion at the church to permit him to escape to Jugo-Slavia.

The announcement was highly indiscreet, because Jugo-Slavia undoubtedly has been seeking an opportunity for several years to crush Bulgaria, first because Jugo-Slavia urgently needs coal, and wants to occupy the Pernik coal fields inside the Bulgarian frontier; second, because more than 500,000 Macedonians living in Bulgaria continue to carry on violent propaganda against Jugo-Slavia until the 1,000,000 Macedonians in Jugo-Slavia are granted an autonomy.

M. Rakitch, Jugo-Slav foreign minister, addressing M. Kaloff, Bulgarian foreign minister, in an aggressive protest, said Bulgaria was trying to throw the responsibility for the outrage on Jugo-Slavia.

[illegible] Serbs in Plot.

Links [illegible] tch at

M. Kaloff excused M. Rakitch the same moment that Gen. Rousseff, minister of the interior, was telling correspondents, including three Serbs, that it was perfectly true that M. Zagorsky had confessed that M. Minkoff had promised to get him a Jugo-Slav visa, that the explosives in the church bore instructions written in the Serb language, that the bombs and arms the communists used against the police came from Jugo-Slavia, that the communists here had received large sums of money from Jugo-Slavia, and that the band which attacked King Boris came from Jugo-Slavia.

M. Rakitech decided to send the first secretary of the legation to Belgrade Wednesday night to repeat the statements before the Jugo-Slav government.

Greece is under the Serb influence because the Serbs continually threaten to take Saloniki, and it also began to reinforce its troops on the Bulgarian frontier as the situation grew critical Thursday. On Friday, Premier Mussolini sent his ultimatum to Belgrade.

The Jugo-Slav government moved 15,000 fresh troops to the Bulgarian frontier and was moving several army corps to the frontier.

Charles Wilson, American minister in Sofia, played a leading rôle in dissipating the crisis here.

The quarrel is only temporarily dropped and it is a matter of a few months or years until there is trouble again. Bulgaria alone is too feeble to resist Jugo-Slavia, but Italy and Hungary would always help it, which would mean a world war.

Women Bolsheviks' Spies.

ATHENS, May 2.—[United Press.]—Numerous women, including Sultana Petrova, wife of former Premier Petrova of Bulgaria, are alleged to have been employed as spies by communists in the recent attempt to overthrow the Zankoff régime, according to advices from Sofia.

New York, May 2.—The New York World will say tomorrow that the Maude Adams company, Inc., headed by the former star of "Peter Pan" and many other stage successes, has been chartered and soon will begin producing motion pictures by means of new inventions.

The company was chartered in Delaware, with a capitalization of $3,500,000. The application was filed in October, 1924. It is understood that the basis of the new process by which the corporation hopes to improve the motion picture industry is based on a new light which has been perfected in the laboratories of the General Electric company.

FINISH INQUESTS IN McCLINTOCK CASE TOMORROW

State Seeks Additional Trial Material.

Corroboration—just a trifle more—is all the state expects tomorrow in concluding the inquests over William McClintock, Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, and Dr. Oscar Olson. With or without that corroboration, all will be in readiness for the battle of May 18, when William D. Shepherd is placed on trial for murder.

Miscellaneous matters that tend to confirm previous testimony, loose threads to be tied, small gaps to be bridged, and State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe anticipates saying to Judge Thomas J. Lynch:

"The state is ready to proceed on the William McClintock murder indictment."

Will Question Detective.

Employés of the Jones Detective agency are to be called to give their version of the part the agency is alleged to have had in seeking to intimidate some state witnesses and tamper with others. John Jones, principal of the agency, has successfully ejuded service of a subpoena, but State's Attorney Crowe said if this testimony is not brought out before the coroner's jury it may be heard by the grand jury.

There will be more grand jury proceedings, Assistant State's Attorney Joseph P. Savage declared yesterday. Every material witness is to be taken before the twenty-three men who will be impaneled tomorrow and the testimony made a matter of record.

Because of the amount of money involved, Prosecutor Savage said unusual precautions are to be taken. All parties agree that possession of the McClintock fortune of $1,000,000, and some estimates place the value as near $2,000,000, may be decided by the result of the oncoming trial.

No Interest in Will Case.

State's Attorney Crowe said his office has no interest in the disposition of the estate, his job being to prosecute Shepherd on the indictment charging the inoculation of McClintock with typhoid fever germs after Shepherd had induced the youth to draw a will naming him as sole legatee. He said he appreciated the fact the defense would be fighting for that $1,000,000 as well as for Shepherd's life.

"In this respect the Shepherd trial presents the same difficulty as did the Leopold-Loeb trial," Crowe said. "We are fighting $1,000,000. Where there is an enormous defense fund the state must always be much more on its guard."

He declared the evidence so far revealed is considered by himself and his aids as sufficient to justify a verdict of guilty.

Mexican Orators Attack U. S. in May Day Speeches

Mexico City, May 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Special dispatches describing May day celebrations throughout Mexico report the day virtually quiet, except at Mazatlan, Sinoloa, where orators speaking to a crowd in front of the United States consulate charged that hundreds of Mexicans and other foreign laborers had been unjustly imprisoned in the United States. They made other attacks upon "Mexico's natural enemy." The demonstration was without disorder.

NAME 3 WINNERS OF HEALTHIEST GIRL COMPETITION

The thirteens have it. Three girls, each 13 years old, finished first, second and third in the prize contest here last week at the Women's World's fair for the healthiest girl in the city. Ten women physicians and dentists, who judged the candidates, yesterday announced that Olive Pelage, 2728 Winnemac avenue, won first prize and the silver loving cup; Katherine O'Shennessy, 4942 West Adams street, was second and Hattie Harlan, 407 N. Ridgeway avenue, third.

The contest was undertaken to popularize health by offering a prize, instead of the usual beauty contest. "Beauty needs no contest to popularize it," one of the judges said. "Besides, there can be no real beauty without health."

The largest girl for her age was found in the person of Mollie Radway, 12 years old, who weighs 164 pounds.

DUNES MURDER MYSTERY DEEP AFTER 7 DAYS

Chicagoan, Held, Denies Body Is That of Wife.

One week ago today the burned body of a murdered girl was found beside the Chicago trail in Chesterton, Ind., and after seven days, in which hundreds of clews have been followed, Porter county and Gary city officers admitted they were little nearer a solution of the crime.

Ellsworth C. Miller, plastering contractor arrested here, is still held at Valparaiso and will be questioned again today. The reason for his detention is that his estranged and missing wife, Mrs. Mabel Wahl Miller of Chicago, was of similar build and appearance to the girl in the Chesterton morgue. Further, Miller is said to have written to Mrs. Hamilton Stace, Denver, Colo., and told her that his wife had "passed away." Miller said that was his way of saying she had left him.

Gave Detail of Death, Woman Says.

But Mrs. Stace told reporters in Denver yesterday that Miller had written plainly that his wife had died and even explained that death came after an operation in a Chicago hospital.

Confronted with this new information, the husband stuck to his original story and refused to admit that he had reported his wife dead.

Another bit of circumstantial evidence is that Miller said he had reported his wife's disappearance to the police. There is no record of such a report.

In Chesterton yesterday Miller was taken to see the body of the dead girl. "No, that isn't Mabel," he declared. "It may look a little like her, particularly the teeth. But it isn't she—I am positive about that."

Seek Miller's Cousin.

Search was begun for Elmer Hubler, former roommate with Miller at Cedar Rapids, Ia., and a cousin, in the belief that he might help in the search of the missing wife.

The last slim chance that the victim might have been Mrs. Josephine Desidero, familiar figure in the night life of Gary, was shattered last night when Dr. G. F. Laue, a dentist, said that in [illegible] he examined Mrs. Desidero's teeth and they were in no respect like those of the dead girl. Fred Desidero, a relative of Mrs. Desidero's husband, Louis, and Sam Ross, underworld character and close friend of Mrs. Desidero, were still being held. The police are still searching for the husband.

Elaborate funeral plans for the unidentified victim, including interment in the city park at Chesterton, were made yesterday by a local undertaker. He planned to bury the charred corpse in the city park. But Dr. A. O. Dobbins, coroner of Porter county, refused to permit burial so long as there is a chance of identification.

POLICE CAPTURE TWO SUSPECTS IN REVOLVER CHASE

After detectives firing at them from an auto had chased them several blocks into a blind alley on North La Salle street, two men, William Devine and William Shields, were captured yesterday morning.

The race began at Goethe and Wells streets. There the detectives, Sergts. Wheedon, Adair, Grady, and Sterb, saw the two men sitting in the car. They drove up to investigate and the suspects' auto sped away.

Devine is wanted for questioning in connection with the robbery of a Buck & Rayner drug store at State and Madison streets, March 29.

Paul Murray, alleged by the police to be a member of a gang of auto thieves which has made $25,000 in recent hauls, was arraigned before Judge Howard Hayes yesterday morning. His case was continued to May 13 by request of the police, who seek to round up his six companions. His arrest followed that of William Haase, owner of an automobile agency at 6528 Cottage Grove avenue, who was found to have stolen cars with forged motor numbers in his possession. Haase failed to appear in court, his bond of $3,000 was forfeited, and a capias was issued for his rearrest.

ORVILLE WRIGHT RENEWS CHARGE AGAINST MUSEUM

Dayton, O., May 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—A third chapter in the controversy which has arisen between Orville Wright, airplane inventor, and Dr. Charles D. Wolcott, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, over the former's assertion that officials of the institution had misused relics intrusted to their keeping, was written tonight when Wright made public a statement detailing his previous charges. These were first stated when he announced that the first Wright brothers' airplane of 1903 was to be sent to the Science museum at South Kensington, London, because he did not dare to intrust it to the only suitable national museum in America, in view of the fact that that institution had allowed the historic relics of the Langley machine of 1903 to go out of the institution into the hands of private parties to be mutilated for private purposes.

"Dr. Walcott has made a reply to my statement which does not clearly deny any of my assertions," he said today.

AUSTRIAN RALLY DEMANDS UNION WITH GERMANY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

VIENNA, May 2.—"Austria must join Germany despite Gen. von Hindenburg."

This was the slogan of a great demonstration for a union which was held in Vienna today. The Rhineland's 1,000 year celebration was seized upon as the occasion for a public pronouncement of Austria's desire to join Germany.

Thousands of flag bearers and a marching choir of 5,000 voices featured the demonstration, which stopped all traffic on the route for two hours.

Dr. Deutsch, president of the "Union for the Protection of the Republic," declared in his address that had Austria been a member of the German republic at the time of the presidential elections, Gen. von Hindenburg would have been defeated.

HAMMOND LABOR LEADER'S HOME TORN BY BOMB

Gary, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—The only May day disturbance in the Calumet industrial region of northern Indiana, occurred early today, when the home of Tim Harie, 418 May street, Hammond, was partially wrecked by a small bomb placed on the front porch. Five members of the Harle family were thrown from their beds, but not injured.

Harle is a prominent Hammond labor official and business agent of the Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' union. He told the police he suspected communists or reds, whose enmity he probably had incurred. No arrests have been made.

Several red meetings were held in Gary, Hammond, East Chicago, and Indiana Harbor last night, but strong police guards at each meeting prevented any disturbance.

CHINESE BAND RECAPTURES U. S. GIRL MISSIONARY

HANKOW, May 3.—[Sunday.]—[By Associated Press.]—Miss Elizabeth Berglund, American, and Miss Ingeborg Nystul, Swedish, of the Lutheran mission at Juchow, province of Honan, about 200 miles north of here, were captured again by bandits yesterday.

The two women were captured in a bandit raid on Juchow last November, but escaped and returned to their posts.

The American consul here has wired a strong protest to the Honan provincial officials, demanding immediate steps for the rescue of the missionaries. Where the bandits have taken the two has not yet been determined.

Miss Berglund and Miss Nystul represent the China missionary society of the Augustana Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church of North America.

Golf Strains and Then Breaks This Family Tie

Golf as a strain on the family tie made another appearance in Judge Joseph Sabath's divorce court yesterday when he granted a divorce to Mrs. Bertha Hax Auld of the Parkway hotel from Dr. John Maxwell Auld. The doctor was almost constantly on the golf links, Mrs. Auld testified, and when he did come home at times he was grouchy and cruel. She asked for no alimony.

A "Closed Season" on Spectacles

Prince August of Saxony, in 1572, wanted a pair of spectacles; so a servant rode off to Leipsic for them. But there were none to be had at Leipsic; or at Augsburg.

Two years later the servant rode off once more, to Venice, which was famous for its spectacles.

When he got there he was told that if he would wait six months he could have a pair—for $250; but they weren't grinding any at that time of the year. It was the "closed season" on spectacles.

Now, you can call up an Almer Coe Eyeglass Store—or walk to one in five minutes from anywhere downtown—and have a pair of Almer Coe spectacles the same day—or the next—for a trifling fraction of what Prince August paid.

SOVIETS TO LET FORMER OWNERS RUN FACTORIES

Seized Plants Will Be Returned on Leases.

[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, May 2.—The soviet government has decided to return all factories, plants, and institutions to their former owners, thus moving further toward abolishing the communistic idea of common property, according to information from Moscow.

M. Dzerzhinsky, chief kommisar of public economy, made this important announcement. He said 80 per cent of the members of the soviet congress now in session favored the abandonment of the idea of state ownership. The reason given is that the government is unable to operate the plants at a profit.

Turned Back on Leases.

Since the soviet constitution does not permit private ownership the property is being turned over to the original owners on leases bearing no termination dates. On account of the rundown condition of the plants the government announces the owner will not be taxed for three years in order to allow them to make necessary repairs.

After the announcement the government gave out leases to more than 2,000 apartment houses in Moscow to the original owners or the heirs, allowing them to rent the apartments without permission of the government housing committee. These properties also are free of taxes for a three year period.

Expect Wages to Climb.

The labor unions believe the permission granted employers to hire men without government restriction on wages will increase the present low pay and make the lot of laborers better.

Madison, Wis., May 2.—[Special.]—Forest fires which threaten the lives and property of farmers started tonight in Marinette county, necessitating the calling out of two and possibly three companies of the Wisconsin National Guard.

PRINCE'S WRIST HURT; TOO MUCH HANDSHAKING

CAPETOWN, South Africa, May 2.—[By The Associated Press.]—The naval station of Simons Town, some twenty miles from Cape Town, together with adjoining villages, celebrated the visit of the Prince of Wales today. A naval boat crew, which earned the honor by winning a mile race recently, rowed the Prince out to inspect the training ship Gen. Botha.

The Prince is suffering from a swollen right wrist which probably developed through much shaking of hands.

In the afternoon, the Kenilworth races attracted his interest. He backed the favorite for the Prince of Wales cup, an event which ended in a dead heat. The Wales cup eventually went to a horse ridden by a native jockey, which paid 49½ pounds sterling [$239.28] for the £1 ticket.

Despite his crowded program, the Prince found time to visit Maj. Gen. Sir Henry T. Luckin, retired, who was seriously ill at his residence nearby. In the evening a private dinner was given in the Prince's honor in the parliament building.

SEIZE BASEBALL POOL TICKETS AS LID GOES ON

As an automobile load of baseball pool tickets en route to Melrose Park was being confiscated yesterday by detectives, who arrested three men said to be agents of Louis Mondi, operator of a big western pool, Chief of Police Collins was warning his captains that they are being held strictly responsible for the supression of baseball pools in their districts.

Commanders of districts in which investigators find pool tickets offered for sale will face charges of neglect of duty before the civil service trial board, the chief declared.

The car was seized at Canal and Harrison streets. The agents arrested are Andy De Grazia, James and Paul Farraco, all of Melrose Park.

In another order issued yesterday, Chief Collins promoted Policeman Patrick J. Doyle of the Stockyards station to a sergeantcy, in recognition of Doyle's bravery under the fire of three gunmen he surprised in the act of holding up a pedestrian. Doyle's first bullet struck one of the trio in the head, killing him instantly. The other two escaped.

HINDENBURG TO BE TRUE TO OATH, GERMANY THINKS

President Elect Gains in Popularity.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, May 2.—Gen. von Hindenburg's private apartments in the German white house, when contrasted with the public rooms, will afford a remarkable parallel with the personal and official convictions of the veteran field marshal, who on May 12 becomes Germany's second president.

THE TRIBUNE learns the old soldier is bringing his own personal belongings from Hanover to furnish the eight rooms making up the presidential home. In the study he will have his old desk and shabby leather chairs from Hanover, and there will be a large autographed picture of former Kaiser Wilhelm. Other souvenirs from the wartime, uniforms, pictures, in short, many trappings of the old monarchy will find places in these rooms.

The public apartments, including the vast reception halls and official workroom, will remain exactly as under former President Ebert.

Will Keep His Oath.

Such, believe political leaders here, are the furnishings in the veteran soldier's mind. Where personal convictions and private opinions are concerned, Gen. von Hindenburg remains true to former Kaiser Wilhelm and the glory of military Germany.

In concerns devoted to public service Gen. von Hindenburg must think republican. As a soldier, he is a man who can be trusted not to break an oath. But the republican elements are wondering what he will do if the conflict between the two elements within him as Germany's president becomes too much for the old man. Will he resign in favor of a dictator or protect the republic to the last? Only time can answer.

Gains in Popularity.

Since Gen. von Hindenburg's election Germany is once more given a powerful personality in political life. The deep, winding political logic which was the delight of the republican leaders, but failed to produce a single outstanding figure, must give way before the straightforward personality of the president elect. Just this simplicity of Gen. von Hindenburg bids fair to make him one of Germany's greatest post-war idols. In the short week since the election he has made tremendous strides of real popularity in the republican as well as democratic elements.

His decision to review the Reichsbanner troops, while refusing to officiate at the parade of the monarchist "Stahlhelm" made a deep impression in all circles.

Attacks in Press Cease.

It is interesting to note that the attacks against Gen. von Hindenburg have ceased in all the newspapers except the communist Rote Fahn. A feeling of implicit trust in the old soldier has swept the nation. These to whom Gen. von Hindenburg was the greatest hero in the dark hours of the war are convinced that Gen. von Hindenburg will remain true to the republic.

SAYS NEW YORK IS TAXED FOR ALIEN INSANE

Albany, N. Y., May 2.—New York state taxpayers are paying $3,500,000 annually for the support and medical treatment of more than 10,000 alien insane, "none of whom has any legal or moral claim upon the state," according to Lewis M. Farrington, secretary of the state hospital commission.

If it were not for supporting these alien insane who compose 35.3 per cent of the total insane population of the state, the hospitals would not have been so overcrowded that two years ago the taxpayers had to authorize a $50,000,000 bond issue for construction of a new state hospital and extension of old ones, he said.

As soon as this bond issue is marketed, about two years hence, the state will have to pay an additional $2,000,000 a year in interest charges. That will bring the total charge for supporting and giving medical treatment to alien insane within a couple of years to about $6,000,000 a year.

"BLUES" STRESS EASY LANDING IN HAWAIIAN "WAR"

Honolulu, May 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—The reported comparative ease with which the "Blue" forces in the joint army and navy maneuvers, succeeded in landing, theoretically, three quarters of the two constructive divisions of marines to attack Pearl Harbor is believed to have featured the "Blue" presentation of its case at the critique, the second session of which was held today.

Despite the secrecy still clothing the proceedings, in which some 800 officers are attending, it is known that the spokesmen for the "Blue" forces pointed out that the fleet was not detected in its approach to Haleiwa. While a landing was not attempted until daybreak, the "Blue" adherents said it could have been made, comparatively unopposed, before dawn.

Entire secrecy will be maintained until the issue of the official preliminary summary, probably on May 6.

FARM OUTLOOK BETTER FOR 1925, U. S. ANNOUNCES

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Prospects are good for a more prosperous year for agriculture, according to a review issued today by that department. With the opening of the new crop season, says the department, the pressure of hard times, though still in force, has relaxed somewhat and farmers are in a better frame of mind than last spring.

"Crop work, aided by an early spring, is already well advanced in the main agricultural regions," the review says. "Small grains are in the ground and coming up to generally good stands throughout the central states. Considerable replanting of spring wheat upon abandoned winter wheat acreage in the Pacific northwest and some in Nebraska, are also reported.

"The live stock industries, although slow to right themselves, are in much better general position than a year ago. Sheep are apparently at, or near, the peak of a price cycle. Hops have doubled in price since last spring. Beef cattle have apparently turned upward in their price cycle.

"The dairy industry shows signs of some improvement on the eastern market milk end. The poultry industry's position for next season appears somewhat strengthened."

BELVA GAERTNER MARRIES FORMER HUSBAND 3D TIME

Was Acquitted in Slaying of Auto Salesman.

Apparently Mrs. Belva Gaertner is married again to her former husband, William Gaertner, a wealthy manufacturer to whom she had been twice married prior to the night she was arrested when Walter Law, a young auto salesman, was found murdered in an auto two blocks from her home following a wild night in a roadhouse.

Belva said after she had been acquitted in the Law shooting that she would rewed her former husband and yesterday their names appeared on a marriage license issued at city hall. No trace of the Gaertners could be found last night.

Find Salesman Dead.

About a year ago Law and Mrs. Gaertner, then estranged from her husband, spent the evening in the Gingham inn, a south side café.

Early in the morning policemen found Law, slumped over the wheel of her automobile, two blocks from the Gaertner home and with a steel jacketed bullet in his head. A revolver on the floor and a half filled bottle of gin gave mute testimony of cause and effect.

The detectives went to the Gaertner home. They found the woman, who is described as the most beautiful woman ever to face a murder trial in the Criminal court here, hysterically pacing the floor.

"I don't know what happened. I was drunk," was all they could get her to say. She went on trial and was freed.

Married Gaertner in 1917.

As Belle Brown, a cabaret singer, Mrs. Gaertner was first married to a man named Overbeck. They were divorced. Following a bridle path romance she slipped away to Crown Point with Gaertner in 1917 and the wedding bells jingled for Belle again and she changed her name to the more romantic Belva.

Five months later Gaertner was suing for an annulment on the grounds that his wife's divorce was not final when they had married. But just as they were about to be parted they married again.

This time they held out for three years but Judge McDonald granted her a divorce.

"I'm going to rewed William, go to Europe and forget," Belva told the reporters, as she stepped out of the court where she had won freedom from the murder charge.

RENEWS FIGHT ON BAN AGAINST PUBLIC GARAGE

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—[United Press.]—An attempt to secure a rehearing on the right to erect a public garage in residential zoned sections will be made by George L. Niederst, Chicago, whose attorneys have filed notice with the clerk of the state Supreme court that they will file a petition for a rehearing of the case.

The suit was filed against Niederst by a number of citizens and the building commissioner asking an injunction to prevent erection of the garage, and charging that it would depreciate the value of their property and that insufficient frontage permits had been secured. The chancellor of the Superior court, Chicago, found in favor of petitioners, but held that the frontage consent ordinance was constitutional, granting an appeal to the Supreme court.

The Supreme court at its latest session held that the chancellor was correct on questions of law and fact involved other than on the validity of the ordinance and that he erred in holding the ordinance invalid. The court reversed the decree with directions to enter a decree granting the injunction asked.

WILLIS E. TOWER.

The board recently refused to ratify the appointments, the measure being blocked by President Moderwell and Vice President Grace Temple. They opposed the promotions after a group of high school principals had complained of Mr. Tower's inexperience.

At the time of opposing the appointments at a board meeting, Miss Temple expressed a preference for a man principal of a high school.

DEVER TO SEND BUSCH TO LEAD BARR BILL WAR

Mayor Not Committed to Terminable Permit.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Mayor Dever said yesterday he does not intend to be in Springfield Wednesday at the hearing on the Barr bill which would allow utilities to obtain "terminable permits" from the Illinois commerce commission. Corporation Counsel Busch will speak for the mayor. He will be accompanied by Ald. Joseph B. McDonough, chairman of the local transportation committee, and the special aldermanic committee headed by Ald. John S. Clark.

They will suggest three amendments to the commerce commission act. One would reduce the sigatures to a home rule referendum from 25 to 5 per cent of the registered voters. Another would permit a referendum at any general election instead of at a mayoralty election only. The third would eliminate the commerce commission's power to review actions of a city under home rule.

Undecided on Permit Plan.

The mayor said that he will, through these representatives, sit down with the senators and discuss the situation. The mayor's representatives will probably make the statements he himself made yesterday and the day before. They are: He is opposed to the Barr bill. He is neither for nor against "terminable permits," asserting that the subject should be given more study before a decision is made, and that study made preferably by the Illinois Municipal league.

This was the mayor's position when he attended the Illinois mayors' meeting at Springfield last Wednesday. It was he who proposed that that organization make a study of the subject, and he voted for the resolution opposing the Barr bill. That was his position in his set speech before the senate committee on utilities later that day; but in reply to questions by senators he opposed fixed term franchises, whether for 20, 30, or 40 years, and he suggested that the optional right to grant "terminable permits" be given the city council of Chicago.

As one senator put it, "Your mayor does not think that a terminable permit is so dangerous that his city council could not handle it with safety—and discretion." Now Mayor Dever has returned to his original position and desires it understood that he is not committed to the "terminable permit" idea.

Journal Comments on Vote.

Electric Traction, in its current issue, delivered yesterday, comments upon the defeat of the Dever traction plan. One sentence may be of interest now, as follows:

"The Dever traction ordinance had many features of much merit and provided a comprehensive plan for subways, street railway and elevated extensions, but, in a way, did not give more of a complete transportation system than the present surface lines and elevated lines are perfectly willing to furnish, providing 40 or 50 year franchises are given the companies, with the franchises to be used as feeders and eliminating unfair bus competition."

Neither Mr. Barr, Mr. Busby, nor Mr. Insull has volunteered what they intend to do if "terminable permits" are made available in Illinois; nor have the senatorial backers of the Barr bill nor any city officials asked them to tell what they will do, if anything, in giving better and more service, reducing fares, building lines, digging subways, and buying more cars.

Barr Bill Backed by Bankers.

The board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, at its spring meeting in White Sulphur Springs, Va., yesterday, gave an unqualified indorsement to the Barr bill.

A discussion of the "terminable permit," better known as an indeterminate permit, was found yesterday in an official report of the city of Chicago published twenty-five years ago.

RARE WISCONSIN INDIAN RELICS TAKEN BY THIEF

Madison, Wis., May 2.—[Special.]—A collection of valuable Indian relics has been stolen from the state historical museum, according to Charles E. Brown, director. The burglary was committed early in the week, but it was not discovered until tonight. Letters were sent to curio collectors throughout the country giving notice of the looting.

A new system of padlocking the cases was being installed and the work had not been completed. The cases rifled contained rare bracelets, axes, copper pipes and other Indian implements.

No value was placed on the articles stolen because the inventory of the loot has not been completed. It will probably reach into thousands of dollars. The cases were looted four years ago, but the articles stolen were after-

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Mexico City, May 2.—Approximately 30,000,000 pesos [$15,000,000] has been placed in the national treasury since the first of the year, notwithstanding that the government has paid the remainder of the money due public employes and back premiums and has disbursed several millions to liquidate debts owed merchants and other creditors.

In April more than 10,000,000 pesos [$5,000,000] entered the treasury and more than that amount in addition was paid out in clearance of back debts. It is stated semi-officially that the government expects largely to increase these savings as business improves throughout Mexico and the collection of the recently imposed income tax becomes effective.

There is more money in Mexican banks than the bankers know what to do with. Increased confidence is required to call the deposits into circulation, where they are badly needed.

JURY DECIDES YOUTHFUL WIFE KILLED HERSELF

Lays Mrs. Collins' Death to Despondency.

Doubt that Mrs. Margaret Collins, a youthful bride, shot and killed herself on April 23 in the home of Mrs. Stella Ferrari, 4749 Federal street, was removed yesterday when a coroner's jury decided the young woman ended her life because she was despondent and in ill health.

The jury came to this decision after Miss Mary Hill, 1121 North Dearborn street, went to the coroner's office Friday with a story that she wished to change her testimony. She gave details which appeared to involve Policeman Francis Mulhern of the Wabash avenue station, who was in the party when the tragedy occurred.

Policeman at Her Side.

On Friday, Miss Hill tearfully said she wanted to tell the truth—that she was present when Mrs. Collins was shot. She said right after she heard the shot she saw Mulhern kneeling at the dying girl's side, and that he exclaimed:

"My God, whose gun is this? My God, Margaret, I love you. Don't die! And tell them that you did it yourself."

Still, the girl said, she believed Margaret had shot herself; and she so testified as the inquest was resumed yesterday.

She said Mulhern, Collins, and Mrs. Collins had gone to her room the day before the suicide. Mulhern had been in love with Mrs. Collins. Collins had won her after a whirlwind courtship. But Mrs. Collins had left him and now Mulhern, his love still flaming, had learned something. This had come out in Miss Hill's room, that day before the shooting.

All Go to Collins' Home.

"You dirty dog!" Mulhern had said to Collins. "You've diseased your wife!"

Then Mulhern chased Collins out on threats to shoot him.

The party met the next day. Policeman Thomas Lynch was with Mulhern. They all went to the Ferrari home. There was some wine. The policemen sang old songs to cheer Margaret, but she would not be cheered. She went to the table where the policemen had laid their revolvers and belts. There was a shot—and then Mulhern kneeling by Margaret's side.

Several salesmen for a loop department store testified that the day previous to the suicide, Mrs. Collins was in the store trying to sell a ring. She asked one of them to buy it for 50 cents. She named a poison. "I want to get some and end it all," she was quoted as saying.

Mulhern and Lynch are under suspension.

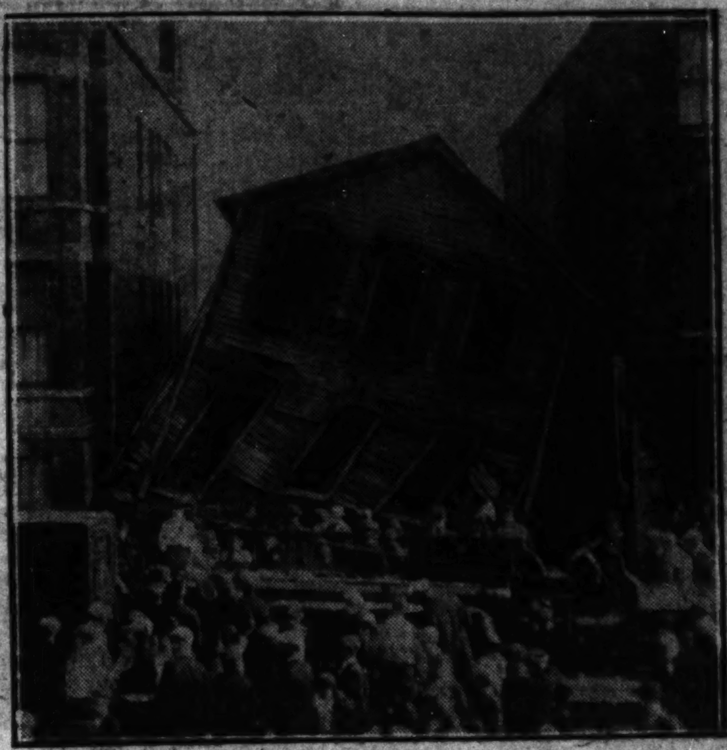
BOY KILLED WHEN HOUSE FALLS



The body of Joseph Sczye, 11 years old, who lived at 629 De Koven street, was found last night beneath the wreckage of an old house which had collapsed at 617 De Koven street. The house had been abandoned and neighbors had gone to take away anything of value. The collapse came while they were at work. Three boys were injured. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

CITY PLANNERS OF EUROPE HERE TO GET IDEAS

Thirty-six representatives, including mayors, aldermen, housing directors, city engineers, and city planners of six foreign countries will arrive in Chicago today to make a study of the city. While here they will be the guests of the Chicago Plan commission, which body will escort them about the city and explain the zoning problems, plans for development, traffic regulations, and residential and business development.

In the group are officials from towns in England, France, Sweden, Holland, Greece, Germany, and the Free Town of Danzig. The foreign planners arrived in this country to attend the international town, city, and regional planning conference at New York city, April 20 to 25. While in America they will visit several leading cities, including Washington, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Buffalo, and Montreal.

At noon today they will be officially welcomed to the city by Mayor Dever at a luncheon in Sherman park. In the evening they will be the guests of the Chicago theater, where a special program has been arranged.

New Attempt to Organize Belgian Ministry Fails

BRUSSELS, May 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Baron Charles De Broqueville, who on Wednesday was asked to form a new Belgian cabinet, today informed King Albert that his efforts had not been successful.

The summoning of ex-Premier De Broqueville to form a ministry to succeed that of Premier Theunis, which resigned on April 6, followed the failure by Emile Vandervelde, the Socialist leader, to form a government in accordance with the results of the recent Belgian elections.

DELICATESSEN WIFE CAUSES DIVORCE, MRS. SHERMAN SAYS

Baltimore, Md., May 2.—[United Press.]—It's the "delicatessen wife" who causes the great majority of American divorces, according to Mrs. John D. Sherman.

MRS. JOHN D. SHERMAN.

Mrs. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in an address to the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, declared she had neither patience with nor sympathy for the wife who spent her afternoons at the movies or bridge table and then rushed home at the last minute to buy the evening meal at the delicatessen store around the corner.

"No wonder divorces have increased from one in every thirty marriages 25 years ago to one in every five marriages now," Mrs. Sherman said. "The increased desire for exciting things is another cause of weakness in the American home.

"Don't blame the young people for what they do. Put the blame on the parents. The fathers are just as responsible as the mothers. More fundamental religion is needed in the home. More honesty is needed in the home. How can you expect children to tell the truth when the parents do not?"

CHILD, 3, DIES AFTER OPERATION.

Esther Wilkinson, 3, 10739 Prairie avenue, died at the South Shore hospital yesterday following an operation to have her tonsils removed. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

BOY IS KILLED, 3 OTHERS HURT AS BUILDING FALLS

Families Move Just in Time.

An 11 year old boy lost his life yesterday afternoon and a dozen women and children narrowly escaped death when a dilapidated old tenement house at 617 De Koven street, collapsed.

It took firemen and volunteer workers eight hours to find the body of Joseph Sczye, 629 De Koven street, who was trapped by the sagging timbers. The body was removed shortly before midnight.

Families Move Out.

The building had been marked for destruction. The last family of many that had lived in it moved out of the structure yesterday morning. That was the signal for neighboring women and children to enter and hunt for such articles as might have been left behind, not to mention a little firewood.

Falls Against House.

Suddenly the whole building collapsed against the structure nearest to it. Three boys were rescued by the city firemen. They are Joseph Stanch, 5 years old; Frank Sczye, 9, and Louis Prelli, all of 629 De Koven street.

Two months ago fire broke out in the building. While attempting to quench the flames, Capt. Joseph Sullivan of the fire department, slipped down a rickety stairway, sustaining a fractured arm and leg.

ELECTRIFIED SAND CASTS SPELL ON COLORADO AUTOS

Denver, Colo., May 2.—More than a score of motorists today encountered an "enchanted" strip of road east of Akron, Colo., when a sandstorm created a certain phenomenon of nature to make their automobiles powerless, advices tonight stated.

Their machines stalled when the sand, driven by a severe wind, evidently created a current of electricity on striking the metal bodies of the automobiles which short circuited the ignition mechanism. Dean O. C. Lester of the graduate school of the University of Colorado, said that the motorists had driven into a "veritable train of electricity."

"The sand particles, carried by the wind, were highly charged with electricity," was the theory of Dean Lester.

All the machines had installed metal skid chains to pass through the sand dunes created by the storm, and, in the belief of Dean Lester, these chains formed the "ground" for the metal bodies of the automobiles.

Reported a Suicide, He Tries to Make It Good

Sioux City, Ia., May 2.—Returning to his rooming house here late today, Peter Wilson, 53, a laborer, was shown an article in a paper which stated that he had drowned himself in the Missouri river earlier in the day. Less than an hour later Wilson was pulled from the river following a suicide attempt. He is expected to recover.

MINISTERS PUSH ANTI-BET BILL AT SPRINGFIELD

Proposal Is Called Most Drastic in U. S.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Illinois may fasten the most drastic anti-gambling law in America on itself if a group of reformers, lobbying at Springfield succeed in pushing their pet measure, senate bill 18[illegible], through the legislature.

REV. T. R. QUAYLE.

This was the verdict yesterday of legislators who have been analyzing the measure since it was submitted on April 22 by a senate judiciary subcommittee. The bill is due for a roll call on passage this week unless it is recalled by the complete committee.

Ministers Back Measure.

Two of the most active reformers in the state, the Rev. T. R. Quayle and the Rev. W. F. Fleming, was responsible for the bill's appearance. On its face it is an amendment to the anti-gambling law of 1887 to prohibit bookmaking and pool selling, but lawyers who have studied it say it is almost unlimited in possibilities.

The bill is an injunction measure. Under its terms any citizen, not to speak of a public official, could apply for an injunction to stop any event on which two persons might wager, lawyers who have perused the bill say. It mentions election bets specifically as a form of gambling that could be enjoined, and the place where the wager was made could be closed as a public nuisance, with the proprietor liable to fine of $2,000 or imprisonment for one year.

It was pointed out by legislators yesterday that a hotel could be closed by injunction if a poker game was discovered in operation in one of its rooms. County fairs, agricultural exhibits, or any other place of amusement could be closed if it was discovered that a wager had been made on any contest of skill or endurance between men or beasts.

Aimed at Horse Racing.

The object of the bill, it is said, is to prevent the possibility of horse racing in Illinois, particularly under a legalized pari mutuel system of wagering. Messrs. Quayle and Fleming were given the idea for their measure two years ago when a pari mutuel bill was pending in the legislature.

CHICAGO'S BOYS VALUED BY DAVIS AT $3,500,000,000

Chicago has a financial asset in its boyhood of $3,500,000,000, according to Gen. Abel Davis, vice president of the Chicago Boy's Week federation. He last night gave out the results of a study made of Chicago's youth in preparation for the observance of Boys' week, May 16 to 23.

"Chicago has approximately 700,000 boys under 21 years of age," said Gen. Davis, "and at the standard value of $5,000 a life, which the courts have placed in connection with damage suits, the city has in them a financial asset of $3,500,000,000. This is exactly the amount equal to America's yearly loss through various forms of crime, as fixed by the American Bankers' association."

Every boy that comes to Chicago or each boy born in the city adds more than $500 to the city's wealth, according to the general's figures. New York rates every addition to its population at $700 each.

YOU WON'T SEE THE SHAM IN THIS SHAM BATTLE

As near the real in actual battle as can be staged was promised yesterday by the regular army officers in charge of the big military show to be held May 22, 23 and 24 in Grant park.

"The ordinary sham battle has ceased to be entertaining because the bursting of shells and other effects of warfare are lacking when blanks are used," explained Col. John G. Winter. "We have overcome this and worked out a scheme through the use of fireworks whereby every detail of actual warfare is staged before the spectators."

It was explained that when the guns are fired at one end of the stadium, explosives will be so timed that they will burst at the other end just as shells would in warfare.

10,000 BABIES VIE FOR PRIZES AT HEALTH SHOW

Congress on Infants Has Better Goats, Too.

Babies; the prophecy that the bathtub is to follow the way to oblivion of the common drinking cup; more babies; milch goats; more babies; the "hall of shame" where Health Commissioner Bundesen demonstrates pictorially a few health "don'ts"; still more babies.

Yes, the National Baby Congress and Health Exposition opened yesterday at the American Exposition Palace at 666 Lake Shore drive.

Florence Marie Smith, confessing to the age of 34 months, daughter of Sidney Smith, 7037 Jeffrey avenue, was the first of the 10,000 babies entered in the contest to go through the six tests of the doctors. "Ducky" and "Bobby" Donahue, 26 months old, children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Donahue, 4506 Jackson boulevard, were the first twins to run the health gauntlet.

Fifty Sets of Twins.

There are fifty sets of twins and two of triplets entered in the contest.

During the first two hours of the show, which opened its doors at one o'clock, 250 babies were examined. One hundred is the perfect score. And only two out of the 250 failed to test more than 90.

The prophecy about that great institution of which America is so proud, the bathtub, came from Dr. C. St. Clair Drake, medical director of the exposition. For the white porcelain trough is as out of date and as insanitary as the old joke about Saturday night, says the doctor.

Bathtub vs. Shower.

"It is as bad as the common drinking cup," he declared yesterday. "Both are social centers for the germs of every past user. They are clearing houses for disease. In five years the bathtub ought to be put out of business and replaced by the shower."

The exposition has the coöperation of the Illinois State Medical society and the approval of the American Medical association. The city and state health departments are both aiding and exhibiting.

In addition, Mayor Dever, in an official proclamation, yesterday endorsed National Baby week, May 2 to 9, and urged all mothers and fathers to take advantage of the opportunity offered during this period of obtaining "from the organized medical profession a vast amount of valuable information of utmost importance in the upbuilding of a sturdier race."

The spitter, the cougher, and the sneezer, are just a few of the portraits in Dr. Bundesen's "hall of shame," and the doctor recommends prison bars for the habitual health offender who endangers others.

"We are exhibiting the positive side of health," said Dr. Drake. "Health is like happiness. We don't always realize when we have it. We want to get across to the public the thought that they should be aware of their health, and that they should safeguard it by periodic medical examination."

Goats Are Odorless.

Charles A. Steven's Toggenburg goats are there, and one learns that lady goats of this particular breed haven't that odor proverbial to the comic strip. They shouldn't have; for Loreen, Benina II, Juno, Capella V, Juliana, and Cornell are valued at something like $1,000 apiece. And the twelve kids in their miniature cages are held at not less than a quarter of that apiece.

The exposition is to continue throughout next week. Next Wednesday is to be Mayor Dever day. The prize for the most perfect baby is to be a $500 bank account. Baby judging starts at 9 o'clock this morning. In the evening the "youth class" for children from 6 to 18, and the adult classes will be examined. Mothers are warned to bring in their babies only on notification that an appointment hour has been set. Next Saturday, the noncompetitive classes will be examined.

Parents Think They're Perfect

THREATENS WOMAN, TAKES $50.

An armed man entered the grocery of John Micars, 2505 Station street, last night, threatened the wife of the owner, alone in the store at the time, and escaped with $50 from the cash register. Mrs. Micars reported the robbery to the police.

LEAGUE BACKERS PLEAD WITH U. S. TO JOIN UP NOW

Will Urge It Until Done, They Tell Kellogg.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Recommendations for consideration of the administration were presented to Secretary of State Kellogg today by a delegation representing the League of Nations Nonpartisan association.

FRANK B. KELLOGG. [Harris & Ewing.]

The principal recommendations were the following: American adherence to the permanent court of international justice; registration of United States treaties with the secretariat of the league of nations; permanent membership on certain league committees; American ratification of various draft treaties, and participation in efforts to outlaw war.

Supporters of Program.

The recommendations were presented to Mr. Kellogg in an address by Manley O. Hudson, professor of international law at Harvard. Accompanying him were Charles H. Strong, secretary of the Bar association of New York City, and acting president of the council of the League of Nations association in the absence of former Attorney General George W. Wickersham; Bishop William F. McDowell of the Methodist Episcopal church; Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen; Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams; Mrs. Philip North Moore, president of the National Council of Women; Theodore Marburg, former minister to Belgium; Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle, chairman of the Greater New York branch League of Nations Nonpartisan association, and Everett Colby, chairman of the executive committee of the association.

Explains Their Purpose.

Prof. Hudson said that the NonPartisan association is organized "for the purpose of an independent, nonpartisan cultivation of such a public opinion as will induce the present administration, or if not this, the next one, to enter the league of nations on such terms as to such administration may seem wise, providing only that they be consistent with out constitution and consonant with the dignity and honor, the moral responsibility and power of our republic."

He declared that the association will continue its work until its end has been realized.

10,000 BABIES VIE FOR PRIZES AT HEALTH SHOW

Congress on Infants Has Better Goats, Too.

Babies; the prophecy that the bathtub is to follow the way to oblivion of the common drinking cup; more babies; milch goats; more babies; the "hall of shame" where Health Commissioner Bundesen demonstrates pictorially a few health "don'ts"; still more babies.

Yes, the National Baby Congress and Health Exposition opened yesterday at the American Exposition Palace at 666 Lake Shore drive.

Florence Marie Smith, confessing to the age of 34 months, daughter of Sidney Smith, 7037 Jeffrey avenue, was the first of the 10,000 babies entered in the contest to go through the six tests of the doctors. "Ducky" and "Bobby" Donahue, 26 months old, children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Donahue, 4506 Jackson boulevard, were the first twins to run the health gauntlet.

Fifty Sets of Twins.

There are fifty sets of twins and two of triplets entered in the contest.

During the first two hours of the show, which opened its doors at one o'clock, 250 babies were examined. One hundred is the perfect score. And only two out of the 250 failed to test more than 90.

The prophecy about that great institution of which America is so proud, the bathtub, came from Dr. C. St. Clair Drake, medical director of the exposition. For the white porcelain trough is as out of date and as insanitary as the old joke about Saturday night, says the doctor.

Bathtub vs. Shower.

"It is as bad as the common drinking cup," he declared yesterday. "Both are social centers for the germs of every past user. They are clearing houses for disease. In five years the bathtub ought to be put out of business and replaced by the shower."

The exposition has the coöperation of the Illinois State Medical society and the approval of the American Medical association. The city and state health departments are both aiding and exhibiting.

In addition, Mayor Dever, in an official proclamation, yesterday endorsed National Baby week, May 2 to 9, and urged all mothers and fathers to take advantage of the opportunity offered during this period of obtaining "from the organized medical profession a vast amount of valuable information of utmost importance in the upbuilding of a sturdier race."

The spitter, the cougher, and the sneezer, are just a few of the portraits in Dr. Bundesen's "hall of shame," and the doctor recommends prison bars for the habitual health offender who endangers others.

"We are exhibiting the positive side of health," said Dr. Drake. "Health is like happiness. We don't always realize when we have it. We want to get across to the public the thought that they should be aware of their health, and that they should safeguard it by periodic medical examination."

Goats Are Odorless.

Charles A. Steven's Toggenburg goats are there, and one learns that lady goats of this particular breed haven't that odor proverbial to the comic strip. They shouldn't have; for Loreen, Benina II, Juno, Capella V, Juliana, and Cornell are valued at something like $1,000 apiece. And the twelve kids in their miniature cages are held at not less than a quarter of that apiece.

The exposition is to continue throughout next week. Next Wednesday is to be Mayor Dever day. The prize for the most perfect baby is to be a $500 bank account. Baby judging starts at 9 o'clock this morning. In the evening the "youth class" for children from 6 to 18, and the adult classes will be examined. Mothers are warned to bring in their babies only on notification that an appointment hour has been set. Next Saturday, the noncompetitive classes will be examined.

THREATENS WOMAN, TAKES $50.

An armed man entered the grocery of John Micarz, 2505 Station street, last night, threatened the wife of the owner, alone in the store at the time, and escaped with $50 from the cash register. Mrs. Micarz reported the robbery to the police.

LEAGUE BACKERS PLEAD WITH U. S. TO JOIN UP NOW

Will Urge It Until Done, They Tell Kellogg.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Recommendations for consideration of the administration were presented to Secretary of State Kellogg today by a delegation representing the League of Nations Nonpartisan association.

FRANK B. KELLOGG. [Harris & Ewing]

The principal recommendations were the following: American adherence to the permanent court of international justice; registration of United States treaties with the secretariat of the league of nations; permanent membership on certain league committees; American ratification of various draft treaties, and participation in efforts to outlaw war.

Supporters of Program.

The recommendations were presented to Mr. Kellogg in an address by Manley O. Hudson, professor of international law at Harvard. Accompanying him were Charles H. Strong, secretary of the Bar association of New York City, and acting president of the council of the League of Nations association in the absence of former Attorney General George W. Wickersham; Bishop William F. McDowell of the Methodist Episcopal church; Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen; Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams; Mrs. Philip North Moore, president of the National Council of Women; Theodore Marburg, former minister to Belgium; Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle, chairman of the Greater New York branch League of Nations Nonpartisan association, and Everett Colby, chairman of the executive committee of the association.

Explains Their Purpose.

Prof. Hudson said that the Non-Partisan association is organized "for the purpose of an independent, nonpartisan cultivation of such a public opinion as will induce the present administration, or if not this, the next one, to enter the league of nations on such terms as to such administration may seem wise, providing only that they be consistent with out constitution and consonant with the dignity and honor, the moral responsibility and power of our republic."

He declared that the association will continue its work until its end has been realized.

LOWDEN PROMOTES A CROP.

Former Gov. Lowden, as chairman of the citizens committee directing the activities of American forest week, just celebrated, offered some illuminating facts and suggestions at the banquet of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association. And Mr. Lowden knows whereof he speaks. That is one reason why he was made chairman of the national committee last February when President Coolidge moved toward advancement of national and state forestry policies.

Legislation for forest protection is quite proper, in so far as it goes, says Mr. Lowden, but protection, while necessary, is not enough. We must have reforestation. Not only our future lumber supply, but the fertility of our soil, the certainty of our rainfall, and innumerable other things as important, are dependent upon it. On that phase of the problem Mr. Lowden speaks not only as a conservationist and a successful business man, but as a practical farmer, and a practical grower of trees.

There are 80,000,000 acres of denuded forest land in this country. Although state and federal governments have been working upon the problem for many years, comparatively little has yet been accomplished in a practical way toward growing new trees on this land. We are still cutting our timber, it is said, five times as fast as we are growing it. Various methods have been proposed and a few have been adopted seeking to correct that alarming condition. Mr. Lowden has adopted one of these methods himself. He has planted the untillable land on his great Sinissippi farm with young forest trees. He is raising a crop of pine which eventually should profit not only him but his neighbors, and the entire state.

Others can do as much. There are 150,000,000 acres of so-called woodlots on American farms which can be made to produce a crop of timber profitable to the farmer and to the nation. It is estimated there are 530,000,000 acres of land on American farms which could be made to grow trees but which cannot be made to grow anything else.

But who wants to plant a crop which may not be harvested for fifty years. Few indeed. Mostly they are the altruists. There is one method by which the development could be made profitable. That is through state laws which would relieve from taxation the untillable land upon which a crop of forest trees is planted and maintained. That is what Mr. Lowden recommends, and rightly, we believe. The possibilities are vast. The need is great. It would cost the state virtually nothing, and when the crop finally is harvested or the improved land is sold, the revenue both to the state and to private interest would be huge.

It has been suggested in the past. A few states already have taken steps toward that end, with good results. All should do so. It is one practical step toward solution of what some of the greatest men in our country have declared to be one of our greatest economic problems. If we fail to conserve and renew our forests we are headed for the condition of China.

CONQUERING CAPITALISM IN RUSSIA.

Bukharin, editor of Pravda and leading expounder of bolshevist theory and practice, says that "the proletarian state must get hold of the heights of industry and commerce and then by means of commercial competition conquer private capitalism."

He means by holding "the heights of industry and commerce," state control of what is called the heavy industries, railroads, the mines, steel, etc., and finance.

Meantime the bolshevist government, in spite of its doctrines and fanatic doctrinaires, has been forced by famine and by the collapse of manufacturing production to renew Lenin's "strategic retreat" and permit resumption of private capitalism, the wage and profit system and to make further concession to the peasants which reduce the Marxian principle of nationalization of the land to the shadow of a shade.

Bukharin does not explain how he expects soviet control and management to conquer private capitalism when it has not been able to prevent the degeneration of industry and agriculture and has brought about such a situation that it has been forced to permit capitalism to reënter and save the day if possible. To anything but a communist mind, the hope of conquering capitalism by the competition of a management that has brought about famine and general industrial deterioration, is pretty slim.

FASCISMO AND WORLD OPINION.

The fact that discredits the soviet régime more than anything else is that it is afraid of publicity. It is with the greatest difficulty that the outside world can get a glimpse of what is going on in Russia. That, it seems to us, is a confession of failure and of weakness.

The same conclusion is drawn from the policy of the Fascist régime in Italy. At first there was a great deal of sympathy for Fascismo in this country because it was interpreted as the resistance of intelligence and patriotism to the impending tyranny of a communist revolution. But if the Fascist régime really represents intelligence and patriotism, why hang a heavy curtain of censorship between it and a people so well disposed as ours to sympathize with a movement against the proletarian destructiveness and folly which we abhor?

Premier Mussolini's government and Italy both need the good opinion of mankind. It is not merely a matter of moral support. It is also a practical matter of material aid: that is, of credit and favorable relations. Neither is likely to be extended to a régime which is so afraid of publicity, discussion, and open criticism as the Fascist government is showing itself to be.

EXTEND THE CHICAGO PLAN.

The real estate column the other day started off with the news that some 900 acres around Lake Forest and Lake Bluff had been bought by a Chicago real estate firm and will be subdivided.

Every day or so the real estate columns tell of such purchases. Each year sees the surveyors at work farther from the center of the city. Streets are given a preliminary grading, flags are placed at intervals to mark the lot lines, gate posts are erected like decoys at the corners of the subdivision and the work of selling begins. The speed with which lots in many of the subdivisions are disposed of is amazing in view of the often scanty transportation facilities. The city dwellers seem to have inherited the land hunger which drove their ancestors westward across an ocean and a continent.

Experts say Chicago before long will be built up from the Wisconsin line to the Indiana line. The great communities which have grown up on what a few years ago was farm land suggest that this forecast is probable. They also suggest that now is the time to develop a regional plan for Chicago and to extend the zoning idea beyond the city limits into the territory which the city will inevitably occupy. Some work along that line has already been done, but it has concerned itself largely with sanitation, which is a pressing and common problem for all the communities clustered at the south end of the lake. We must go much farther than that if we are to avoid the mistakes of our fathers. Had foresight been shown, Chicago would not now contain so many grim and ugly vistas; it would not present a helter-skelter of factories, homes and stores; it would not find itself lacking in arteries for free movement from one section of the city to another. The extent of the migration into even inaccessible tracts of suburban countryside is to no small degree the measure of a revolt against the ugliness of life in the city. A man may resent spending three hours a day going to and from his business, but he will accept it rather than see his children grow up in bedlam.

At present the Greater Chicago of the suburbs is being built up exactly as was the old, through the unchecked dealings of the real estate subdivider, who thinks in terms of a few hundred acres and a quick profit. We do not protest against the profit, which is only his just reward for the energy he has put forth, but we do object to the narrowness of his view. That is no fault of his, for, with the best will in the world, he cannot be expected to deal with his land as part of a greater whole until a regional plan has been devised and made effective. In the long run a sound plan will more than pay for itself in higher land values.

Some progress toward a regional plan has been made by a committee under City club auspices. More recently the work has been taken over by an organization known as the Chicago Regional Plan association, made up of technicians in and out of the government services. Several years must elapse before the plan can be presented in its final form, it is announced. Meanwhile no time should be lost in pushing to a conclusion the studies upon which the plan will be based. There is need for haste. Already the subdividers are at work thirty miles from the loop.

THE SAVOR OF EXISTENCE.

The sense of sight is the only alert sense left in city dwellers, according to Lester F. Scott, who was making a speech the other day about Camp Fire girls. He said the city bred girls have to be trained to enjoy what he called the "savor of existence," communicated through hearing, taste, smell, and touch, quite as much as through the eyes.

We are all for the savor of existence. Mr. Scott, however, didn't mean the savor of existence; he meant the savor of his grandmother's rural existence. He went on to explain that he wants our girls to know the chickadee and the meadow lark by their calls, the smell of baking bread and the feel of the loom. We are for that, too. It makes for the enrichment of life and perhaps even for the vanishing trait of reverence.

We quarrel with Mr. Scott only when he suggests that our senses are becoming atrophied by city life. Consider hearing. The city is the home of great and little sounds in endless variety. Has Mr. Scott listened only to the singing of the breeze in the trees and never to the soft breathing of the city at dawn? Has the country any variety of smells to match these to be encountered in a ten minute walk down any outlying business street with its drug and fruit stores, its garage, its florist, and its bakery all sending out their distinctive odors against a background of industrial smells and gasoline fumes?

Our urban existence has its own savor, sometimes harsh, sometimes strident, often alluring. Senses do not atrophy under such varied stimulation. The simple life of the country may be better for children's minds and bodies, but it has nothing to do with developing delicacy in sensory perceptions.

AN AGE OF IGNORANCE.

The National Academy of Science met in Washington the other day, and it was a dreadful occasion for the reporters. All, or almost all of them, had gone to college. They had studied a little physics and chemistry and biology, enough, they supposed, to enable them to understand the nature of the problems in scientific fields if not the solutions. The reporters went to the sessions in high spirits, expecting to find plenty of stories, but they were disappointed. For all they understood, they might as well have attended a session of the Russian academy.

There have been times when exceptional men could grasp all the knowledge available in their times but this is not such an age. Roger Bacon in the thirteenth century and Alexander von Humboldt in the last are supposed to have had encyclopedic knowledge, but nobody today pretends to any such erudition. That is only partly because of the increasing specialization in all the sciences, which develops botanists who do not know even all of botany. More important is the fact that great new chunks of phenomena have been discovered, to account for which adequate theories have not been developed. Sooner or later general principles will be discovered and the newly won terrain will be consolidated. Then all will again be well, for once the new knowledge has been codified it can be simplified and absorbed without too much loss of time. Meanwhile, members of this generation are probably doomed to die so many ignoramuses outside their own special fields.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

Skyland, N. C. At twilight the whippoorwills come out of the woods into the road and sit in the dust, calling from time to time. Small flocks of mourning doves fly into the road and out again. With dark the whippoorwills go back to the woods where the branch comes tumbling and splashing down the hillside. From then on the night is filled with the cascading reiteration of their cries.

At intervals until midnight or after there is a real song, a surprise. The local authorities are not authoritative. One says it is the field sparrow, another the song sparrow, and a third the warbler.

Some singer, and only one, awakes at night and from a choir loft of pine or oak or locust adds a melody to the perfumes which the south wind carries from the blossoming thorns.

For persistence during the day the tufted titmouse has no competitor. His "wheet, wheet" is a part of the morning and evening medley of thrasher, catbird, thrush, cardinal, cheewink, song sparrow, goldfinch, oriole, and vireo. His "wheet, wheet" continues in the heat of the day and into the cool of the evening when the thrasher goes to the top of the oak for evensong and the wood thrush with his reedy notes calls Pan and the dryads to the edge of the woods.

Mountain laurel is in flower at the foot of the mountains. The tulip trees bloom on the slopes with the flame azaleas and the locust blossoms in the valley. It is the full tide of spring.

THE COUNT AND THE LADY.

The blunder of the state department censorship in the case of Count Karolyi is not so easily buried. The count has scored heavily and will continue to profit by it; but now comes Miss MacSwiney, whose case is quite enough to drive an official to defy Volstead. Miss MacSwiney is as much an enemy of the Irish Free State as Karolyi is of the Horthy government of Hungary. She isn't with us to say kind things about it, and we suspect that Mr. Kipling's remark upon the female of the species is apt in this instance. Miss MacSwiney can make more trouble than Count Karolyi in our international relations for several reasons, especially since more of us are interested in Irish and British affairs than in Hungarian. The state department, therefore, is between the devil of its own precedent and the deep sea of expediency. It can make Miss MacSwiney a martyr of free speech, like the lucky count, or it can put the Karolyi precedent in the ash can and let Miss MacSwiney talk ad libitum.

We shall await the decision with a pleased attention.

PAST AND FUTURE.

There is a sharp irony in the donation of the first Wright airplane to an English museum. Mr. Wright reports that the historic first plane of Prof. Langley was manhandled by the institution to which it was bequeathed and that he does not propose that the Wright machine shall suffer the same fate. Therefore he will confide his historic treasure to English hands, believing that it will be valued and protected as it would not be in America.

Probably this is not fair, but it expresses a natural resentment over the fate of the Langley machine and no one can deny to Mr. Wright the right to do what he thinks is wise in the preservation of an epochmaking relic.

The irony for us, meanwhile, is in the thought that, while we are squabbling over Rembrandts and causing anguish abroad by our raids upon the old world's treasures of the past, we let this treasure of the future escape us. A mechanical device of the year 2500 B. C. is brought to us amid great rejoicing, while one which will be a priceless record of mankind's advance five thousand years hence goes hence.

Editorials of the Day

MUNICIPAL FORESTS FOR MICHIGAN.

[Grand Rapids Press.]

Cadillac has been tendered 1,920 acres of cut over land for the establishment of a municipal forest. Thus Cadillac is offered an opportunity for leadership in a new development of forestry in Michigan which may in time mean much to the state and to its wood working industries.

Many Michigan towns were born of forest products and have lived on forest products. With the passing of the lumber industry they have been obliged to seek new sources of community support. Some have found these sources partly in agriculture, partly in recreational development, partly in new lines of trade and manufacture.

But towns that have been fed by forest lands that are distinctively forest lands and that never will be anything else but forest lands cannot attain full measure of restored prosperity until these lands again yield the products on which the old prosperity was built. Hence their concern in reforestation in all its phases—state reforestation, national reforestation, private reforestation, community reforestation.

Had Michigan lumber and woodworking towns been in a position years ago to acquire large tracts of standing timber for municipal forests and had they been wise enough to conserve and manage these forests as Europe long has been forced to do, they might now have an inexhaustible timber reservoir to draw upon for their passing industries. But they did not have the means, nor the vision, nor the enterprise to establish perpetual forests when the forests were to be had, so now the only thing to do is to restore the forests. And the sooner the start is made the sooner the towns concerned can begin to reap the harvest.

Michigan has millions of idle acres which under present conditions are worthless except for the production of forest growth and the propagation of wild life to serve recreational uses. Millions of these acres are destined ultimately to become state forests, millions will become national forests, millions will be private game preserves, and there still will be millions left for the towns that were born of lumber to return to lumber production under their own ownership.

State and municipal forests in Europe are paying dividends. They are contributing to the taxes of the communities that own them as well as supplying raw material for local industries. In some cases the fortunate property owner instead of being handed an annual tax notice on his holdings, gets an annual check representing the surplus earnings from the community forest.

Cadillac will be wise in making the 1,920 acres offered it the nucleus of a much larger community forest. Other towns near idle lands not suitable or not needed for agriculture will do well in turning their thought and enterprise in the same direction. Particularly is this applicable to the resort regions where managed and developed forests could be made strong recreational assets yielding almost immediate returns.

CLEANUP CAMPAIGNS.

When a man washes his face he "hones" to put on a clean collar. He may not bat 100 per cent, but even wanting to put on a clean collar helps some.

One paragraph of a circular just received reads: "A cleanup campaign saves human lives. Breeding places of disease are destroyed. Flies, mosquitoes, rats, roaches, and other pests are eliminated." Which statements are only a part of the truth.

When a man washes his face he "hones" to put on a clean collar. When a man cleans up his lot, sweeps out his house, and paints and whitewashes generally, he "hones" for a clean collar. That clean collar is better health for himself and his family.

The Sanitarian says: "Sanitary standards are raised" or "there is a better health conscience." It all comes to the same thing. The fact is, and all health authorities know it, as people live cleaner and more comfortably, as wages, measured in purchasing power of money, go up, the general death rates and the death rates from preventable diseases go down.

But let us get down to cases.

The national cleanup campaign bureau has some detailed advice for people who want their town to clean up. Here are some extracts:

"Give every one participating in the campaign a specific thing to do.

"Get specific reports of accomplishments.

"Don't let your campaign or any part of it be a lick and a promise.

"Let's have a real campaign. And keep it up as long as it is necessary to do a real job.

"Get as many men, women, and children as possible at work on a specific program for definite results."

The school children make valuable cogs in a cleanup campaign.

Bernice Kahn, as chairman of the Key school cleanup committee, makes this report:

"BEFORE. The alley is very dirty; lawns need cutting; houses need painting; fences need to be repaired."

"AFTER. The alley has been cleaned; the grass mowed; fences repaired; yards cleaned and gardens planted."

This group of children put a good deal of stress on this notice: "Provide garbage receptacles with proper covers."

In Atlanta, Ga., two good women, perhaps one was friend wife, stood watch over his honor, the mayor, while that energetic citizen swept a sidewalk.

NO DIET FOR THIS.

Constant Reader writes: Would like to know if a diet would help me. I have locomotor ataxia. My blood test is 3 plus. I have been treated at a city clinic for the last few years with salversan.

REPLY.

There is no locomotor ataxia diet. Eat whatever you like.

HAVE HEART EXAMINED.

H. A. O. writes: Last year I was a member of a high school cross country team. Now I have pains in my heart which I never had before.

1. Do you think my running has given me heart disease?
2. How can I cure these pains?

REPLY.

1. It is possible. Have your heart examined.
2. The answer will depend on what is found.

EMPLOYER CHANGES HIS MIND.

Chicago, April 29.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A friend of mine was employed to work at a soda fountain for $25 a week. He went to work getting ready to open the fountain for business, but something happened so that the fountain would not work and would not be ready for a week or two. When he finally reported for work the owner said he could only give him $10 a week.

OBJECTIONS TO PAVING.

Objections were filed in court in our proceeding for widening Peterson avenue, and these objections must be tried and disposed of before the court enters judgment of condemnation. The trial of the case is now going on, and when the assessment is confirmed we will have it certified for collection.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 3, 1865.

CHICAGO.—President Lincoln's body left for Springfield last night at 9:30 o'clock. It had lain in state all day and the night before in the courthouse. Up to midnight of May 1, 40,000 persons viewed the remains. From midnight until daylight 8,000 more passed through. Yesterday 75,000 more saw the body, making at a low estimate 125,000 persons who marched by the catafalque in Chicago.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—A Memphis dispatch says that several days ago negotiations were progressing a few miles below Red river between Col. Sprague, chief of staff to Maj. Gen. Pope, and the authorities of the trans-Mississippi department for the surrender of Gen. Kirby Smith's rebel forces. It is also understood that Gen. Dick Taylor has surrendered. With these capitulations there is now no rebel army in the field.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—A man who was on a train captured by Stoneman's cavalry between Greensboro and Salisbury, says that Jeff Davis was on the same train, but escaped and returned to Greensboro. Stoneman is in the valley of the Saluda river, with instructions to run down every clew to the whereabouts of Davis and his treasure and to leave nothing undone to effect his capture.

NEW YORK.—A Washington special to the Times says: "In the preliminary examination into the assassination conspiracy arrests are continually being made, and thus far the whole number taken into custody is nearly 300. The trial of Harrold, accomplice of J. Wilkes Booth, is set for tomorrow before a military commission."

CHICAGO.—Maj. Gen. Hunter received a telegram commanding him immediately to go to Washington to preside over the trial of the assassination conspirators.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. — Oregon papers tell of the hanging of fifteen horse thieves in Walla Walla and Boise counties by lynch law.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 3, 1900.

CHICAGO. — George P. Gubbins, president of the bricklayers and stonemasons' union, was indicted on charges that he was concerned in an assault on nonunion men on April 24, when a mob of 100 men invaded a building under construction at 283 West Randolph street and attacked the workers.

WASHINGTON.—By a vote of 225 to 35 the house passed a bill providing for the construction of a Nicaraguan canal. Party lines were entirely eliminated in the voting. Every effort to retain in the bill the original stipulation for fortification of the canal was defeated.

CHICAGO. — Admiral Dewey sailed down the drainage canal main to Lockport, viewed the bearing dam and returned. The Dewey anniversary exercises closed with a military program at Central Music hall.

LONDON.—The Boers claim a great victory at Warrenton, including the capture of 2,000 British.

BERLIN. — The German meat bill compromise is not so favorable as at first reported. The importation of canned meat and sausages is forbidden outright and until Dec. 31, 1903, fresh meat will be admitted only in whole carcasses.

CHICAGO.—The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church granted to the laity representation equal to that of the clergy and seated 105 provisional delegates who came to the conference anticipating such action. The question has been before the church for years and the constitution was amended to permit the lay representation. It was intimated last night that the conference will retire five bishops. They are: S. M. Ferrill, for old age; C. D. Foss, for ill health; E. G. Andrews, for old age; J. M. Walden, for old age; J. M. Hurst, that he may give all his time to the National university at Washington.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 3, 1915.

LONDON.—A German submarine torpedoes the American ship Gulflight, causing the deaths of three of its crew. When attacked the Gulflight was flying the United States flag. This makes the toll of six vessels in two days' submarine warfare. The British destroyer Recruit and two German torpedo boats were sunk during a sharp engagement in the North sea; the Europe, a French steamer, was torpedoed near Bishop's Rock, and the Fulgent, a British steamer, was sunk off Skellig Rocks.

PARIS.—The French have established long range guns at Pont-a-Mousson and are bombarding the southern fortifications of Metz, ten miles away.

LONDON.—In the official German statement covering activities on the Russian front it is asserted that the Russians are in full retreat from the region of the southwest of Mitau, capital of Courland.

CHICAGO.—One hundred saloons have gone out of business in Chicago during the last week. High rents poor trade, heavy expense for free lunch, and the fear that the city may go dry before five years are said to be the combined cause.

CHICAGO.—Col. and Mrs. Taylor E. Brown, 5210 Kenwood avenue, issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Jessie Imogene, to Dr. Hadleigh Marsh of Washington, D. C., at St. Paul's Episcopal church on May 12.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. — President Wilson became godfather to his grandson here and added to his duties by promising to safeguard the religious welfare of the child, Francis Woodrow Sayre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre.

HAS CIVILIZATION BROKEN DOWN?

Milwaukee, Wis., April 27.—Bully for you. Your editorial, "Has Civilization Broken Down in this Community?" is considerable of a sermon. What Chicago needs is a good old-fashioned vigilance committee. Heaven knows, it is hard enough to catch the thugs these days, but after they are caught the criminal lawyer pries 'em loose. To my mind, they are just as much a part of the vicious circle as the murderers but they form a much easier link to burst.

W. C. H.

IN KANSAS.

Chicago, April 26.—Apropos of your editorial "Crime and Prohibition" and in support of your attitude, permit me to relate an incident which happened in Kansas. My brother, an Episcopal minister, visiting some friend there had exhausted his favorite brand of cigarets, and going into a drug store asked the proprietor if he would sell him a half dozen packages. "Cigarets!" the owner replied in horror, "why I don't sell them and I could have you arrested for asking for them." My brother resented such a ridiculous and contemptible law, but I presume, according to the reasoning of the editor of the Gazette, my brother's opposition to the law would lead him to oppose the laws against murder, etc.

I am a total abstainer from liquor and tobacco, but your position on prohibition meets the approval of millions of the best citizens of the good old U. S. A.

J. B. Hall.

SIMILARITY IN OFFENSES.

Chicago, April 26.—Let no one insist that prohibitory laws are responsible for moonshine and bootlegging. Neither has it increased crime. The law breaker is responsible for the rapid increase of crime. And too, our "liquor" prohibitory laws are just about as well enforced as are our "murder" and "stealing" prohibitory laws. What American citizen would be so bold as to publicly advocate the repeal or modification of our prohibitory laws against killing and stealing, to allow a certain percent of murder and theft, because such laws do not wholly prevent crime?

The Tribune holds that our laws against killing and stealing can be enforced, if all proper officials will get behind them. Even so with other prohibitory laws. The only element not solidly back of any prohibitory law is the man who expects to break the law.

Pure water is best and cheapest anyway. There are many other mild and wholesome beverages which never rob man of his reason. Why defend "booze"?

Stemple White.

CONGRATULATING DARROW.

Highland Park, Ill., April 27.—It seems from the "Inquiring Reporter" that people in general are condemning Clarence Darrow, hence criminal lawyers in general, for their efforts to save criminals from the gallows. While on the face of things a lawyer is trying to defeat justice, does it not seem reasonable that a man tried for murder should have some assistance during his trial? Certainly every man or woman tried for murder is not guilty, and were it not for the earnest endeavors of our criminal lawyers the majority of these innocent people would be convicted. And say the man has committed the crime of which he is charged. Every man, according to the law of the constitution, is entitled to a fair trial before a jury, and, in my opinion, a trial is not a fair trial unless the defendant has some defense. Some one, then, has to defend the criminal, and surely, as it is so contained in the constitution, such an occupation is highly honorable. Clarence Darrow is not to be condemned; he is to be congratulated upon the success with which he follows his calling.

William S. Forrest Jr.

APPETITES, PLEASURES AND DEBAUCHES.

Chicago, April 26.—To argue that prohibition is responsible for the crime wave is to assert that free alcohol would do away with police and courts. It is like the old woman whose goose-oil and red-flannel was a cure for all ills. Old women and law-breaking lawyers concern themselves very little with facts, causes and remedies. The reasons for crime are palpably elsewhere than in prohibition of liquor traffic; but the old woman is not looking for "elsewheres," the goose-oil cure-all and red-flannel jag remain infallible.

No doubt prohibition needs the support of all decency, and of all pretended decency. No doubt we have a large minority of citizens who value their appetites, pleasures and debauches, their narrow mental obsessions, their save-face determination to be always right and never wrong in their open-mouthed philosophies, more than they do any public good. But to charge crime responsibility to prohibition, even in disgraceful Chicago—which always was a crime-ridden hell—is to deny all compensations and the entirely obvious truth otherwise.

Why not take a look in another direction and prove that it is quite logical and probable that without liquor prohibition crime in the United States would have been quadruple what it is.

A. MacDonald.

REDISTRICTING THE STATE.

Mattoon, Ill., April 25.—The Tribune has accused certain state legislators of violating their oaths of office to uphold the state constitution. Would it not be nearer the truth to say that The Tribune has challenged the construction placed upon the state constitution by Illinois legislators?

The state constitution provides that the legislature shall redistrict the state every ten years, but does not, and cannot, provide that legislators must vote "Yes" on all reapportionment measures that may come before the legislature.

The Tribune's construction, if enforced, would make the people and their representatives slaves. The Tribune's construction seems to be that legislators have no choice in the matter, but must vote for any reapportionment measure coming up for passage.

The state legislature does not agree with this construction. The senators and representatives have their rights under the same constitution, and among these rights is the right to exercise a conscientious vote on anything and everything that comes before them.

The only thing to do now is to get the question of construction of our constitution before the state Supreme court. Our feelings in the matter will not settle anything.

Edward F. Poorman.

SOME ONE SHOT A POLICEMAN.

Chicago, April 20.—Last night, as I strolled past the Robert Burns hospital, a sweet young thing queried, "What is all the crowd here for?" and her gallant escort replied, "Some one shot a policeman, that's all."

Ye gods! "A policeman, that's all!" That is the reward of Danny Ryan—a trip to the valley of death in the attempt to protect the property of the people.

May the day come soon when "some one shot a policeman" will be a warning to every law breaker to hunt his hole and stay there with bated breath till the guilty one is found.

Signs of the times:

"Some one shot a policeman, that's all."

Cronies of Capt. Louis Ropke, whose ship, it is said, ran aground at 51st street in 1892, and whose heirs now seek title to an acre of land there under squatter's rights, took the stand before Circuit Judge Ira D. Ryner Friday.

Frank J. Daggett, a junior cribmaster, told how Ropke's vessel, the Volunteer, ran aground at 51st street, and how the captain settled there then with his family.

Capt. John Wagner, 841 East 47th street, also said he had visited Ropke's water front home.

A. A. BOYDEN OF MAGAZINE FAME DIES IN NEW YORK

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Albert A. Boyden, 50, formerly managing editor of McClure's Magazine and the American Magazine, died tonight. Death was due to pernicious anaemia, but Mr. Boyden had not been in good health since his service in France during the war.

Mr. Boyden was born in Sheffield, Ill., a son of Albert Woodbury Boyden, who was prominent in the Congregational denomination and in Illinois politics. Shortly after his graduation from Harvard in 1898 he became connected with McClure's Magazine in its early years, and from 1903 to 1906 was its managing director.

With John S. Phillips, Miss Ida M. Tarbell, Ray Stannard Baker and others he had part in establishing the American Magazine, of which he was managing editor from 1906 to 1917.

PEORIA TRACTOR CONCERN MERGED IN CORPORATION

New Company to Produce 5,000 Machines Year.

Peoria, Ill., May 2.—Announcement will be made tomorrow in the Peoria Journal-Transcript that the Holt Manufacturing company with plants at Peoria and Stockton, Cal., and the C. L. Best Tractor company, manufacturers of track layer tractors at San Leandro, Cal., have each been purchased in their entirety by the Caterpillar Tractor company, a new corporation organized under the laws of California with a capital stock of $12,500,000.

Baker Makes Announcement.

Announcement of this transaction is made by Murray M. Baker, vice president and manager of the Holt Peoria plant. A few weeks ago announcement was made that the controlling stock interests in the Holt company had been purchased by a group comprising members of the firm of Pierce Fair & Co. of San Francisco, members of the Holt family, and Murry M. Baker of Peoria.

Since that time negotiations were under way toward amalgamation of the Holt and Best companies into a third company. Their plans now have culminated in the formation of the largest manufacturing organization in the world devoted exclusively to the production of tractors of sizes applicable to all phases of industrial and agricultural purposes, according to Mr. Baker.

5,000 Tractors a Year.

The new company expects to continue the manufacture of both Holt and Best model tractors. The Peoria Holt plant, occupying forty acres of land, of which fourteen acres are under roof, with a capacity of 5,000 caterpillar tractors a year, is the largest of its kind in the world. This plant will continue at maximum production, according to the announcement.

For the last several months sales have been considerably in excess of factory output and the prospects are that the heavy sales will continue, Mr. Baker said.

MUNICIPAL VOTE IN FRANCE STIRS GREAT INTEREST

PARIS, May 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—The municipal elections to be held throughout France tomorrow will attract greater interest than is cusomary, as they are exected to be an expression as to whether the country, which had undergone a change in political mind since the legislative elections of May, 1924, still favors the left group or has been won over by the more conservative element.

Discontent over the administration of the late Herriot government appears to be far-reaching, but the Painleve-Briand-Caillaux cabinet, whose declaration has been much more moderate than the original left group's policy, is likely to interpret as success whatever turn the elections take, providing it is not too far either to the right or to the left.

However, the indications are that both the extreme groups will gain in tomorrow's elections to the detriment of the center party.

WHEN WILL THEY INVESTIGATE CASKET PRICES?

"If manufacturers of furniture ought to be punished for demanding unreasonable profits on their products, what should be done to those who constantly mulct the public for still more excessive profits on burial caskets?" is the question many readers are asking since reading the news story in a last Sunday's newspaper.

Unfortunately, the men who have extorted millions of dollars in excess profits for burial caskets from the people of this city are beyond the reach of the federal government and its anti-trust laws.

The fact is, manufacturers of burial caskets sell their goods at prices that are not unreasonable and no funeral director pays any more than another for the same casket.

It is the dishonest undertaker himself who is guilty—who victimizes the casket purchaser by adding from 200 to 400 per cent, and even more, to the price charged him by the manufacturer or wholesale dealer.

An investigation of this evil by the city council or the state legislature might reveal that there is no law by which they can be punished or even stopped in their nefarious practices. But it would let in a lot of air and light that could not fail to bring action on the part of honest people—a buyers' strike that would quickly rid the city of these sons of greed.

Do what you can to help force this sorely needed reform and to protect the poor and distressed. Let no friends of yours throw away from $100 to $500 on a funeral bill simply because he has not heard that he can obtain burial caskets at honest prices from Skeeles-Biddle, prices often 50 per cent less than others charge for the same qualities. Moreover, our own large stock affords the widest possible range of selection, from $25.00 upward.

Urge him or her to visit either of our two beautiful memorial chapels and to ask questions freely concerning our 40 years' experience, our high-class equipment and service, our luxurious limousines and the new, superb Skeeles-Biddle funeral coach, the successor of the old-style hearse.

CASKETS as low as $25

A telephone call involves no obligations and will instantly bring a member of our firm to any part of Chicago or suburbs.

The finest boiler engineering skill can produce

Long back-and-forth fire travel over Heating Surfaces corrugated like this ∿∿∿ instead of straight like this ———

Round Type Boiler

For steam, vapor, vacuum and hot water heating; made in sizes for bungalows, residences and small apartments.

Sizes for Oil Burners

The quick, intense heat produced by modern oil burners demands in a boiler a great amount of concentrated heat-absorbing surface and a long fire travel. You get all this in Weil-McLain Boilers. The "5 section" and the "6 section" sizes of round-type boilers and the longer sizes of square-type boilers are most suitable for use with oil burners.

The Weil-McLain Boiler, through performance records of the most unusual sort, has firmly established its position in the heating industry. Probably never before has there been a boiler in which the two great factors of costly fuel waste are so completely conquered. It is the finest boiler that money, experience and engineering skill can produce.

Two wastes ended

Even a ten-minute inspection of the Weil-McLain Boiler will convince you of the unusual advancements which have been made over earlier boiler practice.

You will learn, for example, how in this boiler costly wastes, both DOWN INTO THE ASH PIT and UP THE CHIMNEY, have been ended.

Scientific combustion

Weil-McLain engineers claim in all sincerity that they have achieved in this boiler truly scientific combustion.

They mean by this that the fuel is completely burned—that costly waste DOWN INTO THE ASH PIT is practically a thing of the past.

Scientific combustion means complete burning of the fuel. It means a bright-burning fire that burns clean and a long-lasting fire that does not require frequent attention. It means a fire that prevents most clinkers and one that ends waste of valuable, unburned fuel DOWN into the ash pit.

Scientific combustion, as achieved in Weil-McLain Boilers, is an improvement of the most important and practical character.

Corrugated heating surfaces

No less important is the Weil-McLain scientific application of thermal formulae to the problem of overcoming waste of valuable heat units UP THE CHIMNEY.

One step in this accomplishment is the Weil-McLain corrugated "double surface" crown sheet section, directly above the fire, and the corrugation of all other vital heating surfaces.

In this new corrugated design the soundest, yet most elementary engineering principles are rigidly adhered to. The heating surfaces in every section are corrugated like this ∿∿∿, instead of straight like this ———, giving an increased area of heating surface and making possible greater heat absorption.

Of particular value is the corrugated design of the crown sheet section. The simple candle test shows that this heating surface, because directly above the fire, is the most valuable heating surface in any boiler.

By "doubling" the heating surface at this important point—and by corrugating the vital heating surface in all other sections—Weil-McLain heating efficiency is greatly increased.

"Back-and-forth" fire travel

Another step in ending waste up the chimney is Weil-McLain long "back-and-forth" fire travel. This is a tried and proved engineering principle, but applied in a different way that produces unusual results.

Note in the illustration how this feature forces the hot gases to travel backward and forward between the corrugated heating surfaces. There are no wasteful short cuts to the chimney. The hot gases, due to being held longer in contact with the corrugated heating surfaces, are forced to yield up every available heat unit.

Not only scientific and engineering men, but every home owner will understand the far-reaching benefits offered by this boiler advancement.

Other modern features

There are many other features that explain what Weil-McLain engineers did when they turned forward, many years, the home heating calendar. Among them are:

—Triangular grates which crush out stubborn clinkers.
—Lower one-third of firepot smooth and non-clogging, so fire shakes down easily and clean.
—Large fire and slicing doors for your convenience.
—Handy front clean-out doors in each section.
—And more heat from less fuel with oil, or any other kind of fuel or any method of firing.

WORLD TITLE RODEO TO LIMN FRONTIER HERE

Spectacle to Open in Stadium Aug. 15.

The well known star of empire, which westward took its way, is streaking eastward for a return engagement. With it another world's championship event will come to Chicago—a national roundup and rodeo.

Announcement that this spectacle of the far west will be enacted in the Grant Park stadium for nine days, beginning Aug. 15, was made yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce. The tournaments which have made Cheyenne and Pendleton the annual goal of thousands of tourists, but magnified into a great frontier pageant, will bring the atmosphere of range and border to the lake front. America hitherto has had two rodeos. Hereafter there will be three, and plans are laid to make Chicago's event the greatest of all.

Profits for Chicago Trade.

Under the supervision of the domestic and foreign commerce committee of the association, the roundup is the initial step in a campaign to impress Chicago on the national mind as the world's commercial and recreation center. The event will be financed solely by the association and any profits will be devoted to stimulation of interest in Chicago's markets.

The daredevil feats which have thrilled thousands at the Wyoming and Oregon meets will be enacted here by the same buckaroos, "bulldoggers," cowgirls, and "outlaw" horses which have perpetuated the days when Greeley advised the parlor athletes of the east to trek westward. Old championship rivalries will be fought out on the hurricane decks of "bad" bronchos and the necks of longhorns.

Cash prizes totaling $30,000 have been offered by the association to preserve the spirit of contest and rules of sportmanship which have made the rodeo a typical American sport.

Chicago's roundup is in no way to be a "wild west show" with paid performers, members of the committee pointed out. "Tex" Austin, an oldtime cow man whose rodeo at Wembley, England, drew an attendance of more than a million, will manage the Grant park roundup and direct the competitions.

Cheyenne Riders Enter.

A trainload of steers and another of the west's wildest "outlaw" horses will arrive in Chicago shortly before the rodeo opens. Austin is now in Las Vegas, "cutting out" the strongest and wildest steers from a large herd there. Entries already have been received from the "busters" and "bulldoggers" who will compete at Cheyenne in July, and a challenge has gone to Canada, Mexico, Argentina and Australia.

Riding on "outlaws" which have "sunfished" and "crossbucked" many a rodeo aspirant into the dust and fence pickets of the arena, will be one of the biggest events of the rodeo. Champion "bulldoggers" whose conquests over longhorns are figured in seconds will compete and be judged on their average of daily time. Women riders from the great open spaces where a girl is a girl will "bust" bronchos and do stunt riding, and there will be steer and calf roping contests and relay races.

BREAKS GROUND FOR ADDITION TO Y. M. C. A. SCHOOL

Andrew Dole, one of the trustees of the Y. M. C. A. college at 53d street and Drexel avenue, the donor of $250,000 for the erection of an addition to the college, turned the first spade of earth yesterday afternoon for the new building.

Mr. Dole said the gift afforded himself and Mrs. Dole great pleasure and expressed the hope that the new residential hall would help many young men to train themselves for usefulness in Y. M. C. A. work.

Others who participated were Charles H. Herrick, president of the board; J. F. Hutton, Dr. Frank H. Burt, president of the Y. M. C. A. college, and Thomas Pogue, who represented the graduating class of the college. Dr. A. W. Palmer, pastor of the First Congregational church, Oak Park, spoke on the need of Christian leadership, and Dr. Ralph M. Davis, led in prayer.

MRS. KOCUREK'S PARENTS HERE TO SEEK DAUGHTER

Victor Matalonis and his wife arrived in Chicago from their home in Ecorse, Mich., yesterday in the hope that their presence here might lead their married daughter, Mrs. Anna Kocurek, who, for a time was believed to be the Budlong Golf links' torso victim, to return home. Upon their arrival they went to the detective bureau, and conferred with Policewoman Lulu Burt, who has been conducting a search for the missing woman. After the conference it was learned that the policewoman had located several persons who had declared they had seen Mrs. Kocurek alive as late as March 22.

Louis Swift Jr. Takes Job in Father's Omaha Plant

Omaha, Neb., May 2.—[Special.]—Louis Swift, Jr., age 32, son of the millionaire president of Swift & Co., has donned white overalls and gone to work in the South Omaha plant of Swift & Co., as a day laborer. He says he wants the practical experience of doing actual work in the different departments of the big plant.

ITALY CREATES MINISTRY TO RUN AIR SERVICE

ROME, May 2.—[By Associated Press.]—Creation of an aeronautical ministry in the Italian cabinet was announced at today's cabinet meeting. The commissiariat of aviation will continue to exercise its functions pending the constitution of the new ministry by formal action of the throne.

A report that the famous Villa Deste at Tivoli will be used as a summer residence of Premier Mussolini and the entire staffs of his three cabinet officers—premier, foreign minister and war minister—is published prominently in the Epoca today. The premier, it is said, will move into the beautiful villa in June, remaining there until the end of the warm weather. Its use will give the premier the benefits of a country home while not preventing him from attending to his many official duties, Tivoli being within three-quarters of an hour of Rome. The villa will be provided with special telegraph, telephone and wireless service, with special provisions for fast railway and motor car service between Tivoli and Rome.

SPEED UP PLANS FOR NAVAL PART IN DASH TO POLE

Flyers Assigned to Jobs of Getting All Ready.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—With all the naval personnel who will take part in the exploration of the Arctic basin by aircraft this summer assembled and assigned to specific duties, preparations for the expedition are progressing swiftly.

The assembling of equipment and the formulation of plans has been directed by Lieutenant Commander R. E. Byrd, U. S. N. The naval members of the expedition have been detailed to various points in connection with the preparation of supplies and equipment and the work of completing the airplanes to be used.

Chief Boatswain E. E. Reber, U. S. N., has been designated as assembly and construction officer of the flight detail and has been sent to the navy yard, Philadelphia, where all material will be assembled.

Schur Is Engineer Officer.

Lieut. M. A. Schur, U. S. N., has been engaged as enegineer officer of the fleet division.

Lieutenant Commander Byrd is giving particular attention to the aerial navigation features. He was assigned to this phase of preparation for the trans-Atlantic flight in 1919, and at that time developed a sextant for use in aircraft navigation which has been standard equipment in aviation units in the navy for the last six years. The Byrd sextant, as it has been named, makes use of a bubble to supply an artificial horizon. It may therefore be used to take sights of the sun from aircraft at any altitude and is independent of the existence of a natural horizon.

Nothing Is Overlooked.

When the airplanes leave their northern bases they will be the most completely equipped and self-sustaining aircraft that ever set out on a mission. Emergency rations in condensed form will sustain the flyers for thirty days away from their base. Some of the foodstuffs will be in such a form that two spoonsful will constitute a meal. Rifles and ammunition will also be carried for game.

It is expected that the Loening amphibian planes will be delivered at the aviation assembly point of the expedition within the first ten days in May. From the time of their delivery until the departure to join the MacMillan party the naval contingent will be exercised in practice flights.

EDITOR GUILTY OF LIBEL ARTICLE ON MAGNUS JOHNSON

Minneapolis, Minn., May 2.—A. N. Jacobs, campaign manager for Senator Thomas Schall in the last election, was today found guilty of criminal libel preferred by former Senator Magnus Johnson. The sealed verdict, returned by the jury last night after 11 hours' deliberation, was opened by Judge Frank M. Nye today.

The trial of Jacobs was the result of an article entitled "Magnus Johnson Steps Out," published in Scandal—The Naked Truth, an organ which appeared once during the campaign. Jacobs was charged with having libeled the former senator by accusing him of having been convicted of drunkenness in Municipal court.

Judge Nye granted a ten day stay of sentence, allowing the defense opportunity to prepare an appeal for a new trial.

Baby Is Great-Grandson of 2 Cabinet Members

New York, May 2.—The son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chipman Payson, whose birth on Thursday was announced today, is the great-grandson of two former cabinet members. The child is a great-grandson of the late Secretary of State John Hay and his paternal great-grandfather was William C. Whitney, secretary of the navy in President Cleveland's cabinet.

CONVICT PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO KIDNAP CHARGE

Middlebury, Vt., May 2.—[United Press.]—Earl Woodward, former convict, charged with kidnaping 11 year old Lucille Chatterton of Granville, today pleaded not guilty to a formal charge of kidnaping.

He was held in $10,000 bond, which he could not meet and was remanded to the county jail for a hearing May 13.

Lucille Chatteron, who was placed in the home of a deputy sheriff here yesterday, was expected to enter school for the rest of the spring term.

Public sympathy, which two days ago was overwhelmingly with Lucille's father in his declaration that he proposed to shoot Woodward on sight, today was plainly swinging towards Woodward. The girl's story of her fear for her father and Woodward's charges that Lucille was badly treated at home, were gaining attention.

Today there seemed to be no show of enmity towards the man who, up to the moment of his capture, posses planned to shoot, and on whose head a $250 price had been placed—dead or alive.

FOUR DIE ON TEXAS CROSSING.

Hallsville, Tex., May 2.—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kilpatrick; their son, George, 35; and the latter's daughter, 12, were killed here today when their automobile was hit by a Texas and Pacific passenger train.

ICE CREAM WAGON DRIVERS SETTLE ROW OVER WAGES

Ice cream deliveries were resumed yesterday after officials of the ice cream wagon drivers' union accepted a compromise wage offer from the manufacturers and ordered the 350 striking wagon drivers and chauffeurs back to work.

The walkout or lockout of drivers occurred Friday morning when the officials of the wagon drivers' organization and employers deadlocked at a conference over the renewal of a new wage agreement for this year. Last year the drivers enjoyed a few days off during a strike similar to the one called last week. While both sides were reluctant to discuss the compromise offer of the employers, it was intimated that the new wage pact didn't vary much from the old agreement. The one day off in seven demand of the union was refused, it was said, but the manufacturers granted a few other concessions.

For many years ice cream wagon drivers have been classed as "aristocrats" by other teamsters and chauffeurs because many of them receive salaries ranging upward to $200, and in a few cases $250, a week in the very hot weather season. The new agreement will be effective for a year.

3 CHICAGO YEGGS STAGE WILD BANK RAID IN TOLEDO

Toledo, Ohio, May 2.—Less than an hour after they had robbed the East Side branch of the Ohio Savings Bank and Trust company of about $15,000 three youthful bandits, who gave their home address as Chicago, were captured after a thrilling chase.

According to their confession, George Mingione, 19; William Hartley, 18; and his brother, Robert, 19, they threw a brick through a store window early in the morning and obtained four revolvers.

Commandeering the automobile of Charles Huber, they made their way to the bank, leaving Huber tied to a tree. The latter, however, unloosed himself and notified police. The bank's burglar alarm in the police station started the chase.

Followed a wild flight through the crowded streets, an altercation with a traffic policeman and abandonment of their machine at an open drawbridge. Taking to their heels the bandits hailed a passing motor truck and then another automobile, but turning a downtown corner they encountered the police and smashed a wheel. A short pistol fight and the boys surrendered.

PASSENGER ROBS TAXI DRIVER.

Edward Ege, 2244 Cleveland avenue, a taxi driver, was robbed of $14 early yesterday by a colored passenger.

OPEN DIAGNOSTIC LABORATORY AT ST. LUKE'S MAY 15

St. Luke's hospital on May 15 will open one of the largest and most completely equipped diagnostic laboratories in the world, it was announced yesterday by Louis R. Curtis, the vice president. It will be on the eighteenth floor of the new nineteen story addition to the hospital, occupying thirty-three rooms and a floor space of 10,000 feet. It is a memorial to the late Dr. Henry Baird Favill.

The announcement says friends of St. Luke's have provided the funds for the establishment of the new laboratory. A large staff of experienced pathological and clinical technicians will conduct the work and a distinct advance in the conquest and treatment of disease is expected as a result.

Dr. Hirsch in Charge.

Dr. Edwin F. Hirsch, who had been connected with the hospital for many years, will be in charge of the laboratory. Dr. E. R. Le Count, professor of pathology at Rush Medical college of the University of Chicago, will be his consultant and adviser.

"The new laboratory," said Mr. Curtis in his announcement, "will have practically unlimited capacity for diagnostic work. Special examination rooms equipped with the most modern apparatus will be a feature. The personnel will include specialists in many branches.

"We will have unexcelled facilities for making clinical, bacteriological and serological and chemical tests as well as the microscopic examinations of tissues.

Expensive Research Planned.

"Certain problems in medicine will be extensively investigated with the hope that new facts concerning prevention, treatment, and cure may be learned and new methods developed. Development of this branch has been accomplished under two fellowships—one in memory of John J. Borland, established by Mrs. Borland; the other in memory of Seymour Coman, through the chemistry department of the University of Chicago. Still another fund is in memory of Winfield Peck."

SHOPKEEPER IS BANDIT VICTIM.

Samuel Molpus, 5258 Indiana avenue, manager of a Consumers' sanitary coffee and butter store at that address, was robbed of $205 last night by three armed men.

DESERTED

MRS. MYRON H. SPADES.

LEFT HOME FOR NO REASON, WIFE ASSERTS IN SUIT

For no particular reason, Myron H. Spades left his home at 221 East Walton place, and took up a separate residence in the Parkway hotel, it was declared yesterday by his wife, the former Marguerite Curtis, when she appeared before Superior Judge Joseph Sabath.

Mrs. Spades was granted, upon the plea of her attorney, Charles E. Erbstein, separate maintenance of $700 monthly for the support of herself and her two daughters, Blanche, 4, and Mary Ann, 2.

According to the testimony Spades is a real estate operator, owning property worth $300,000, and soon to come into a two-thirds share of the $2,000,000 estate of his father, the late Michael H. Spades.

JAIL SINGER FOR FLOGGING FATHER OF KNICKER GIRL

Shreveport, La., May 2.—[United Press.]—W. Conrad Oliver, young church choir director of Cedar Grove, was in jail today after being found guilty last night of participation in the flogging of John Barker, 53, who was beaten because he permitted his 16 year old daughter, Jewell, to wear knickers and ride a bicycle.

Five men were arrested in connection with the flogging. One was acquitted and the other three are awaiting trial.

Testimony at Oliver's trial showed the villagers became incensed when Barker's daughter appeared in boyish togs riding a bicycle, which she had been ordered to do by a physician because of her delicate health.

Oliver will be sentenced later. The penalty is one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Ten O'Clock Friends N. G., Judge Tells This Husband

Add to the philosophy of the sages of the ages that expounded yesterday by Judge William L. Morgan in the domestic relations court. In imposing a two month curfew law on William Riordan, 3152 Wallace street, who said he stayed out lake at night because he needed to make business friends, Judge Morgan said succinctly that "friends made after 10 p. m. are not worth anything anyhow." So Riordan must go home to his wife and children before the 10 o'clock curfew time for the next two months.

Harold F. McCormick Sails Abroad on Majestic

New York, May 2.—Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, sailed for Europe today on the steamship Majestic. He said he would spend a few weeks on the continent. When asked if he would see Ganna Walska, his wife, now in Europe, he said, "I would rather not talk of that."

Among other Chicagoans aboard the Majestic were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Whiting, on their honeymoon; Mrs. Marshall Field Sr., Honore Palmer, and Potter d'Orsay Palmer.

ADDRESS Y T 137, TRIBUNE

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

Humidified Air

Like the lighthouse on the rocky sea coast—alert sentinel of safety—watchful guardian of human welfare, so is your Round Oak Furnace guardian of health and comfort in your winter home. It takes constant performance to establish dependability. Round Oak products have been serving the public for more than half a century.

Circulating Warmth Fresh as Summer Sea Breezes

Humidified air—pure, fresh, healthful—the kind that brings folks to the sea shore in summertime, to Florida and California in wintertime, is exactly the same kind of air you breathe in the home heated with a Round Oak Furnace.

Here is the heating system that not only circulates warmth through the home but humidifies—properly moistens—the air as well. Automatically—every hour through day and night. More colds and other health troubles are caused from lack of sufficient moisture and ventilation in heated winter homes than through any other cause.

In selecting your new heating plant this spring, look carefully into this question of moisture. Not only for health but for fuel economy. You know how in summer the heat is more noticeable when there is "humidity" in the air. Moisture makes the heat units register more warmth. Why not apply this natural fact to your winter heating?

Here is one of the big advantages in the experience of ROUND OAK engineers. They know exactly how to get this "humidity" as well as warmth into the air you breathe. A temperature of 68 degrees of moist air is as warm as a dry heat of 75 degrees. ROUND OAK experience enables you to raise the temperature by humidity instead of by extra fuel.

Also Adapted for Burning Oil Fuel

The extra long heating flues—the long fire travel, and bolted air tight hand fitted joints also make ROUND OAK Furnaces ideally adapted for burning oil fuel.

Another thing—air is not "fresh" unless it circulates. ROUND OAK experience has taught how to keep the air moving and fresh as well as warm.

This perfect heating arrangement—correctly installed—will give the air of your home that moisture which it must have or it will drink from you, from your furniture, from your walls.

Guaranteed Installation

The high standards of ROUND OAK efficiency—both in manufacture and sale—insure satisfactory service. Every ROUND OAK HEATING SYSTEM is designed to suit the special requirements of the home. It is installed by ROUND OAK Service Men trained to do the work quickly and well. And when your installation is made according to our specifications we guaranteed the entire installation.

Time payments gladly arranged. The low cost of ROUND OAK HEATING SYSTEMS is within the reach of every home owner.

See your nearest ROUND OAK Representative and write us for our new booklet "Health and Humidity." Gladly sent free upon request.

U. S. FLEET'S TRIP CALLED MENACE TO JAPS' SAFETY

Conservative Press of Tokio Sounds Warning.

[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, May 2.—A great menace to Japan is seen in the visit of the American fleet to Australia by Chugai Shogyo, the conservative business men's paper, while the Tokio Kokumin, another conservative paper, sees in the naval maneuvers around Hawaii a secret training of American seamen for an attack on Japan.

Following the government's announcement it saw no menace in the American operations, the reliable press for the most part abandoned the attacks. Today's Chugai, however, says:

"The American naval maneuver plan is too boldly provocative against Japan. The powers have been accustomed to conduct maneuvers on the assumption of repulsing an invading enemy fleet in their own territorial waters with limited plans which did not menace other powers. The American plan, however, extends over nine months and covers a vast area of the Pacific around Hawaii.

Scents Secret Purpose.

"Moreover, the fleet will visit Australia for the secret purpose of conducting further maneuvers in conjunction with the Australian fleet. The visit of the American fleet to Australia is a great menace to the safety of this nation. A dispatch from America states that as a result of the maneuvers further fortifications in Hawaii are to be recommended to congress.

"Judging from this, America doubtlessly projects disturbing the peace of the Pacific by strengthening her forts. The fortification of Hawaii may justly be taken as an indication of the Americans' ill-will toward Japan."

Kokumin calls attention to the ambition of the Anglo-Saxon race to extend its influence in the east, saying Hawaii and Singapore afford bases of operation for this plan.

"The expectation that Washington treaties would be assurances of permanent peace has now proved a dream," Kokumin says. "Our nationals now realize the disarmament conference at Washington was a secret plot between two groups of Anglo-Saxons to weaken the fighting strength of the Japanese navy."

WARNING BY ITALY

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

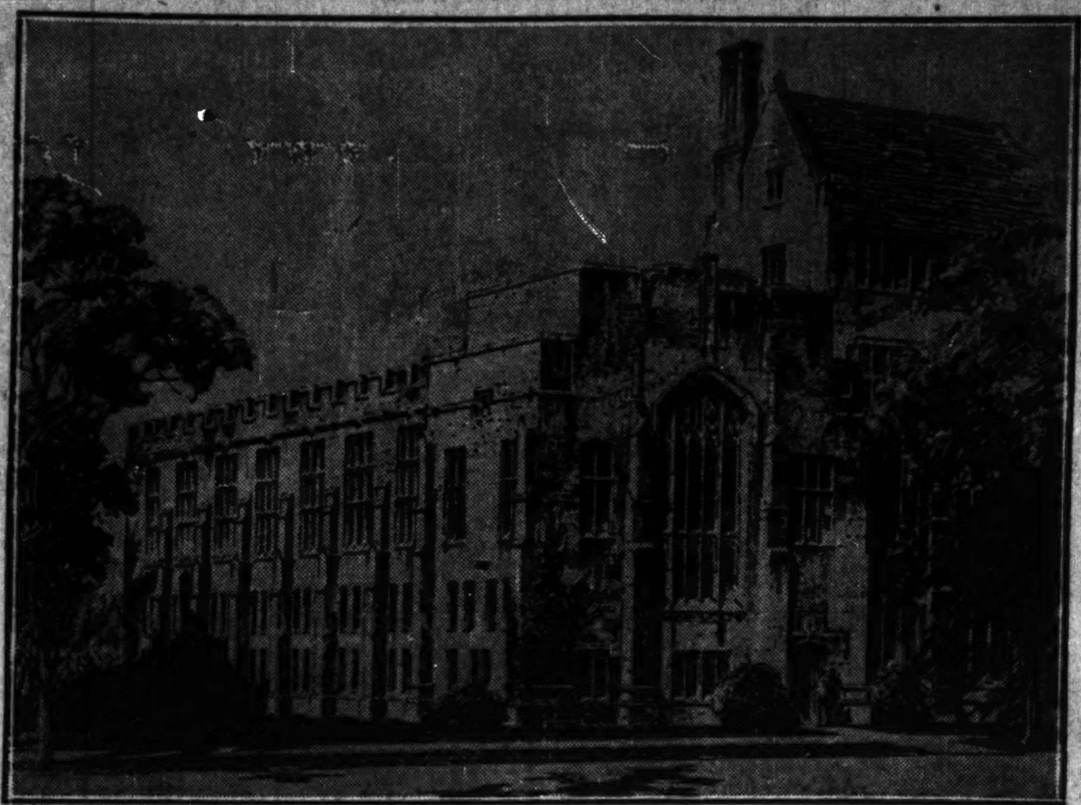
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, May 2.—The lively interest with which Europe has been watching the American maneuvers at Hawaii was emphasized today by Rome's leading newspaper, the government organ Messagero, which declares the Pacific ocean situation is much more serious than most European governments imagine.

The Messagero issues the warning that America is not so free of possible defeat as most European publics believe because an alliance of Japan, Russia and Germany is not outside possibilities and such an alliance would possess man power, a navy and material power equal to America's.

The Messagero calls attention to the rabid anti-American language in the Japanese press, giving examples from recent Tokio papers, and states the belief that these jingo attacks will lead sooner or later to war for the hegemony of the Pacific.

HOW GARY LIBRARY WILL APPEAR AT N. U.



Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the U. S. Steel corporation and an alumnus of the Northwestern university law school, has agreed to finance the construction of Gary library upon McKinlock Memorial campus of the university, Chicago avenue and Lake Shore drive. The library will be of Bedford stone and of modified Gothic architecture. James Gamble Rogers of New York and Childs & Smith, Chicago, are the architects.

UNIVERSITY WITH 450 STUDENTS TO ENCIRCLE GLOBE

New York, May 2.—A floating university which will combine a year's college study with a trip around the world will sail from New York next September with 450 college youths, selected from all parts of the country, it was announced today by New York university.

An 18,000 ton steamship will be campus, dormitories, classrooms, and laboratories for the unique student body for 240 days, during which five continents and fifty foreign ports will be visited.

CALL INDIANIANS FOR OPENING OF FURNITURE QUIZ

The government took its first steps in the broad investigation of the furniture industry to see whether the Sherman anti-trust laws have been violated and determine whether there has been a nation-wide conspiracy to maintain high prices, when summonses to appear before the federal grand jury were served on practically all the manufacturers in Evansville, Ind., and the surrounding territory.

A special grand jury has been called to make the investigation, and Roger Shale and William Benham, special attorneys general of the United States, are here from Washington to present the evidence. It is understood the fact that furniture prices have never been reduced since they were raised to their wartime peak is responsible for the inquiry.

More than 250 subpœnas duces tecum for the books of manufacturers and dealers have been issued by Federal Judge Carpenter. Government officials, it is understood, are determined to find out why furniture prices have not gone down along with the prices of almost every other article.

BRITAIN FACING FIGHT AT HOME TO KEEP GOLD BASIS

See Nation at Mercy of American Bankers.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 2.—Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, is going to have to fight for his budget which has aroused fierce hostility in certain quarters.

Ostensibly the chief fight is being made on the new insurance features, for the reason that they offer an opportunity to use startling figures, but the real fight is against the return to the gold standard, which is bitterly opposed by speculators, manufacturers, and traders who are operating on borrowed money and who fear it will be necessary to raise the bank rate in order to safeguard the gold reserve.

Already much play has been made over the fact that more than £800,000 ($4,000,000) in gold has been withdrawn from the Bank of England for export since the lifting of the embargo on Tuesday and it is feared the bank rate may be raised next week in order to check the outward flow of gold.

Opposed by Various Factions.

The opposition to Mr. Churchill consists of a strange composite. Of course the Liberals oppose the budget on principle, basing their chief objection to it on the restoration of the McKenna duties which attack their sacred shibboleth of free trade. The Laborites are concentrating their attack on the insurance scheme on the ground that funds to support it are raised by a tax of four pence [eight cents] each week from each man employed and a similar sum from the employer.

The die hard Tories are lined up against the gold standard on the excuse that it will place England at the mercy of the American bankers and they are against the insurance on the ground that it will constitute a new burden for British industry which will be too heavy to bear.

Figures are being published by various trade associations, designed to show that the new insurance tax will drive many industries into bankruptcy. For instance, take the case of the Durham coal field. Last year the joint profit of all the pits was only £6,000 [$30,000]. There are 353,000 employés in this field. The employers' contribution under the insurance scheme therefore would be £130,000 [$650,000] annually. It is asserted this would compel the closing of the pits.

Show Costs to Industries.

A series of figures produced by the Federation of British Industries show the following costs of the plan to various industries, taking both the workers' and employers' contributions: mining, £1,600,000 [$8,500,000] annually; railways, £1,100,000 [$5,500,000]; agriculture, £2,660,000 [$13,300,000]; engineering, shipbuilding, etc., £3,456,000 [$17,280,000]; textiles, £1,114,000 [$5,570,000]; wood working, £1,044,000 [$5,220,000], and printing trades, £322,000 [$1,510,000].

These figures are being broadcasted throughout the country in an effort to arouse employers against the whole budget, while the Socialists are making a similar campaign on the ground that a noncontributory scheme is what is wanted. Little is said about the gold standard because it is realized that this would not appeal to the middle class and the working class, who are not only proud of England meeting her obligations, but hope for lower prices to result from the pound being at parity with the dollar.

Mr. Churchill is one of the best fighters in British politics and an intensely interesting battle is foreseen. He has won over a majority of the cabinet to his side, but it is expected that the bill will be subject to some modifications.

HOTEL CLERK IS ROBBED.

Lyle Dalton, clerk in the Walton hotel, 1019 North Dearborn street, was forced to hand over $87 to an armed robber last night.

By Any Test, On Any Road—

ELCAR IN-LINE

RECENTLY a man came into an ELCAR showroom, announced himself as a prospective buyer, and issued a challenge.

"You have claimed", he said, "that your Eight-in-Line models compare favorably in specifications with two other eights, one of which costs hundreds of dollars and the other thousands more than your car, and that consequently ELCAR is the best value of the three, and the car to buy. I agree that the specifications are similar and the price very much in your favor, but how about performance? These other cars are made by larger companies who have been making cars longer than ELCAR has. Would you be willing to make a direct, competitive test, on the road, with these other eights?"

The dealer said he would, and he did. The tests were thorough. They covered acceleration, speed, riding qualities, braking (on wet concrete), vibration (a five-cent piece was balanced on edge on the front fender of each car with motors idling, and it remained standing only on the ELCAR). Appearances were judged side by side.

The prospect bought an ELCAR.

And that is why every ELCAR dealer is ready to challenge any dealer in eights of the ELCAR type to any competitive test on any road at any time.

(A Business Editorial)

NEIGHBORS.

"They are neighbors. When we first moved here from Ohio they took a chance and called. I suppose they knew at the time that they were all right, and so it proved. They could not know about us.

"The call ripened into friendship. The family became very dear to us. Several times we planned to move, but did not care to leave our friends. In a similar way we have called on other newcomers. Two calls proved wise. The other two could have been omitted, yet no harm was done."

Is it not unfortunate this neighborly feeling is becoming extinct in large cities? It remains one of the charms of smaller places.

May it not be the same as to business neighbors? Friendly neighbors can be mutually helpful while serving a community.

We extend a cordial welcome to Hartman & Company to this immediate locality, and trust the firm may have abundant success.

LEAGUE CLOUDS CONVENTION AS WOMEN GATHER

Gotham Cancels Reception to Lady Aberdeen.

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—A great deal of mystery shrouded the reason why the American National Council committee in this city canceled at the last minute its plans for today's reception of foreign delegates to the international congress of women, who were to have stopped off in New York on their way to Washington.

LADY ABERDEEN.

A dispatch from Hamilton, Ont., stated that Lady Aberdeen, who is to preside at the two weeks' convention which opens in Washington on Monday, had told her fellow delegates that the reception plans in New York had been canceled and that no explanation was forthcoming.

Club Controversy Rumored.

While Lady Aberdeen was at a loss for an explanation, there were reports current that a controversy among club women here had caused cancellation of the plans.

One explanation concerned a letter recently sent to Lady Aberdeen by Mrs. Sara L. W. Cook, chairman of the Club Women's Protective committee of New York, in which she charged that the international council convention was to present a "propaganda program" with only the pro side of the league of nations issue.

Delegates Reach Capital.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—More than 200 delegates from thirty-eight countries, representing a total membership of 36,000,000 women, arrived here today with the Marchioness of Aberdeen and Temair, president of the International Council of Women, for the seventh quinquennial convention of the council, May 4-14.

The meeting will celebrate the thirty-seventh birthday of the organization, formed here in 1888 by a small group of women. Of that group, only one woman, Mrs. Hester M. Poole of Washington, former newspaper and magazine writer, will be present Monday night, when Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, delivers the address of welcome.

Coming on a special train from Canada, the delegation was greeted at the Union station by a reception committee, headed by Mrs. Philip North Moore of St. Louis, president of the National Council of Women of the United States and a vice president of the international body.

Committees to Meet.

On Tuesday morning will begin the meetings of the international standing committees on peace and arbitration, laws and legal position of women, suffrage and rights of citizenship, equal moral standards and traffic in women, public health, education, emigration and immigration, and conditions in trades and professions for women.

Officers of the American council denied today with indignation that the international council is 'seeking to force the United States into the league of nations.

PROMISES SUICIDE; HER BODY FOUND.

Dixon, Ill., May 2.—The body of Mrs. Mary Sofolo, 21, who disappeared from her home Monday morning, leaving a note indicating that she contemplated suicide because of ill health, was found in Rock river last night.

JUMP IN CRIME RATE WORRIES GROG PEDDLERS

Stickups Big Menace to Saloon Men.

In a large hall, flooded with sunlight, more than a hundred men sat in chairs facing the blackboards on which were posted the quotations on the horse races. It was somewhat remindful of the customers' room in a brokerage office. Off to the side, the ivories were galloping and the roulette wheel was whirring. One crowd was around the birdcage game with its elephant dice. Much like the old days in frontier town. From descriptions of this resort, the visitor was rather expectant of seeing gunfights in the street and all the old wild west stuff of fact and fiction. All was quiet and orderliness, however.

"We have to protect our clients ourselves," said the gamboller. "If a man comes here and gets up from the dice game with $200 or $300 in his kick, we generally put him in an automobile and send a couple of men along to see he gets home safe.

Experience of One Winner.

"How long would customers come here if it was unsafe for them to depart with winnings? A few nights ago, at one north side place, a man won quite a chunk of dough. He insisted on taking the cash home. Said he had a fast car and would chance it on the road. Well, he got home, all right, but was met at his doorway by a couple of hoists who took it away."

In another gambling hall, the proprietor, who might have passed for a successful banker or lawyer in appearance, dwelt upon the economic aspects of gaming.

Times Reflected in Gambling.

"Horse race betting," he said, "is an infallible index of the times. It is as good a barometer of industrial conditions as are the basic industries, steel, iron, and so on. It's been slow for some time. Factories have been laying men off and reducing wages. The games show the effect. We follow agricultural surveys with interest. If crops are good and prices are good this fall, the farmer's buying power ought to be better, and that will mean increased activities in industry, more work and better pay, and more money put into circulation over the green cloth."

One oldtimer, a rounder for the last quarter century in Chicago, philosophised thus:

"Here's my idea on crime. Everything is organized nowadays. The racket guys who deal in the things on the fringe between law and custom like pinochle and poker games, are somewhat organized. Violent crime, which breaks mankind's highest laws, has its organized gangs. The police force, however, is not so highly organized for its fight to suppress crime as crime is to evade the police and the visitation of justice.

Police Are Sore.

"For one thing the police are sore at the piperising of the force. This supervision is not done right. It's one thing to have a commissioner or an inspector or a captain or somebody else jumping around the city to see the men are toeing the scratch. That's regulation stuff. But to have a bunch of guys snooping around and running in with tales is something different. It's got the men sore. The bravery of the force has always been above dispute, the men never hesitate to risk their lives, but the espionage system has taken the gimp out of them."

As said before, this is simply the situation as viewed from the other side.

Sleep Sickness Epidemic Hits Britain; Viscount Ill

LONDON, May 2.—[United Press.]—Fifty-two cases of sleeping sickness were discovered in England and Wales during the last week. One of those stricken is Viscount Milner. His condition is said to be serious, although he is maintaining his strength. Complications, however, caused a nervous breakdown.

30 DRY SLEUTHS RAID 10 PLACES AT PHŒNIX, ILL.

Efforts of the government to dry up the southern part of Cook county advanced a step late yesterday afternoon when Chief Prohibition Enforcement Officer Charles W. Vursell sent thirty agents into Phoenix. Ten places yielded quantities of booze, most of it of very high voltage.

Agents assigned to make liquor buys in the district reported that scores of places were selling openly. Purchases of grog were even made in an auto accessory shop where the agents stopped for tire repairs.

John Romain's saloon, 15693 South Halsted street.

Adolph Kajewsky's soda parlor, 15705 South Halsted street.

Joe's Auto shop, 158th and Halsted street.

Joe Krol's Recreation Center, 560 East 155th street.

K. Walent's buffet, 564 East 155th street.

Mill Depot, 15735 South Halsted street.

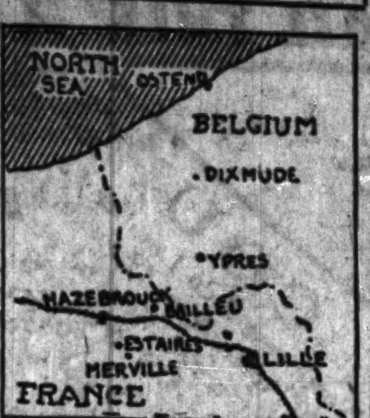
OWNER OF RAIDED STORE DIES.

Charles P. Brady, 55, for several years owner of a cigar store at 742 East 47th street, died at the Mercy hospital yesterday of a cerebral hemorrhage. According to the police Brady's shop has figured in several gambling raids.

FLANDERS FLOODED



[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, May 2.—Owing to the stormy weather and flooded rivers the plains of French Flanders are almost completely under water. Several villages and cities including Merville and Estaires are threatened. The floods are the worst on record in Flanders since 1894. The railroad line from Hazebrouck to Lille is the only dry line between two regular seas, one on each side. Other roads are under water. The surface of the flood spreads out uninterrupted between Merville, Berquin and Bailleu. The inhabitants are fleeing aboard boats, rafts and barges. Unless the waters fall, irreparable damage will be done. The district is already sorely tried, due to the war from the effects of which it has hardly recovered.

DIES AS HE RISES TO DRESS.

Charles Forst, 45, 1919 Walnut street, died at his home yesterday, supposedly of heart disease. He had just arisen from his bed and was preparing to dress when he was stricken.

EDGE RALLIES TO DAWES IN FIGHT ON FILIBUSTERS

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Declaring his belief in majority rule in the senate Senator W. E. Edge [Rep., N. J.] issued a statement today backing up Vice President Dawes in his demand for a change in the senate rules.

SENATOR EDGE.

At the same time he announced, after conferring with President Coolidge, that he would probably introduce some kind of a ship subsidy bill in congress this winter. He declared, however, that he did not believe it would be possible to get any kind of a subsidy bill through the present congress. About all that can be done at this time, he said, would be along the lines of providing shipping board tonnage that would attract and hold patronage.

Prohibition a Handicap.

"I am strongly in favor of constructing a couple of fast 35,000 ton passenger ships, the fastest on the seas," Senator Edge said. "With these added to the Leviathan we could give service that would attract and hold patronage. If we had the reputation of maintaining the fastest ships it would do much to overcome the handicap of prohibition.

"To hold the record for the Atlantic crossing would be an advertisement greatly enhancing the selling powers of the fleet. As far as a subsidy goes we are paying a very large one now in the shape of a deficit some 35 to 40 millions annually. If we must pay this sum to maintain a merchant marine, why do we not do it scientifically and thus encourage constructive development?"

Wants Majority Rule.

In discussing the cloture rule, Senator Edge said he was not worried about such a rule preventing full and free discussion and debate.

"To me it is absurd," he said, "that when a majority is ready to do business it is denied that privilege.

"I also feel entirely favorable to the suggestion, which is in no way new, that a rule should be adopted to confine discussion within reasonable limits to the subject before the senate. At the same time sufficient morning hours to permit senators to bring up any public subject they might desire should be provided."

MAY 3 TO 9 TO BE KNOWN AS MUSIC WEEK IN CHICAGO

Mayor Dever yesterday by proclamation designated May 3 to 9 as music week in Chicago. National music week is to be observed throughout all parts of the United States at the same time, President Coolidge being honorary chairman.

As part of the public school program for the week, eight high school orchestras will compete in Orchestra hall next Saturday morning for the honors of the county. The eight orchestras have been selected from fifty high schools in the city and county.

BLAINE FLOUTS WOMEN, PAROLES DRY LAW CAPTIVE

Madison, Wis., May 2.—[Special.]—Over the protest of Madison club women, Gov. John J. Blaine today announced that he had ordered the release of Harry Barry, Madison prohibition law violator, from the house of correction with the statement that Barry would be forced to take legitimate employment and would be kept at supporting his wife and six children under the direction of the sheriff and himself.

A physician reported to the governor that the house was in a deplorable condition of filth and poverty, that a child had been born to Mrs. Barry since her husband's imprisonment, and that she was in broken health, due to a too early resumption of household labor.

Women welfare workers reported they owned a car and a radio set. This report drew the ire of the governor.

Gov. Blaine declared today that the radio set was not paid for and had been taken back by the dealer and that the car was mortgaged beyond its value, and then he scored Madison welfare organizations.

The governor said his investigation showed that the family did not have the care that is usually alloted to the "sow and her farrow," and that "little children must suffer because of the bludgeon of prohibition fanaticism that is constantly raised threateningly over the heads of public officials."

MOTHERS' DAY TO BE OBSERVED NEXT SUNDAY

Next Sunday will be Mother's day, now observed internationally. Churches, the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., lodges, Knights of Columbus, women's clubs, parents and teachers' organizations in certain schools, hospitals, especially where there are disabled soldiers, and multitudes of individuals are making preparations for the event.

At the close of the war the Gold Star mothers adopted as a slogan, "Mother Never Forgets." Sons and daughters, near or distant, are asked not to forget to write home, or in any event, remember, mother.

WILKERSON HITS LAGGARD COURT, SHIFTY LAWYER

Justice Thwarted by Many Things, He Declares.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Declaring that the instrumentalities set up under the constitution to guarantee right and justice to every man have not been equal to the task, Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago tonight made an attack on modern courts, modern lawyers, and the general apathy of the public.

His remarks were made at a banquet closing the annual session of the American Law institute, which is completing its work on plans for the simplification and restatement of the law. Wilkerson said that in certain fields of the administration of justice there is a complexity and uncertainty that is almost chaos and that in a vast number of cases, there is delay which amounts to absolute denial of justice.

Main Cause for Delay.

The main causes for the delay, he declared, are to be found in the trial courts.

"Swiftness and certainty in the administration of justice depends on their efficiency and on the skill and efficiency of the judges," he said. "It is in their work that most of the confusion and uncertainty arises. If we are to have an efficient administration of justice, stress must be placed on their importance. Their standard must be elevated and their work made more attractive. They are the most important factors in the problem."

He declared that the bar must be reformed, the courts and court procedure must be reorganized, and public opinion aroused to a point where the people demand quick and certain justice.

"Today," he said, "there exists in this country a spirit of indifference to the law. This does not apply simply to criminal law, but to all law. The people must be taught that justice is for everybody, and not just for the few."

Judge Wilkerson declared that one of the darkest pages of the history of the legal profession was written about lawyers who too frequently have forgotten their position as chosen ministers of the law and have devoted their energies and talents to evading and thwarting it. This, he declared, has helped to lower respect for the law.

"It is the task of the lawyers of today," he continued, "to make amends for the wrongs of their profession. It is for them to lead the way in the restoration of respect for the law and of demand for the administration of justice."

IDENTIFIED AS A KILLER, MOTHER'S LOVE FREES HIM

Resembled the Real Slayer, Is Fault.

Detroit, Mich., May 2.—[By United Press.]—The official close of Michigan's strangest murder case today saw one man who had served two years of a life imprisonment sentence freed, and another take his place in the state prison at Marquette.

The release of Leo Sauerman, who was convicted of first degree murder by the direct testimony of four persons who saw the killing, came as a result of two years' faith and work by his sister and mother.

A pardon for Sauerman was issued late yesterday by Gov. Alex Groesbeck, thirty minutes after a jury found Harry Hill, alleged gunman and hijacker, guilty of slaying Alexander Dombrowski.

Killed During a Raid.

Three years ago Dombrowski, a farmer and alleged whisky runner, was killed during a raid on his farm by four men posing as federal officers. Dombrowski's wife, son, and two other persons saw the murder.

Melvin Brown, Homer Noel and Leo Pakizer were subsequently charged with participating in the murder. Brown and Noel pleaded guilty to second degree and were sentenced to serve 15 to 25 years at Jackson prison. Pakizer was acquitted.

Sauerman was later taken and identified by the four witnesses as the one who grappled with and shot Dombrowski to death.

Like a Movie Scenario.

Throughout the trial and the two years he had spent in prison Sauerman maintained he was convicted through an alleged physical resemblance to the real slayer.

The sister and mother spurred on the state police in their hunt for a mysterious phantom gunman. Finally Harry Hill was captured in Chicago last December and charged with the murder.

Although Brown and Noel had made confessions implicating Hill as the actual slayer, when taken on the stand both steadfastly refused to remember a thing. They even "forgot" the name of the slain man. Hill was convicted largely through the testimony of his landlady, Mrs. A. W. Francisco, who testified he had confessed the murder to her.

Boy, 15, Hangs Self After Being Censured

DAILEY OFFERS BILL CODIFYING INSURANCE LAW

Gives State New Powers of Regulation.

BY PARKE BROWN.

SENATOR JOHN DAILEY.

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—State Senator John M. Dailey announced today that when the legislature reconvenes next Tuesday he will introduce in the upper house a recodification of the insurance laws of Illinois. He said the bill will contain 390 pages, will repeal 531 sections of the present statutes and will add a large number of new provisions.

Senator Dailey was chairman of the insurance investigating committee created by the senate in its last session and in two years has devoted much time to his present measure.

Keeps Best in Simple Form.

"It has been my purpose in drafting this code to simplify it and to give the state a more advanced character of supervision," she said. It preserves all that is best in the present insurance laws, eliminates confusion, and, I believe is understandable, workable and beneficial."

Some forms of insurance are not hit by the proposed new code but the majority of company types would be greatly affected. Those not molested are fraternal and mutual life companies and associations and farmer's mutual township, county or district fire and windstorm insurance companies and associations.

"I may say, after a study of the insurance laws of other states, that Illinois has the most cumbersome, unintelligent, obsolete, and antiquated insurance laws of any state," Senator Daily declared.

"We find some classes of insurance carriers are burdened with taxes reaching dangerously near the breaking point, while other eastern carriers are massing billions without adequate contribution for the opportunity of adding to their enormous resources in Illinois.

Cites Laxity of Control.

"The fire insurance rates in Illinois are made by private interests without a word of authoritative control by the state. The casualty companies likewise are driving with a free rein. The surety companies, without adequate restraint, have gone the limit of their unlicensed privilege to establish covertly what virtually amounts to boycott of an honest individual who is required to give bond, and without it is refused employment.

"The new code distributes the insurance tax equitably on all branches of business. It provides for a simpler form of liquidation. It gives supervising authority over the question of the reasonableness of rates charged. It provides for licensing of qualified agents, thereby insuring a higher class of company representatives. It provides for licensing of resident as well as nonresident brokers, with accompanying safeguards.

"In the new code I have incorporated such measures as have been approved by the insurance commissioners' convention of the United States. Therefore it ought to represent the best thought of our country.

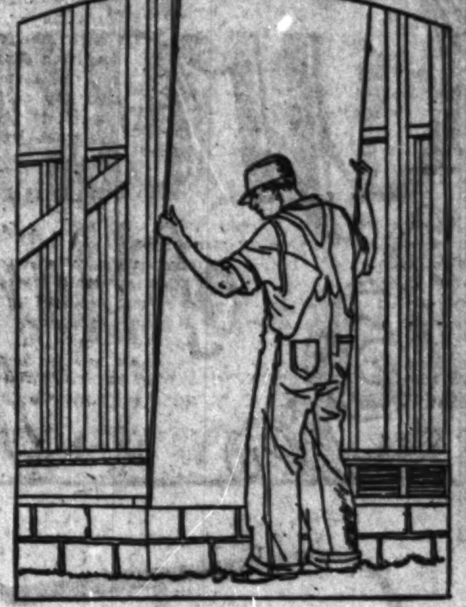
2/3 of your heat lost

Scientific tests show that two-thirds of the heat generated to warm the average home escapes through walls and roof—a total waste

Why heat three houses to keep one warm?

Celotex Insulating Lumber stops heat waste ~yet adds nothing to building cost



Celotex is applied directly to studding, in place of wood sheathing. Test after test by unquestioned authorities proves that a wall sheathed with Celotex is many times stronger than one ordinarily sheathed with wood lumber

Enough heat is wasted in the ordinary home to keep two more of the same size comfortable!

Scores of authoritative articles in magazines and newspapers are now calling attention to this startling waste.

Hence the common heating troubles—cold upstairs rooms, draughty floors, chilly closets, and sudden drops in temperature when the furnace dies down.

Celotex stops heat waste

Celotex, the world's first Insulating Lumber, stops heat waste without adding to building cost.

Celotex is made by converting the long, tough fibres of cane into broad, clean boards of great tensile strength and stiffness.

It is filled with millions of sealed air cells, which give it high resistance to the passage of heat.

Celotex provides heat insulation. It has been used in thousands of refrigerator cars to keep heat in during winter and out during summer. In the walls of a house its action is the same—it checks heat leakage.

Lower heating cost—greater comfort

Your home, built with Celotex, will cost you far less to heat.

Your initial outlay will be less. You can install a smaller, less expensive heating plant. You can reduce the number of radiators ordinarily required.

Celotex will pay you substantial dividends in fuel saving the very first year and every year after.

And, year in year out, your Celotex home will have a comfort and healthfulness that no other type of house can have. It will be cozily warm on coldest winter days, free from draughts, evenly heated throughout.

No extra building cost

Celotex, when used as sheathing, adds nothing to the cost of construction. Because it combines, for the first time, high insulation value with great structural strength.

Celotex is used in place of wood lumber, as sheathing on walls and roof. It is stronger in wall sections than wood lumber.

It simply replaces and saves the cost of wood lumber and any form of insulation.

Celotex is also used as a plaster base, replacing lath. It bonds with plaster and makes a much stronger wall than lath and plaster. Here again it provides insulation at practically no extra cost.

Other advantages of Celotex

In summer Celotex keeps homes cool. It shuts out the sun's heat and retains the coolness of the night. Even during the hottest summer months your Celotex home will be pleasantly comfortable day and night.

Celotex homes are restful and quiet. Celotex has greater ability to prevent the transmission of sound than deadening felts. It eliminates the use and cost of such materials—yet gives all their advantages.

Ask your architect, contractor or lumber dealer

Celotex is everywhere available. Your architect, lumber dealer or contractor can tell you more about it. Ask them.

If you are going to buy a completed home, there is no reason why you cannot have one built with Celotex. Take the matter up with your real estate man or builder.

We shall be glad to advise you on Celotex homes that are being built for sale.

Free—valuable new building book

Contains money-saving information every home-builder should have. This book, fully illustrated in color, is free. Don't build or buy without reading it!

Celotex is used as sheathing on roofs. Any type of roofing may be applied over it

FABER PITCHES SOX TO 4 TO 1 VICTORY

PURDUE DOWNS MAROONS, 72 TO 62, IN DUAL MEET

TOM ECK'S MEN FAIL TO SHOW EXPECTED FORM

Spradling Outspeeds Cusack in Half Mile.

A track meet, rich in surprises, but almost devoid of thrills, was won by Purdue from the University of Chicago at Stagg field yesterday, 72½ to 62½, the Boilermakers furnishing the former sensations by not only outclassing the Maroons in the field events, but by showing their heels to the Midway turnout on the track. The Maroons furnished most of the thrills by struggling for seconds where they were doped to take firsts.

For example, Jimmy Cusack failed to finish strong enough to beat Spradling in the half mile, though the Purdue winner was clocked in only 2:00 3-5. Likewise, in the mile event, the race started slowly and Red Bourke, Maroon star, was caught off his guard, Little of Purdue, and Cusack, both preceding him, the former winning in 4:30.

Bert McKinney, Maroon, came to the fore nicely in his first meet under Chicago colors, totaling 18 tallies, by taking the low hurdles in :26 2-5 and the high barriers in :16 3-10 and by coming in a close second in the century, won by Young of Purdue in :10 2-5. His was the high point total, Cramer, Purdue weight man, making eleven with firsts in the discus and hammer and third in the shot. Justin Russell, Chicago's star high jumper, had to go only 5:10¼ to win that event. He tied with Berg, a teammate, for third in the pole vault and took third in the high hurdles.

The times yesterday were slow, due partly to the chilly weather and partly to the earliness of the outdoor season. Summaries:

SHOT PUT—Won by Young [P.]; Hobscheid [C.], second; Cramer [P.], third. Distance, 40 feet 6¼ inches.

POLE VAULT—Won by Fox [P.]; Eatons [P.], second; Russell and Berg [C.], tied for third. Height, 11 feet 10 inches.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Russell [C]; Clauson [P.], second; Evans [P.] and Berg [C.], third. Height, 5 feet 10¼ inches.

DISCUS THROW—Won by Cramer [P.]; Byers [P.], second; Harrison [C.], third. Distance, 116 feet 7 inches.

HAMMER THROW—Won by Cramer [P.]; Pearson [C.], second; Bohleber [P.], third. Distance, 96 feet 9 inches.

BROAD JUMP—Won by McKinney [C.]; Lowry [P.], second; Jones [P.], third. Distance, 19 feet 9½ inches.

JAVELIN THROW—Won by Evans [P.]; Harrison [C.], second; Caruso [C.], third. Distance, 166 feet 9 inches.

100 YARD DASH—Won by Young [P.]; McKinney [C.], second; Harmon [P.], third. Time, :10 2-5.

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Little [P.]; Cusack [C.], second; Bourke [C.], third. Time, 4:30.

220 YARD DASH—Won by Spence [C.]; Young [P.], second; Kernwein [C.], third. Time, :22 4-5.

120 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by McKinney [C.]; Foster [P.], second; Russell [C.], third. Time, :16 3-10.

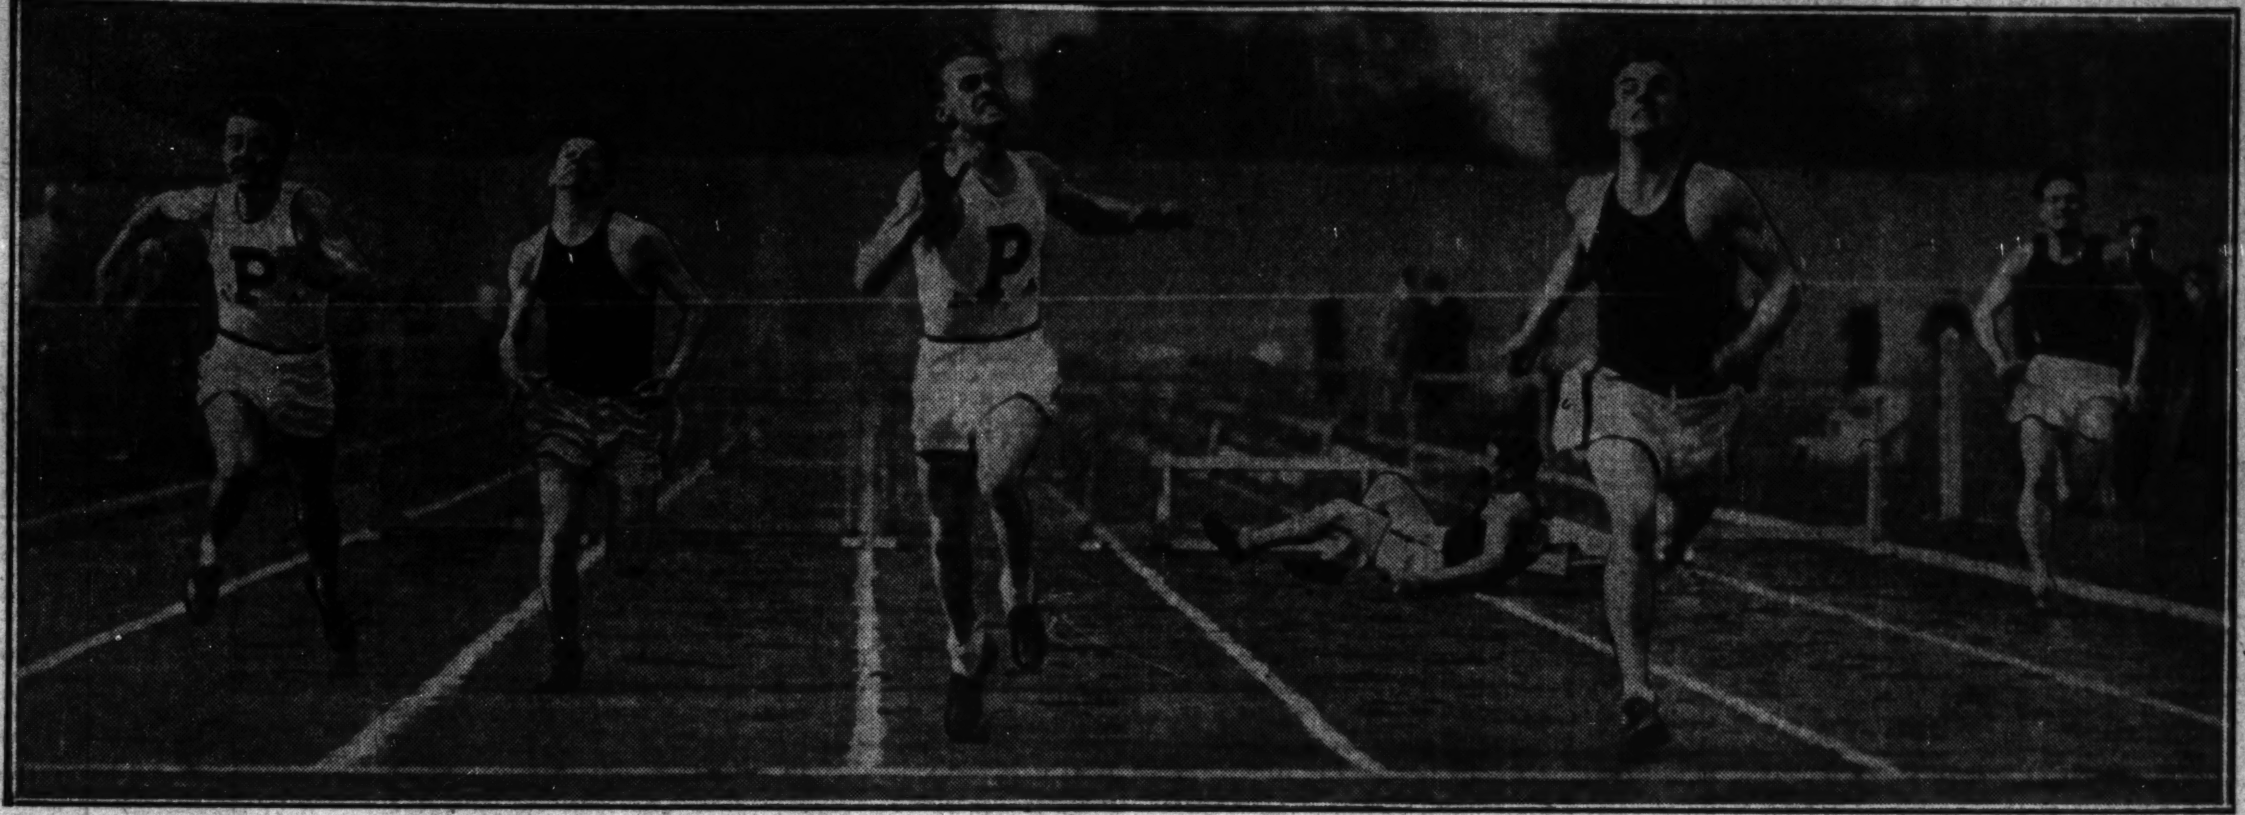
440 YARD RUN—Won by Spence [C.]; Spieker [P.], second; Beal [C.], third. Time, :51.

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Bourke [C.]; Little [P.], second; McNeill [C.], third. Time, 9:55.

220 YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by McKinney [C.]; Foster [P.], second; A. Edler [C.], third. Time, :26 2-5.

HALF MILE RUN—Won by Spradling [P.]; Cusack [C.], second; Gross [P.], third. Time, 2:00 3-5.

TESTING THEIR WIND AND STAMINA



Bert McKinney came to the fore as one of Chicago's best point winners by taking first in the low and high hurdles and second in the hundred yard dash, which was won by Purdue. In this picture McKinney was caught at the tape after having hopped the 220 yard low barriers in :26 2-5.

JUDGE RULES INDICTMENT OF MANDELL VALID

Rockford, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—Sammy Mandell and eight others indicted by the April grand jury on charges of violating the state boxing law by giving sparring exhibitions must stand trial. Judge Ed. Reynolds in Circuit court today sustained the validity of the indictments. The court held that public sentiment on the subject of boxing and sparring exhibitions had changed materially in fifty years and the sport itself had undergone material changes for its betterment, but that the changes in themselves did not warrant lower courts in holding a statute to be unconstitutional.

4 MARKS FALL IN RELAY MEET AT WISCONSIN

HARTRANFT SETS WORLD'S RECORD IN DISCUSS THROW

San Francisco, May 2.—[By Associated Press.]—Glenn Hartranft of Stanford university bettered the world's record in the discus throw, heaving it 157 feet 1 5-8 inches at the Pacific association meet of the A. Y. A. U. in the Municipal stadium here today.

The official record is 156 feet 1⅜ inches, made by James Duncan in 1912. Clarence Houser, University of Southern California, recently tossed the discus 156 feet 3¼ inches, but the national A. A. U. has not had time to pass on that record.

Paavo Nurmi ran a mile and a half in 6 minutes, 56 7-10, many seconds off his record. The track here just completed, was rather slow.

Willie Ritola ran 3,000 yards against time in 8 minutes 24-5 seconds.

Final team standings were:

Olympic club, San Francisco, 84; Stanford university, 61; Stanford Freshmen, 14; University of California, 12; Humboldt club, 8; California Freshmen, 4; Bella Vista, 1; unattached, 1.

GIANTS, BRAVES, ROBINS TRADE TALKED IN N. Y.

New York, May 2.—Baseball followers of Greater New York today discussed the possibility of two deals involving the Brooklyn, New York and Boston National league clubs.

The proposed transfers hinged on the willingness of Manager Bancroft of the Braves to part with two pitchers—Rube Marquard to the Robins in exchange for Infielder Milton Stock and one or two pitchers, and Joe Genewich to the Giants in exchange for Third Baseman Groh.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

RACING LEGISLATION.

RACING bills so often have been introduced at Springfield with apparent fair chance of passage that The Wake has reached the point where "seeing is believing," although our opinion is still strong as ever that fostering legislation is necessary for the sport to reach its highest plane.

Therefore we approve the Mitchell bill now before the house which provides for a state commission of five members to govern racing, and which recognizes pari-mutuel wagering.

Chicago's racing revival of the last two years really has been by sufferance. While the system of wagering at Hawthorne will stand legal test, according to the track's attorneys, if carried to the highest tribunal, it is within the power of hostile county officials to so harass a race meeting as practically to deprive it of public patronage.

Racing cannot exist financially without some form of wagering. We admit that. Where wagering is not recognized, it carries on by subterfuge. That is neither to the best interests of the turf nor of those who wager.

We'll not argue the morality of betting. That is for the individual conscience. Those who do not approve of betting are not compelled to do so. The small amounts we wager, deriving pleasure from the thrills, do not hurt our conscience. But we prefer to do it out in the open, as in Kentucky, rather than hand a slip of paper to a bookie with our initials, name of horse, and amount to be wagered, as at Hawthorne.

There is no question of legislation's benefit to race tracks. It enables track officials to make and enforce their rulings, to govern more strictly. The racing commission is a second check on anything detrimental to clean sport.

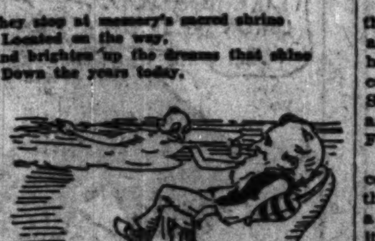
The Land of Long Ago.

My gentle little dream men
  Go traveling to and fro,
They tramp the dream-lit trails again
  To the Land of Long Ago.

They stop at memory's sacred shrine
  Located on the way,
And brighten up the dreams that shine
  Down the years today.



They're often wont to pause beside
  Some old familiar place
That looms beyond grim Time's divide
  That years cannot efface;
They from the fleeting seasons bring
  A sigh, a love, a song,
That haunt where dear traditions cling—
  Where now but dreams belong.

My gentle little dream men stray
  And love me, too, I know;
Ah—I've wandered far away
  From the Land of Long Ago! Wanander.

Greatest Baseball Player.

The question admits of but little discussion. He was not of the days of Dalrymple, Brouthers, Anson, et al., nor is he playing today, officially. The greatest is none other than the Hon. Nick Altrock, and the title is not used in derision.

Will the written records bear me out? Not at all. But the unwritten records will give him a place second to none. Mighty few would have weathered the trials he weathered. None else could have jollied a mediocre team into a world's championship. Then, to cap the climax, Nick sees the joke of it all. Hand him the medal. Elmar.

Dempsey to Stretch Tour to 6 Months

BY FRANK SMITH.

The prediction in these columns that Jack Dempsey never would fight again was verified last night when Marty Cutler, local boxer and wrestler, left for New York to join the champion when he sails for Europe on May 6.

Marty received a wire early in the day to be in readiness to sail on that date, and later received further word from Dempsey to leave at once. This Marty did, and now he is legging it for the east.

Plans Vaudeville Tour.

The plan of the champion, as related last night, is to put in six months abroad, playing the vaudeville circuits in the big cities and having a good time in general. And he won't have to give up half his proceeds to Jack Kearns. Dempsey, it is said, will insist this is purely a theatrical stunt, and by that reasoning will tell Kearns to hop through a ring in the event "Dapper Jack" asks him for his fifty per cent.

It also was related last night Dempsey and Kearns are absolutely through with each other so far as the fight racket is concerned. Dempsey is tired of giving his manager half of what he takes in at the gate, and when the three year contract insisted on by the New York boxing commission expires, Dempsey will sever all relations with Kearns. In the meantime the manager need not look to Dempsey as his meal ticket.

Stage to Movies Is Route.

The vaudeville stunt of Dempsey was mentioned in these columns the other morning, but there was nothing at that time to indicate Dempsey planned a six months' stay.

It was thought he might do a few turns on the stage with his wife, Estelle Taylor, in order to give them some prestige for their movies. Now it seems Dempsey's program will cover a wider field than was made public at that time.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

St. Louis, Mo., May 2.—[Special.]—Killefer's Cubs put on another last minute splurge today and by virtue of two runs in the eighth and one in the ninth nosed out the Cardinals by a 3 to 1 margin. The victory by the Cubs, together with the defeat of the Cincinnati Reds, shoved the Cubs up to second place in the league standing.

That very welcome exhibition of hits came after Allah Sothoron, the veteran spitballer, had just about tied the Cubs in knots. In seven rounds they were able to nick him for only six widely scatered blows, but he made a mistake by not quitting while his record was good. In the next chapter the Cubs didn't take him for the same pitcher, at least they refused to stay impressed and they slammed him for three hits in a row after a batter had walked, and then added two more hits in the ninth off Bill Sherdel, who was called to the rescue when Sothoron faded.

Looked Blue for Kaufmann.

During the time that Sothoron was going along neatly and effectively the outlook was not at all promising for young Tony Kaufmann, who started on the slab for the victors. Tony pitched a fine article of ball, but a pass, combined with a single in the third, let a Cardinal runner sneak home with a tally that, until the eighth, looked large enough to put an end to the local squad's losing streak which now totals seven in a row.

Kaufmann concluded his performance after the seventh to make room for a pinch hitter, who started the eighth inning rally, and Guy Bush looked after the hurling in the remaining rounds. Bush simply knocked the Cardinals stiff in the eighth by pitching only four balls, but in the ninth he stuck his nose into some trouble and for a few moments it appeared as if the statlike boy would require help. Bush proved an able workman, however, and with two on

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Old Red Faber hadn't pitched in a whole week. Old Red doesn't like to be called old because he's 37 years young and has a new arm delivered F. O. B. one year ago off the operating table. Old Red, using his new arm, was a whale of a pitcher yesterday against the St. Louis Browns and the White Sox won, 4 to 1, because he was great.

He was opposed at the start of the game by Dave Danforth, the eminent southpaw who used to be one of us. Dave has the reputation of being able to do something with the ball to make it take peculiar and unusual hops and turns. The supposition is that Dave can take a new ball, twist it two or three times between his bare hands, and put a magical charm on it.

Dave Shoots 'Em Wild.

But the chances are that 90 per cent of Dave's mysterious stuff is bluff. The Sox played him yesterday that way. They just let him rub the ball all he wanted to and then let him try to see what he could do with it. The result was Dave had a deuce of a time trying to control the old sphere. The boys didn't hit it much but they just kept the old bat on the shoulder and let Dave do his stuff. He couldn't get it over.

On the other hand, Old Red, beg your pardon, Red, was out there on the slab with all the strength in the world. He was strong yesterday. He could spit on the ball and make it break over the plate with plenty of stuff on it. The Browns got four hits off him and until the eighth inning, they had only one and that was a scratch pop fly which Collins lost in the sun.

Sheely Starts Scoring.

Red also had control. He didn't walk a man until the ninth and then Ray Schalk glowered when Umpire Evans called it a ball with the count three and two. Maybe the ball was a fraction of an inch too low. For four innings Old Red and Dave went along in a fine pitchers' battle, but in the fifth Earl Sheely, first man up, socked one down into right field close to the foul line and Bennett couldn't catch it. It was good for two bases. Bib Falk bunted one and put Sheely on third. Barrett walked but Willie Kamm drove a long fly to Bennett and Sheely scored after the catch.

That was all until the seventh when Sheely, first man up, walked and so did Falk. Barrett then poked a bunt at Danforth and he rushed in, grabbed it and hurled to third base, trying for a force play. It is doubtful if he would have made the play with a good throw. As it was he hurled the ball over the third baseman's head away out into foul ground and Sheely scored while Falk raced to third and Barrett made second.

Kamm Brings Two Home.

That play ended the day for Mr. Danforth. Elam Vangilder took his place and the first ball he pitched Willie Kamm socked to left field for a single that scored both Falk and Barrett and Kamm scooted to second on the throw to the plate. That blow put the ball game on ice. Mr. Kamm is the kind of a fellow who can knock the boys home.

The Browns finally tallied a run off Old Red, pardon again, Red, in the eighth when after one was out, McManus poled a single to left field and raced clear to third when Falk let the ball get through him. From third he came home when Jacobson grounded out to Eddie Collins because the boys didn't play in close and try to cut off his run.

In the ninth after one was out, Robertson got a base on balls, the only pass from Faber, and Bennett forced him at second. This brought Sisler up for the fourth time. In three times he hadn't been able to do a thing, but this time he guessed that Old Red would serve him a fast one in the middle as a starter and he socked it to center for a single. A moment later the game ended when Johnny Mostil camped under a soft fly from the bat of Ken Williams.

PHILS DIVIDE DOUBLE BILL WITH BRAVES

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1.—[Special.]—In the first bargain bill of the season here the Phils shared with the Braves, losing the first tilt, 4 to 1, in ten innings, but winning the second fray, 12 to 6, in a free hitting affair.

Genewich outpitched Ring in the first game and would have scored a shut out but for a homer in the third inning. Ring weakened in the tenth and the Braves hit him for four successive singles, which with an error by Huber, gave the Tribe three runs and the game.

In the second game the Phils drove Ryan to cover in the third and also hit Kamp hard at times. Carlson generally was effective throughout. Fifteen thousand saw the games. Scores:

Sothoron Is Hit Hard.

The winning eighth round got under way with Bob O'Farrell batting for Kaufmann. Bob walked and Statz promptly sacrificed. Heathcote lost no time slapping a hit past Sothoron and O'Farrell scored, while Heathcote raced to second on the throw. Then Sparky Adams, who was the hitting demon of the afternoon, notched his fourth successive single and Heathcote counted. That was all for Sothoron and Sherdel managed to retire the side without further damage on a lucky double play.

Bush was responsible for carrying home the lone run in the ninth. After two were dead, Joe looped a Texas league single behind first base. Statz followed with a long fly that came down close to the right field fence, just out of the reach of two outfielders, and Bush ran all the way home, while Statz pulled up at second. Heathcote grounded out to complete the half.

Cubs' Early Chances Slim.

Prior to the eighth the Cubs had only two good chances to get anywhere. One was in the fifth when Miller was on third and Grimm on first as the result of singles. McAuley hit a wicked liner toward first, but Bottomley fell flat on his face, knocked down the ball and jumped up in time to throw it to the plate and kill off Miller. The other promising opening would have amounted to something if a long smash by Hartnett had been about three feet deeper in the sixth. That was about all that it needed to clear the wall. Adams was on second at the time.

NINE RUN RALLY FAILS TO GIVE LEO XIII. VICTORY

Staging a wild ninth inning rally, which netted nine runs, Leo XIII. almost overtook Fort Dearborn yesterday in one of the opening games in the Knights of Columbus baseball league. Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Wallie Hummell, 4839 Winthrop avenue, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you think it would create more interest in the game if all the baseball players wore numbers on their backs as do football players?

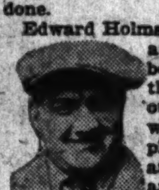
Where Asked.

Diversey and Clark street.

The Answers.

Albert Rudin, 3344 North Halsted street, chauffeur—Yes; for the reason that when you care to identify your favorite player you can do so by the number on his back. On account of the large major league parks it is difficult for a fan to identify his star at a distance. New players on visiting teams would be more easily identified.

Fred H. Mosiman, 3325 Southport avenue, street car conductor—Yes, it is a good idea to number the big league ball players. It will give those who do not attend games often a chance to identify the different players, and create a greater interest in the game. It is the right thing to do, but probably much time will elapse before it is done.



Edward Holmstrom, 2745 Winnemac avenue, milk driver—I believe it would help the fans as well as the out of town customers who do not know the players. It would create a greater interest among the fans if the players wore numbers on their baks and would be a great attraction for the ball parks.

Henry Wiegert, 1742 Barry avenue, dairyman—I can use the score cards and score boards to locate the players as they are flashed to find out the different players who are participating in the game. The fans who sit in the bleachers can't see the numbered player when he is up to bat. It may be all right for those in the grandstand.

Samuel N. Weissman, 5341 Warner avenue, milk driver—It is a mighty good thing to number the players, as then I'll know them. I do not know them from Adam or Eve. Most of the semi-pro players carry numbers on their sleeves. Why is it that the big league players cannot do likewise? Some time should be spent on this proposition and it should not be dropped until thoroughly investigated.

RUTH PALE AND THIN, BUT HOPES TO REJOIN YANKS WITHIN MONTH

NEW YORK, May 2. — Babe Ruth told reporters who interviewed him in St. Vincent's hospital this afternoon he thought he would be able to rejoin the New York Yankees at the end of the month when the team returns from its first western trip.

Receiving visitors for the first time since he was admitted to the hospital, April 9, after his collapse from the influenza attack that necessitated the curtailment of his southern training trip, the home run hitter said he was feeling "good."

"The darn flu has been my jinx," he explained. "I've had four attacks in three years and have suffered with it like the dickens. That is about enough of that stuff."

"How about the old home runs?" some one asked.

"Don't worry," the Babe replied. "I'll catch up if I get out when the team comes back from the west."

MOURNERS LINE SIDEWALKS AT McKEEVER RITES

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Through a crowd of more than 1,000, standing bareheaded in the streets, the funeral cortege of Edward J. McKeever, one of the owners of the Brooklyn National league club, moved this morning from the home to St. Augustine Roman Catholic church.

There a solemn high requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. Joseph A. Shreiner, the pastor, assisted by the Rev. W. J. Finley, as deacon, and the Rev. Francis J. Lynch, as subdeacon. From the church the cortege moved on to the Holy Cross cemetery for burial.

Twelve carriages followed the hearse, bearing many men prominent officially and in sporting circles. Neither Gov. Smith nor Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, both named as honorary pall bearers, were able to attend, however.

The church was crowded and the mourners overflowed into the street.

What Good Does It Do You to Know Something?

Advertisements in all Papers and Magazines are all trying to appeal to the intelligent. Now this one is for the great majority. Reliable authority, in fact it was the Draft Boards during the War, figured out that the intelligence of the average Adult of this Country was that of a 13 year old Child. (Now that is giving us the best of it because a 13 year old Child is about the smartest thing we have in this Country), but the 13 year old Child they referred to was one who had been raised on the milk of human Kindness (which is mostly Water) and weaned on a Hard Boiled Egg. You know the smarter the Man the more dissatisfied he is, so cheer up let us be happy in our ignorance. What do we care how little we know if we get what we want. 'Bull' Durham has to stand no Literacy Test, it is with minority in quality, and with the majority in usage.

DOZEN WESTERN HORSES REMAIN AS DERBY HOPES

BY FRENCH LANE.

Lexington, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—Battle lines of the west for the annual struggle with the east in the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, a week from next Saturday, have been closely drawn during the last week of training operations.

From a possible field of more than seventy western candidates, only a dozen are left as standard bearers against the fleet blue bloods of the turf the million dollar stables of the east will send into Kentucky seeking the rich prize.

Last year the west stemmed the ever increasing tide of eastern invaders with Black Gold, a little black horse bred and raised in Kentucky, and owned by a widow from Oklahoma. But is there another Black Gold quartered here in the richest blue grass country in the world, ready to carry on the fifty-first Derby?

Fleet Western Nags.

It is a fleet little band the west has left from which to pick its representatives when the bugle calls, but some of the east's thunder is stolen because the west claims Quatrain as one of its own color bearers despite his being owned by the New Yorker, Frederick Johnson.

Quatrain, like Black Gold, is a product of Kentucky. He has never been elsewhere, except for a few months at New Orleans.

Next in line to Quatrain in the esteem of Kentuckians comes Captain Hal, owned by A. A. Kaiser of Louisville, a Black Toney-Wavering colt that has done everything asked of him in his extremely stiff derby prep. As a two year old in eleven races, he was never out of the money but once and he won five of the contests in which he started. His racing was confined strictly to Kentucky, Churchill Downs, Latonia and Raceland and with the exception of Master Charlie he beat every good two year old of the year.

Real Speed Guarded.

In many places, he is regarded a trifle higher than Quatrain, and there could be no more popular victory than one by Captain Hal, for his owner is a popular young Louisville business man.

In works this colt may have been outstepped a bit by Lee O. Cotner and one or two others in training at the Downs, but in nearly every long gallop he has been hard held and has been handled so cleverly that even the faithful clockers have never caught him at full Derby route. He has gone that distance more than once, it is said.

If Quatrain or Captain Hal can't win, loyal old Blue Grassers hardly know where to turn for the colt that will beat the east. Some say Kentucky Cardinal; but even his fairly good mile work at Lexington Friday in 1:44 4-5 was not so impressive. If the colt wins the Derby it will surprise his warmest admirers.

Speedy Eastern Hopes.

Mr. Croissant of Chicago probably will win out his purchase price on Kentucky Cardinal, but if the colt wins the Derby it will surprise his warmest admirers.

After considering these three leading colts most westerners begin to look to Edward R. Bradley's Idle Hour farm for the Derby winner should Quatrain, Captain Hal, and Kentucky Cardinal fail. Broadway Jones, Bill Strap, and Blue Warblers are the Bradley candidates left in the running.

But what if these recognized western leaders fail? How can the rush of Chantey, Hedge Fence, Sunny Man, Single foot, Silver Fox, Overall, American Flag, and others from the east be stopped? An uncertain band, indeed, that remains as western hopes.

Reputation Shows Speed.

Reputation, owned by the Williams' Brothers of Kentucky, added himself to the possible western battle forces this afternoon when he turned in a sterling performance winning the Lafayette Hotel handicap. He came from behind and won going away over the short futurity course in 1:10 4-5, just a second off the track record. This fellow is an in and outer and while his victory brought him back among the probable starters, the same race all but shoved King Nadi, the colt John Troxler refused to sell for $50,000, into the Derby discard. He ran unplaced, was never prominent in the running and seems to have been a greatly overestimated animal.

Weather Speeds Preps.

The return of good weather brought a number of Derby eligibles for short works this morning. Menifee's three quarters in 1:17 1-5 was the best effort.

Before leaving for Chicago tonight J. Frank Croissant took out a $50,000 insurance policy on his Derby colt Kentucky Cardinal. The latter will be shipped to Churchill Downs tomorrow or Monday.

CAPT. HAL CLASSED FAST

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—Old Sol, a stranger for several days, turned out today to observe the Kentucky Derby candidates in their trial runs and saw Captain Hal clock off the best time of the day. He breezed three-quarters in 1:14⅘, stepping the first quarter in :24 and the half in :49 over a track still heavy with recent rainfall. Quatrain rested today.

Running for the first time this season without blinkers, Lee O. Cotner had an adverse day. Working with Bourbon Boy, the R. W. Collins' colt stepped the mile in 1:43 2-5. Bourbon Boy was held all the way but his companion was urged time and again.

The University of Chicago's ball team yesterday won its second conference game of the season at the Midway, beating Purdue, 4 to 0, in a closely played and light hitting encounter. The Boilermakers scratched only three hits off Wallie Marks, Maroon pitcher, while Chicago got five, but all five in the right places.

Bob Howell drove Chicago's first run across the plate. He hit to center where McDonald muffed the ball, allowing Claude Brignall, who had walked, to score and Howell to take third. Howell hammered Brignall home again in the fifth, and in the eighth, Howell walked and Macklind and Webster hit, the first two reaching the plate to total four runs.

There was a heap of nice baseball shown by both clubs, the fielding proving a big boon to both Marks and Hulswitt, Boilermaker hurler.

Chicago's prowess, as evidenced this season, has increased the attendance at the college games about 200 per cent, the bleachers at the new field, Sixtieth and Greenwood avenue, being filled yesterday. Score:

Woods and Waters

By BOB BECKER

MUSKIE IS A RUTHLESS TYRANT

In checking over the fresh water fishes which lure thousands of anglers to river and lake each season, one can size up the disposition and character of many of the species by their habits. For example, take the muskellunge. Does this fish travel around in schools as if he liked company? He does not. He's not gregarious in the least, preferring to be on his own, shunning company, and ruling like a tyrant over a particular piece of water. Because of these habits one thinks of the musky as a ruthless old marauder, feared and hated by all other species, asking no quarter from any other water dweller, and giving none.

As a matter of fact the habits of the 'lunge reflects his character in many ways. It is a known fact that he hasn't a friendly spark in his makeup. He is content to abide alone and hunt alone. He finds a "home" and there he will stay until some foolish fish comes along. Then there is a lightning like move of tail and fins which launches the old killer like a thunderbolt after his prey.

The savage, killing nature of the 'lunge, his willingness at times to smash at anything that strays across his "front yard," has resulted in his downfall, and is one reason why his numbers are not large today.

In sharp contrast to the solitary, tyrannical, ruthless muskie is the walleye. This fish likes company. He's a killer, of course, and raises havoc with minnows and other lake and stream denizens. But there's nothing piratical in his makeup. He cares not for the lonely marauding life of the muskie. On the other hand the wall-eye likes to travel around with a gang of his own kind.

FRANKLIN

It Makes Other Fine Cars Look Old-Fashioned

Let a New Franklin glide up alongside any other fine car, and the contrast is striking. The roof of the latest de Causse design is nearer to the ground than that of any other American car of standard headroom and ground-clearance. That is what accentuates its length, gives it its unrivaled smartness, and makes it look so intensely modern and up-to-date. Same way with performance and on a dollars-and-cents basis. Contrast emphasizes Franklin's riding softness, handling simplicity, cooling dependability, and economy. The chorus is growing: the New Franklin is the greatest value in the fine car field.

Chrysler Alone Gives Chrysler Results

The Sedan

How highly the public prizes Chrysler performance, Chrysler riding qualities, Chrysler economy and Chrysler appearance is abundantly indicated by the car's constantly increasing popularity. The simple fact is that the Chrysler Six—and only the Chrysler—delivers results the public is eager to enjoy.

This is perfectly understandable when you really know the car, what it is like and what it does. It is unlike all other cars. With a touring car weight, ready for the road, of 2875 pounds, the Chrysler Six can be driven in comfort at 60 miles and upwards over rutted roads and cobbled streets.

Two advanced features contribute materially to the greater satisfaction enjoyed by Chrysler owners: a new type of spring mounting with rear springs close to the hubs and parallel to the wheels and the Chrysler-Lockheed hydraulic self-equalizing four-wheel brakes.

Owners will tell you what these typical Chrysler features mean in finer riding qualities and greater security of control. But no accurate conception is really possible unless you ride in the car. We are always eager to give you that opportunity.

ENTRIES POUR IN FOR TRIB BIKE DERBY MAY 24

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

With two weeks remaining before entries close for THE TRIBUNE's fourth annual bicycle Derby, to be held in Humboldt park on the morning of May 24, nominations are being received in large batches from unattached riders, but only one club, the Antlers Sportsmen, has made team entry.

As all entries must be in the hands of the board of control of the western division of the Amateur Bicycle League of America at least a week in advance of the race, it will be imperative to close the lists on May 17. After the board of control passes on the entries they will be turned over to the handicap committee, which will announce allowances for the twenty-two mile handicap, feature of the Derby.

Riders Must Be Registered.

In this connection, riders will aid greatly by making sure they are registered with the Amateur Bicycle League of America. This is the only requirement for participation, as no entry fee is necessary. Riders may register with the A. B. L. of A. at 2346 West North avenue; telephone, Humboldt 0121. J. T. Fitzgerald, well known local sportsman, is western representative of the league, which controls all amateur bicycle racing in America.

Contestants who register for THE TRIBUNE tourney will not be compelled to register for other derbies to be held during the year. The nominal fee of 50 cents is required, and if riders adhere to this request there will be no delays on the morning of the race. In the past it has been necessary to register numbers of riders, and this procedure has delayed the start of the opening event.

Nearly $1,000 in merchandise certificates will be given the place winners in seven events. In the twenty-two mile handicap, the feature race of the Derby, the winner will be rewarded with a certificate valued at $50. The scale will decrease until the twelfth rider to finish will receive a $5 check. There will be eight time prizes for the event, with the winner to receive a $50 certificate and the rider making the eighth fastest time will be given a $10 slip.

Team Trophy Offered.

In the class A, B, and C races the winners of first places will be given $25 certificates, second place winners $20, third $15, fourth $10, and fifth $5. In the boys' novice and girls' races the victors will be given $20 checks, second place winners $15, third $10, fourth $5 and fifth $3.

In addition to these rewards the club whose riders score the greatest number of points on a basis to be determined by the board of control of the western division of the A. B. L. of A. will be given a trophy emblematic of the team championship. Points will count in all races, but the board of control may see fit to increase the value of places in the 22 mile handicap.

296 Raced Last Year.

Last year's actual entry was 296, but this year's nominations are expected to break this record if the entries continue to come in as they have during the last week. An entry blank appears on the sports pages for the benefit of those who care to race. Contestants are requested to print their names in pencil and mail the blanks as indicated.

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

BEST AUCTION DEAL.

"What is the best deal that was ever played at auction?"

Recently a New York paper published a deal intended to answer this question, the special play being clever false carding. The writer believes that many much better deals have been played, and as there are about a dozen from which to choose, it is difficult to select one. With one exception, the first of the deals which follows the writer believes to be the best ever played, the Mona Lisa deal, as it was necessary for the declarer to play the play of the entire twenty-six cards before making his first play from dummy.

The second deal illustrates the most brilliant single play in the writer's experience.

West secured ten tricks.

It was necessary for the declarer to win three tricks in diamonds despite the strong combination held by south in that suit. It required no perspicacity to mark the lead of the trey as a singleton. The various things which the declarer had to do in the deal were all important and very pretty.

Winning the first diamond in the dummy at the first glance seemed a fatal play, but was really the only possible solution. The declarer was careful to unblock in the trump suit and perhaps the most important play in the whole deal was the lead of the club at trick four. It made little difference what south did after this trick, but he could hardly afford to play anything but hearts. Cleaning up the club suit in dummy, throwing dummy in with the trump, using his last trump not especially to get rid of the heart in dummy but to take the last heart out of the south hand, and a final beautiful play in diamonds makes in all the prettiest deal, at least that has ever been published.

LOCAL GOLF

RIDGE.

There was play and competition at Ridge, too. The sport came in the manner of a blind bogey contest, in which George H. Nelson copped the honors. Mr. Nelson shot an 89, and as he was a scratch shooter in the contest won the affair with that score. Charles G. Wigsall was second, 96 minus 7—89. J. K. Lamb was third, 76 plus 13—89. Ridge players are shooting on the permanent green and having bully sport. The first regular competition will be staged next Saturday.

RIDGEMOOR.

Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch, who is also president of the Ridgemoor Country club, set a good example for his cohorts yesterday by winning the first prize in 1925. The chief executive had a card of 88—8—80, which netted him the main trophy in the inaugural blind bogey event. There were so many tied for second place that Professional Howard Davis planned to put the matter of awarding the prize before the sports and pastimes committee.

EDGEBROOK.

Members and "prospects" for tickets in the Edgebrook Forest Preserve Golf club will meet today in a blind bogey event, with the mystic number set between 75 and 90.

ARMOUR GOLFERS EASY PREY FOR NOTRE DAME FOUR

BY MORROW KRUM.

There is now to be introduced to you through this pillar of type a quartette of Notre Dame athletes who will become known as the Four Horsemen of the tee boxes and who may keep the sobriquet in big letters throughout the spring. These four golf players visited Chicago yesterday and gave a neat trimming to the Armour Technical Institute golfers.

The affair took place on the Evergreen golf course and when the scores were added up the Horsemen were heavy winners, the figures standing 17 points to 5.

Lead in Individual Play.

In the morning round the teams lined up individually and Notre Dame counted nine points against one for Armour. Bulger of the visiting team was the sharpshooter, having turned in a 78. Shouse of Notre Dame was the main "point maker." He chalked up 3. The Nassau system of scoring was used.

After luncheon Capt. Ward of Notre Dame, paired with Adams, played Capt. Dunlap and Berg. Each of the Celts scored 3 points for a total of 6, whitewashing their opponents. Breslin subbed for Shouse of Notre Dame and teamed with Bulger, against Urban and Miller, counted one point each for a total of 2, while Urban made 3 and Miller made 1 for a 4.

Armour and Marquette Saturday.

Armour plays again next Saturday against Marquette university of Milwaukee at Evergreen.

The summary of yesterday's play follows:

The affair was a sweepstakes shoot for the purpose of determining handicaps of the players and prizes were given. F. C. O'Brien won the honors. He shot 103 and his handicap of 20 gave him an 83. Second was G. N. Lamb, 100 minus 17—83. Third H. E. Logan, 93 minus 10—83. Fourth A. J. Walworth, 101 minus 18—83.

CANNEFAX HAS CINCH ON TITLE IN CUE LEAGUE

It is now certain that at least one world's billiard champion will retain his crown for the season of 1924-'25. Willie Hoppe of New York, balkline king, is dethroned, and Ralph Greenleaf of Philadelphia, pocket title defender, is unseated, Robert Cannefax of New York, the three cushion emperor, still reigns. He has four games remaining in the third annual race of the National Championship Three Cushion Billiard league.

Only by losing all four of these games to C. R. Ellis of Pittsburgh, in New York on Wednesday and Thursday, will Cannefax have a chance to be even tied for first place. At that, Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, who is now in fourth place, would have to win all of his twelve remaining contests in order to tie. That appears outside the range of probability.

Stopped Reiselt's Run.

Cannefax has won 90 games and lost 38, while Reiselt has 78 wins and has 42 losses. The champion cinched his crown when he defeated Reiselt three out of four games in New York the other day, stopping the sensational rush of the Philadelphian. Reiselt then divided four with Ellis, but took a clean sweep from Harry Wakefield at Cleveland.

Gus Copulos of Detroit, who led the league most of the season, muffed his last chance when he divided a series with Tiff Denton at Detroit. This gave Copulos a lost record of 43, with only 81 victories and eight engagements yet to play. He had a chance to tie J. M. Layton of Minneapolis for second place, but nothing better than that. He tied the season's high run with a count of 14 and may share the prize for that performance.

Hall Plays Augie.

On Monday and Tuesday Ellis tackles Denton at Kansas City in an effort to prevent the latter from threatening fourth place. On Friday and Saturday at Philadelphia Reiselt plays his last games, Ellis invading. Wakefield has joined Layton in the ranks of finished schedules. A. K. Hall of Chicago has twelve games to play, eight with Kieckhefer, the first and last of the week, and four with Thurnblad on Wednesday and Thursday, all at Chicago. Schedule for the final week:

May 4-5, Reiselt and Denton at Kansas City, Jackson and Copulos at Detroit, Ellis and Lookabaugh at Boston, Kieckhefer and Hall at Chicago; May 6-7, Ellis and Cannefax at New York, Thurnblad and Hall at Chicago; May 8-9, Ellis and Reiselt at Philadelphia, Thurnblad and Copulos at Detroit, Kieckhefer and Hall at Chicago.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Maxwell's attractive plan. Maxwell dealers and superior Maxwell service everywhere.

The fast-increasing number of new good Maxwell cars on the streets is causing widespread comment. It is a perfectly logical happening, for no other four delivers the Maxwell combination of 58 miles an hour, 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds, and 25 miles to a gallon of gasoline.

But there are still greater satisfactions for the Maxwell owner. The car is completely manufactured within its own great plants. This is an advantage of genuine importance to the buyer. In no other way could you be assured of the quality that distinguishes the new good Maxwell from all other fours.

It is this high quality that accounts very largely for the dependable nature of Maxwell performance, the car's durability and, above all, costs of operation and maintenance so low as to create a new standard of economy.

We are always eager to demonstrate the new good Maxwell, for a ride in the car proves at once that it offers more fine motoring than was ever before available at the price.

ANDERSON AND RYAN CLASH IN RING TOMORROW

The indoor boxing season at East Chicago will come to a close tomorrow night when Eddie Anderson, the flashy bantamweight of Moline, Ill., and Tommy Ryan of McKeesport, Pa., clash in the main event. They will box ten rounds and weigh 122 pounds at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Mullen's gymnasium.

Anderson has shown his wares in and around Chicago on a number of occasions. He has been fighting better since he took Eddie Long as a manager and has lost but one fight in his last nineteen starts. Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., won a shade decision over Eddie in Milwaukee recently, but Graham's style of fighting, which resembles that of Pal Moore, proved a little puzzling to the Moline fighter at times. Eddie, however, wanted to fight, but Graham kept jumping and dancing around in such fashion that Anderson could not get a clean shot at him.

Ryan Rated High.

Ryan is considered a pretty fair bantamweight. He has met a number of the top-notchers of his division and always has put up pleasing fights. Both fighters completed strenuous training at local gymnasiums yesterday, but they intend to do light work today in order to make sure of being at weight.

In the eight round semi-windup, Frankie Hiplock of Calumet city will meet Danny Kahn of the west side at 145 pounds. Midget Dugan of Buffalo and "Irish Mickey" Cone of Kokomo, Ind., 120 pounders, will open the show in a four round engagement. Willie Brown and Bobby Cooper, west side featherweights, will trade punches in the second preliminary which will be six rounds. Danny Gasparo of the west side and Tom Midgat of Englewood, who scale 150 pounds, will be the principals in the other six round preliminary.

Train Leaves at 6:40.

Tickets are on sale at the usual places and a regular train will leave the Randolph street terminal of the Illinois Central at 6:40 o'clock tomorrow evening.

Henry Finnegan, matchmaker for the newly organized East Chicago A. C., which will stage bi-monthly outdoor shows during the summer, leaves for New York today to sign up leading fighters for the season. Finnegan is anxious to pit Paul Berlenbach against either Jimmy Slattery or Harry Greb for the opening show next month. Mickey Walker, the world's welterweight champion, may be one of the principals in a windup during the year, while Phil Rosenberg, the bantamweight titleholder, and Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., are others whom Finnegan will talk business to while in the east.

Efforts are being made to match Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., with Clarence Rosen of Detroit at East Chicago one week from tomorrow. Rosen recently held Phil Rosenberg to about an even thing, and Manager Eddie Long, who is also matchmaker for the East Chicago Indoor club, asserted he wants Taylor to engage in at least one bout before he takes Abe Goldstein in New York on May 25.

Jim Mullen, the Aurora promoter, will leave for New York tomorrow to arrange for his opening card on May 19. The East Chicago A. C. will stage its first outdoor show on June 5.

Pal Moore, well known local bantamweight, has returned from California and is eager to meet any of the 118 pounders. Moore has again placed himself under the management of Harry Hochstadter.

Joe Azzarella, the Milwaukee lightweight, is in Chicago and training at Mullen's gymnasium for pending bouts. Manager Hymie Lebe expects to close a match with Tommy Ryan for Des Moines the latter part of next week.

Bud Tiernan, Willie Galosha, Bud Neary, Jimmy Hayes, and other well known local boxers will appear at the amateur show at St. Phillip's gym on Tuesday night.

What Every Golfer Ought to Know in Buying Golf Balls

[being a frank and thorough explanation of "seconds."]

The newspapers now are filled with advertisements of "second" golf balls.

We hear of dollar balls for sale at 49c.

We hear of bargains so startling on balls so fine that you'd think every champion used no other kind.

Second is a tricky term.

You might be second to Nurmi in a race—or second to the runner on the Mudville Athletic Club team. There's a difference.

So ask yourself these questions when buying "seconds": What are the balls I am buying second to? Second to a good first—or second to a tank unknown? What makes them seconds?—are they not round, ill-balanced, not standard in weight and size, from old stocks, of obsolete makes?

A great number of the "seconds" on the market are what we would call "rejects," balls which are off center, not round, or held over from previous years.

In flight, power, and durability, Kro-Flites are considered the finest balls in golfdom—and the ball that is "second" to a Kro-Flite is finer than the "first" of most any other brand. "Seconds" are identical to firsts in cover, center, weight, and size—satisfaction is guaranteed.

They are "seconds" only because our standards are so high. The slightest molding defect, which makes not the slightest difference in your playing, makes them "seconds" and stamps them with a 2. In 1924 the demand was so great we couldn't begin to supply it. And now, with the introduction of improved molding methods and machinery in our factories, there will be practically no "seconds" produced. So buy them while you may.

Per dozen they are $5.75 . . . which fact can save you at least 35% on your yearly golf ball bill.

And probably save you many strokes upon your score card!

ENGEL TO MEET MEYERS IN 10TH MAT GO FRIDAY

When Johnny Meyers, the middleweight champion, and Heine Engel of Dubuque, Ia., the challenger, meet for the world's 160 pound wrestling title at the Broadway armory on Friday night, it will be the tenth meeting of this pair of wrestlers. Meyers has been the victor on five occasions, two have resulted in draws, while Engel was the winner twice.

Meyers, however, scored his victories when he was at the height of his career and Engel just beginning to show promise. In their last two encounters, the challenger has shown to the best advantage. The last time they met was at the Coliseum in the show for the tornado sufferers. They wrestled fifty-five minutes and although no decision was rendered, the general opinion of those around the ring was that Heine had the best of the go from a scientific wrestling standpoint.

Their Matches Fast.

Previous to the Coliseum show, the pair met in Dubuque, Ia., and Engel won in straight falls. Heine had Johnny in a bad way by successive use of head locks and then pinned him with double toe locks. On one other occasion they wrestled ninety minutes to a draw, but all their matches were featured by some sparkling grappling.

Having retrieved his title from Lou Talaber a short time ago, Meyers does not intend to be caught out of condition as he was when Joe Parelli took the championship from him in Milwaukee. The title holder is training industriously at the Arcade where he will work for the greater part of the week.

Engel Here Tomorrow.

Engel, who has been working in Dubuque, will be in Chicago tomorrow to finish preparation at the Mullen gymnasium. Heine is a strong favorite with local mat fans because of his clean wrestling and general knowledge of the game. He is a clean living grappler who is married and raising a family in Dubuque.

The challenger undoubtedly will depend upon his old tactics to defeat Meyers. He will apply the head lock repeatedly, hoping to wear down the champion so he will be easy prey for other locks. Johnny, as most fans know, is master of many holds any of which may bring defeat to the challenger.

It will be a strictly championship match. The wrestlers will weigh 160 pounds at Mullen's gymnasium at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon. They will wrestle to a finish, best two in three falls. The referee will be chosen by Engel, who must agree on any one of three arbiters to be named by Meyers.

In the one fall semi-windup Lou Talaber, former 160 pound champion, will meet Pete Katauski. Jim Logas, the Greek grappler under the management of Jim Mullen, will meet Jack Spurling of th Western Electric company in the opener. Charley Gribble, recognized eastern middleweight champion, will take holds with Antonio Rocco in the other bout.

The show will be staged by the 202d Coast Artillery and tickets are on sale at the usual places.

Stanislaus Zbyszko, the veteran Pole who defeated Wayne Munn in Philadelphia recently, and George Kotsonaros, the Greek heavyweight, top the card of mat bouts at the Coliseum tomorrow night. It will be the Pole's first appearance in Chicago since he defeated Munn. Hans Steinke, the German, will clash with Alex. Garkawienko, the ponderous Russian, in another bout of note. In the other matches Joe Stecher will meet Frank Judson and Renato Gardini will have Dan Kaloff as an opponent.

Munn-Lewis Match Purse Biggest in Mat History

The signing of Ed "Strangler" Lewis and Wayne "Big" Munn, who will wrestle for the heavyweight championship of the world and the gold and diamond championship belt now held by Lewis, in Floyd Fitzsimmons' Blue Sky arena at Michigan City on the afternoon of Decoration day, May 30, brings up the subject of "big gates" which have been attracted by championship wrestling matches in years gone by.

This match between Lewis and Munn is particularly interesting because it is the first time in the history of wrestling that two Americans have met for the championship with what can be considered a fat guarantee.

Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons closed this match by guaranteeing the participants a purse of $30,000. It might have been double that amount if Munn had not ignored the advice of his physician and insisted on going through with a match in Philadelphia, in which he was beaten by Stanislaus Zbyszko, who admitted afterward he realized at once Munn was in no condition when they first took holds.

Guarantee Sets Record.

As it is, the guarantee made by Fitzsimmons tops anything heretofore guaranteed for a wrestling event, even in these days of so-called million dollar purses for prize fights, but the match looms as the biggest attraction in many years and the interest already manifested shows clearly the match is one the public wants.

Probably the two other outstanding matches from a money standpoint were those two bouts which brought together George Hackenschmidt and Frank Gotch. Both of these matches were staged in Chicago and attracted record gates for their time.

The first match was promoted by W. W. Wittig, of Milwaukee, Wis. and was staged at the Dexter Park pavilion on April 3, 1908. That match drew a gate around $35,000 and the bout went for a little over two hours without a fall, Hackenschmidt finally giving up and leaving the ring.

On his return abroad Hackenschmidt bitterly criticized the treatment he received, claiming Gotch had been allowed to scratch and gouge and in other ways disregard the wrestling rules on fouling.

Return Match Drew $100,000.

This criticism led to a return match which was held at the White Sox ball park on Sept. 4, 1911. This match was promoted by Jack Curley and the receipts were more than $100,000. Hackenschmidt made a miserable showing and after the match Curley admitted the foreigner was in very poor condition and had been for some time before the match. Curley's excuse for going through with the bout regardless, hinged on the fact a lot of money had been expended to build up the attraction and he couldn't afford to "hold the bag" in case it had been called off. Jack Curley never has openly promoted a wrestling match in Chicago since that time.

These two bouts rank at the top of famous former championship matches, but the big interest in the coming Lewis-Munn match strongly indicates the Decoration day card at Michigan City will outshine all others in point of attendance.

Greb at Columbus, O., for Bout Tomorrow Night

Columbus, O., May 2.—Harry Greb, middleweight champion, arrived today to defend his title here Monday night in a 12-round bout with Billy Britton of Columbus, Kas.

BRATTAIN WINS LINCOLN TRAPS HANDICAP EVENT

Although J. R. Graham recorded 48 at a distance of 22 yards and was high gun in the 50 target handicap feature of the Lincoln park traps regular program yesterday afternoon, he was ineligible for the club trophy because of his being a professional. He had to relinquish his claim to the next highest, D. A. Raymond and Paul Brattain, who were tied with 47 apiece at 18 yards. Brattain won the shootoff.

B. Bergen with 48 was victor in the doubles by one point over H. M. Rowley. C. F. Taylor was third with 41.

A tie also resulted in the 20 gauge shoot at 50 targets between H. M. Rowley and H. D. Linden, which the former won in the shootoff. C. F. Taylor shot another place for the day when he finished third in this event, and L. St. Tierre placed fourth with a 31 count.

Don't Blame this Boy-
He is an American

This is a boy who has red blood in his veins.

I don't care whether he is twenty or sixty.

Youth is not a matter of years—but feeling.

This boy can laugh without hurting himself.

He thinks there is a little kick in the world yet.

He is not suffering from anemia.

He has circulation and everything.

Above all he is going somewhere.

And he does not drag his feet.

He knows there is an adventure beyond the next turn.

He has driven motor cars since Henry Ford was just rich.

The curved dash car came —and he saw it go.

The carry-all came

—and he saw that go.

The two cylinder and the four came to the chosen American people —and the six followed in turn.

The two cylinder gave him a thrill and the old sulky and gray mare passed out.

The four was a knockout when the two cylinder got bumpy.

Of course the six was heavenly

—until

—the day of The Great Line Eight arrived.

This is a boy who has red blood in his veins.

He loves the feel of the sturdy wheel

—the snap and go of a brawny car

—the passing thrill in the traffic press

—the throttle kick when she gets away quick.

He is human—he is alive—he is natural

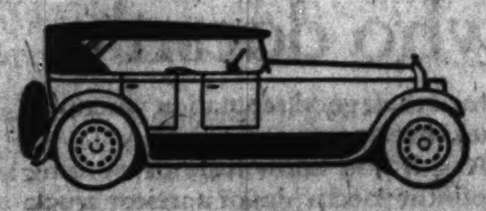
—well—he is just an American.

Give me the words to say this thing—

Get out and drive two hundred miles.

What makes you say when you get there—

"This is AN automobile."



I don't know—you tell me.

[The Great Jordan Line Eight sells for $1000 to $2000 below any car in its class. Remember it's an Eight. Of course, it costs more than most sixes. It's an Eight.]

Annual Survey Shows Cost Drop in American Car

Industry Reports Huge Contribution to U. S. Prosperity.

MOTOR cars on the average cost 29 per cent less today than they did before the war, while commodities in general cost 67 per cent more, according to "Facts and Figures of the Automobile Industry," 1925 edition, which is now coming off the presses.

This booklet is published annually by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. It summarizes, from government sources and its own researches, the main facts, historical and current, dealing with motor transportation.

Production, registration, exports, service, commercial vehicles, highways, and taxation are among the topics covered. While the rechecking of production and registration figures shows little change from the advance data published earlier in the year, the booklet contains many new studies along taxation, highway, and other lines not previously printed.

With the average retail price of a car now listing at $825, automobiles cost 29 per cent less today than before the war. Stated in agricultural terms, the farmer today needs only one-third as much wheat, less than one-third as much corn, one-half the amount of cotton, or one-half the number of hogs to buy an automobile today, compared with the relative cost of cars and farm products in 1913.

The profits of the railroads from the automobile business is brought out. The total freight receipts of the steam roads from motor products for one year were $400,982,000, while the taxes which they paid toward highways during that period were $34,163,692.

This money paid by the railroads in highway taxation is 3.6 per cent of the total highway bill. Motor vehicles pay more than 40 per cent of this bill in special fees and levies; and the remainder is raised by general taxation.

Exports of motor vehicles in 1924 totaled 386,580, including cars and trucks assembled abroad. This is 17½ per cent larger than the 1923 figure and is the largest export business ever done by the industry in one year. The total foreign consumption of American motor vehicles, including machines of United States design both produced and consumed in Canada, was 464,211.

Federal motor vehicle excise taxes 1917-1925, totaled $799,385,399, or more than twice as much as the amount of federal money paid out toward highways in that period, which was $380,528,813.

LESS FROM NEW CARS.

Only about 43 per cent of the income in the [illegible] industry is expected to come from the sale of new cars and trucks. The rest of the returns will come from their maintenance and operation.

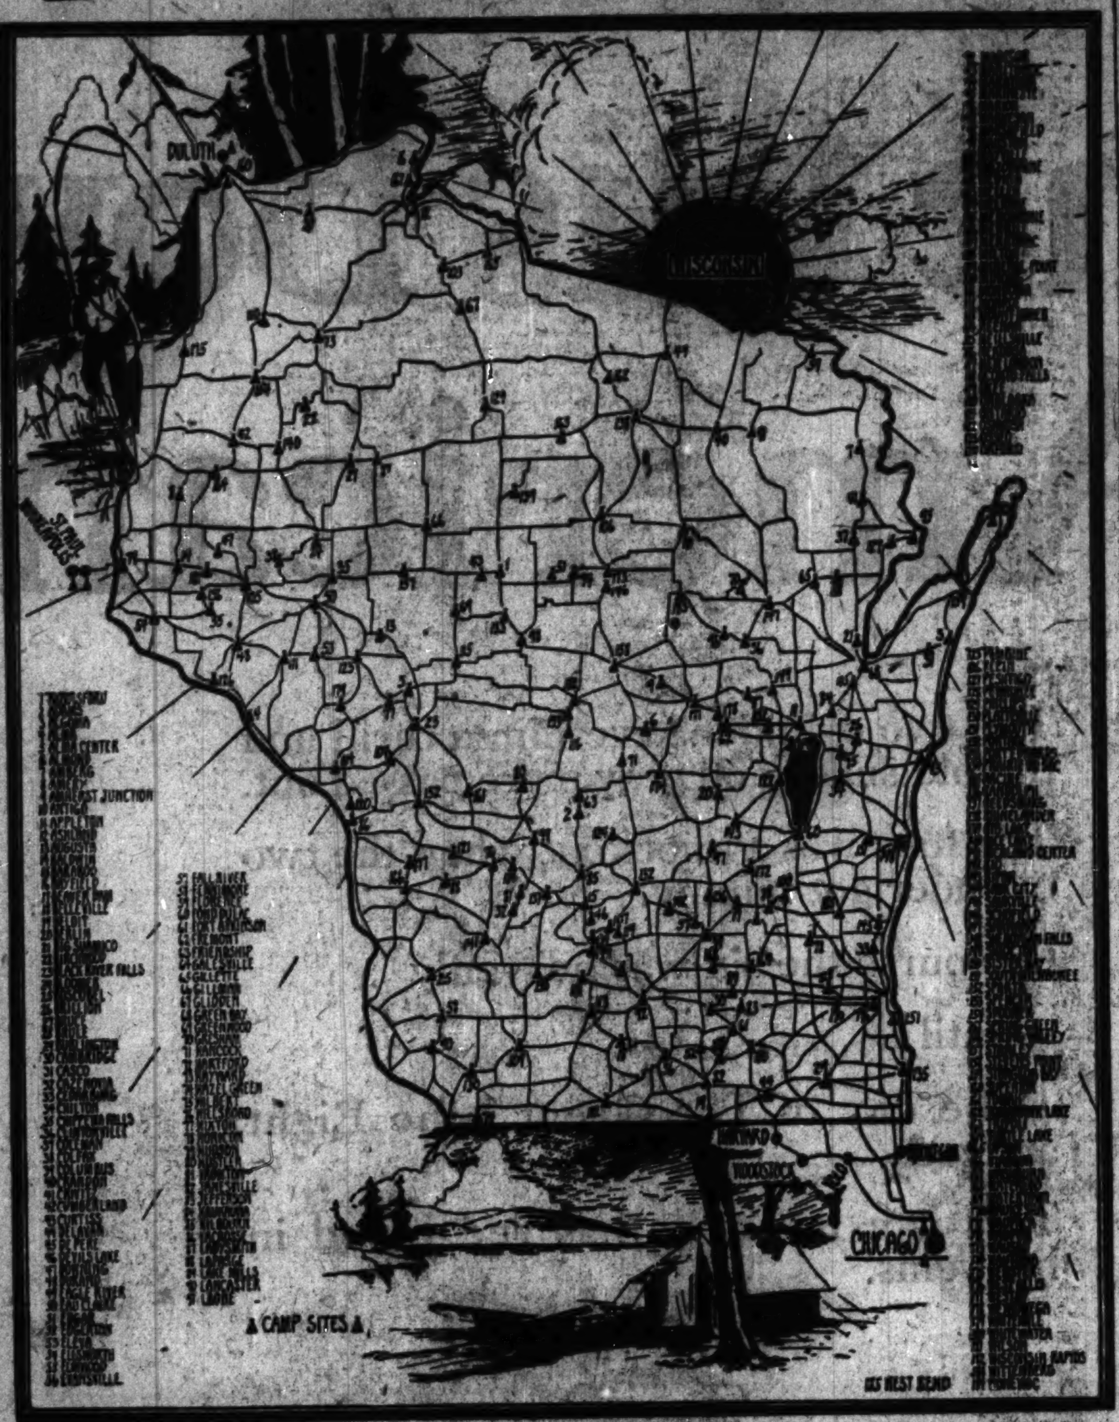
II.—TOURIST HOMES IN WISCONSIN



WISCONSIN is opening its hospitable portals to the world of motor tourists this year with 185 picturesque free camps to augment its famous state highway system and perfect road marking equipment.

The state, long a leader in the science of tourist trade and entertainment, is making a strong bid for leadership in the national race for better camp sites. In practically every town and village beautiful parks have been set aside for the use of motorists. Dotted at convenient intervals through the lake country of the central and northern counties there are scores of lovely reserves built into the few remaining strips of virgin timber, where every convenience of the modern tourist home is combines with the charm of original pines.

This up to the minute map of the main roads in Wisconsin locates all of the camps so far reported for the 1925 season, although it is probable that a score or more new sites will be established during the spring and summer. The annual pilgrimage to the north has already begun and it is expected that all of the sites shown will soon be filled to capacity.

Prison Labor.

One of the finest stretches of concrete road in the state of New Jersey, a distance of 7.8 miles, between Lakewood and Toms river, was recently completed by 150 prisoners. The highway was constructed in the record time of 120 working days.

Vertical-8-Superfine

Above 55 miles per hour—at that speed when other motors begin to whip and thrash, and vibrate violently—when the exhilaration of rapid motion is discounted by the sound and other evidences of supreme effort—that is when the distinctive qualities of the "Vertical-8-Superfine" appear.

There's no describing the pleasurable sensation of driving a car of super-power and speed—with extreme silence and smoothness.

This is one of those phenomena which must be experienced to be understood.

Developments Exceeding
A Hundred Million Dollars
The Cream of Chicago's Properties to Select From

The thought of real estate suggests the firm of Krenn & Dato—and rightly so, for Krenn & Dato's leadership in the real estate field is firmly established and unquestioned.

The great stability and almost unlimited resources of Krenn & Dato have made it possible for the firm to command the very best subdivision properties in and out of Chicago—properties strategically located in the paths of great development and sure to make money for those who invest in them.

Look at the map above and note the many opportunities for profit. First consider the three and a half miles of lake frontage just south of Kenosha [1]. A great resort city is contemplated here which is destined to become the playground of the middle west. Then to the south comes Marquette Highlands [2] at Waukegan—on the threshhold of this growing city. Still further south, the Highland Park Highlands [3]—on the exclusive North Shore, offering most ideal homesites. Niles Center [4]—a group of properties which the "L" is fast increasing in value. North Edgewater [5]—in Chicago's rapidly growing North Side. Berwyn Gardens [10] and Riverside properties [11]—ideal home and business sites. La Grange [12]—desirable southwest suburban property. Calumet Highlands [14]—in the rich and rapidly growing Calumet district. Lincoln and Albany apartment homes [6]—thirty-two, two-flat buildings for sale on a liberal purchase plan [fifteen are sold to date]. Devonshire [7]. 3520-30 Sheridan Road [8]. Aldine [9]. South Shore Manor [13]—four buildings in which apartments are rented and also sold on the co-operative purchase plan.

In addition to the many projects mentioned here, Krenn & Dato have acreage for sale in practically every state in the Union and in Canada. With developments of such magnitude, is it any wonder that the mention of real estate immediately brings to mind the firm of Krenn & Dato—the largest real estate organization in the world!

Your inquiry concerning any of our developments is welcomed—we will gladly furnish all particulars. Call in person, telephone or mail the convenient coupon below—it will not obligate you in any way.

$175,000,000 Spent in Michigan for Highway System

New Vacation Spots to Be Opened by 1925 Program.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—Announcement is made by Secretary Hugh J. Gray of the Michigan Tourist and Resort association that with the $18,000,000 to be expended in 1925 by the state in highway construction, Michigan has a $175,000,000 hard road system.

All of the funds provided under the Connelly $50,000,000 road bill have been expended, that fund having been completed in the last year and the 1925 expenditure is with new money raised by the state. This amounts to some $18,000,000, which will provide Michigan with additions to the great system of interconnecting highways and trunk lines. In west Michigan it will open up resort sections that have hitherto not been entirely accessible to motorists. Virgin forests and lakes will become part of the itinerary of thousands of motorists through the efforts of the road builders.

Great tracts of territory near west Michigan's shore line will be the scene of summer sports.

There are at present two noted highways that stretch from the southern state line to Mackinaw at the north, known respectively as the West Michigan pike and the Mackinaw trail. Present and proposed road construction will offer new feeder lines to these highways, and new branch roads for vacationists. These will, however, remain as the backbone of the west Michigan highway system, in line with the state's original plan.

All indications point to an ever increasing volume of motor traffic, and the state is preparing to take care of it well in advance of immediate requirements. Auto parks and free camping sites have been added and hotel facilities increased, until the organization for caring for visitors is more than adequate for the 1925 season. Whatever the traffic may be for the season of 1925, it will find Michigan in a better condition than ever before.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

A GROWING demand for the closed one seat type car of low initial cost and all year round reliability brought out the new Star "coupster," according to the Durant interests. The newcomer, introduced at $625, is the lowest priced one seat closed car in its field.

L. K. Cooper, regional sales manager for Chevrolet, has announced the removal of supervising headquarters for the Chicago zone from 2612 Michigan avenue to the Wrigley building. Service and accounting departments of the zone have been removed to the Janesville (Wis.) plant and the wholesale end will be handled from the new Chicago location.

The Lafayette Markle company, Rickenbacker and Rollin distributor, has opened its new Ridgeway branch at 3740 Lawrence avenue to care for the northwest Chicago sales district.

Increasing rubber prices, due to the British restriction act, are held responsible for announcement yesterday by the Firestone Tire and Rubber company of a 5 per cent price increase on regular cord tires and 10 per cent on tubes, solids, and bus and truck pneumatics. No advance is shown on fabrics, balloons, or 3½ inch cords.

A sport touring car has been added to the Lincoln line. The new car is practically a duplicate of the model displayed at this year's automobile salon in the Drake. Factory reports show a Lincoln sales increase of 35 per cent for the first quarter this year, as compared to the same period in 1924.

Save Your Motor.

The speedometer is not the only guide to follow in deciding when to shift down to second on a hill. Load, road, and weather conditions frequently make it advisable to shift at a lower car speed one time than another, and vice versa. It's all a matter of avoiding strain. The moment the car begins to reveal evidence of engine vibration the driver should take this as a tip to shift. One of the handiest guides in this connection is the handle of the emergency brake. It is bound to vibrate when the engine has started to labor. If it quivers, shift.

Clutch Is Large.

A clutch which appeals to women because of its ease of operation, and to men because of its reliability and long life, is the type of clutch developed by the series 80 Pierce-Arrow. This clutch is a single-plate type and is the largest used on any make of standard car.

LOW PRICED CAR FAVORED.

Suiting their output to popular demand, the French automobile manufacturers this year have given the greatest attention to small powered, low priced cars.

The Stutz Six Sedan

Announcing the 1935
STUTZ SIX

HERE is the announcement of a car that should be giving good service in 1935—STUTZ SIX, Series 694 or 695. You'll find it waiting for your inspection—proven by records of other Stutz cars to show you that ten years of good service is a conservative and reasonable estimate of this car's ability to endure.

Remember—this is the best built car that ever bore the Stutz name.

Four out of every five cars ever turned out by this factory are still in service.

The factory parts records show that Stutz owners are operating their cars at one-third the average cost of replacements for like cars.

Actual evidence from Stutz owners points to longer life and lower upkeep cost from this new Stutz. Built into it are not only the factors of endurance, but wonderful acceleration, amazing hill climbing and extraordinary ability to sustain road speed—unmatched performance under every condition.

Let us give you added evidence of its easy riding and driving; its beauty of line, finish and appointment; and the greatest value you can buy in any car—the ability to give longer, better and more satisfactory service. The Stutz Six of 1935 awaits you—here and now!

AT a recent meeting of retail grocers in Chicago, 33 out of 45 merchants present reported from $800 to $2200 tied-up in "shelf warmers." Inquiry revealed that this merchandise consisted mostly of non-advertised products. The moral is obvious. Handling quick-turning, quality products, such as are advertised in the Woman's Home Companion, is the key to sure profits and real success in modern retailing

C. W. Schaub

How C. W. Schaub & Co. built a $250,000 retail business

This method is one that any retail merchant can use

For twenty-three years C. W. Schaub has conducted at 4527 Broadway one of the finest food stores in Chicago.

His sales today are $250,000 a year—an average of more than $4800 a week.

About 75 per cent of this business comes to him over the telephone. Every morning four men do nothing but take phone orders.

In a highly competitive trade area he draws business from six miles around his store.

The secret of Schaub's success

To two things Schaub largely attributes his success. One is service.

The other is reliance upon nationally advertised quality products.

"Before I stock a new product," he says, "I always require the salesman to show me the national advertising behind it."

But Schaub's idea goes farther than that. For more than twenty years he has consistently tied-up with manufacturers' national advertising.

He has a mailing list of over 5,000. He distributes hand bills to thousands of homes. He uses newspaper advertising.

Why he does this he explains in the statement above. It's a secret, he says, of his success.

Help from manufacturers

Schaub, in other words, takes fullest advantage of the work that manufacturers are doing to help him get more trade.

In the columns at the right, for instance, is a list of products advertised in the Woman's Home Companion—America's greatest woman's magazine. Schaub carries 100 per cent of the products in his line that are listed here. Why? Because he knows that this advertising is the best kind of local advertising for him—just as it is for you.

Customers that pay

Manufacturers know that this advertising in the Woman's Home Companion brings the best kind of customers into your store.

They know that the Woman's Home Companion has always been planned and edited to serve the most substantial class of families—2,000,000 in all. Not wealthy people, necessarily, but above the average. They own their homes; they feed and clothe their families with the best. Their monthly accounts run into a good figure, and they pay them promptly.

People of this type are the backbone of any kind of business. To get more of them as customers is to build a strong, profitable business. Only a few more would make a big difference in your net profit at the end of the year.

How manufacturers have paved the way

That is the reason manufacturers advertise regularly in the Woman's Home Companion—to bring more of this high grade trade into your store.

They do it to help you make a good profit and build a bigger business—because, after all, their business is dependent upon yours.

That, too, is why they go a step farther and provide you with window trims, counter displays and attractive packages. By this means you can let people know where to get the goods after desire for them has been created.

The simple, easy steps to better business

Right now scores of women in your neighborhood are reading manufacturers' advertisements in the May Woman's Home Companion—advertisements of products you carry.

If you canvassed your neighborhood you would undoubtedly find this so in every fourth or fifth home you visited.

As a direct result of this advertising, thousands of dollars will be spent for merchandise in your trade area this month.

Whether you are in the grocery, drug, hardware, clothing, jewelry or any other line of business, you can get this trade in the same way that C. W. Schaub and thousands of other successful merchants are getting it.

> SECOND: Feature this merchandise—let people know that you carry these Companion-advertised products.

Start now to make your store known as the place where these products can be bought. Begin this week to use more and more of the display material manufacturers have sent you, and to build up a clientele of steady-buying, profitable Woman's Home Companion customers.

National Roads to Be Plainly Marked Across Continent

Highway Chiefs of All the States Agree on System.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

TENTATIVE agreement on the form and color of warning and directional signs to mark the principal interstate roads of the country was reached by the joint board on interstate highways in its recent session at Washington. Highways to be marked as interstate roads, for which the name "United States Highways" has been proposed, will be selected after a series of regional meetings of members of the board with highway officials of groups of states.

As the membership of the board is made up of state and federal officials in charge of highways and is representative of the departments in control of the state roads of all states, it is anticipated that the recommendations of the board will be translated into definite action within a few months.

The routes selected as United States highways will be numbered and marked uniformly in all states with a standard marker. All state highway departments will be asked to submit proposals for the design of the marker. The design tentatively proposed by the board consists of a United States shield with a white background bearing in black the letters "U. S.," the number of the route in large numerals, and the name of the state in which the marker is erected.

Differences which now exist between the warning and danger signs in use by the various states will also be eliminated when the recommendations of the board are adopted, at least so far as the interstate roads are concerned. Tentative proposals adopted at the first meeting of the board call for the adoption of a standard round sign for marking all railroad crossings; an octagonal sign to indicate danger or stop; a diamond shaped sign for caution or slow; a square sign to indicate "look" or attention; and a rectangular shape for directional or informational signs.

Colors tentatively adopted for nonluminous signs are yellow for warning and danger signs and white for directional and informational signs including the route markers. Lettering on both classes of signs will be in black. For luminous and reflecting signs the colors tentatively selected are red for danger, yellow for caution and green to indicate "go."

Standardization of the sizes of all signs and the lettering on them will be referred to a subcommittee of the board.

All recommendations of the board with regard to the shape, size, and color of signs will be submitted to the highway departments of all states for consideration before final adoption by the board.

The regional meetings for the selection of the United States highways will be held within the next two months, probably in San Francisco, Kansas City, Chicago, Atlanta, New York and Boston. Action taken at these meetings will be reviewed and correlated at the next meeting of the board to be held early in August.

The board has decided to adopt as its policy the recommendation of the American Association of State Highway Officials that the reputable trails associations now existing be permitted to continue their markings unless they conflict with the marking systems and policies now in force in the several states. But no trail association will be permitted to establish further routes on state or federal-aid roads. The board commends to the attention of all citizens the warning of the association to investigate carefully the responsibility of trail organizers and to demand convincing evidence insuring proper expenditure of funds before contributing to or otherwise supporting such agencies.

Start now to Make your Ford ride like a Lincoln

You can now get all the wonderful advantages of balloon tires without extra cost! The opportunity you have been waiting for is here!

Michelin Clincher Balloons for Ford cars now cost practically the same as ordinary regular-size cords, and actually less than over-size cords.

And you can change to them one at a time as your old tires wear out. This is how to do it:

When you need a new tire, just buy one Michelin Clincher Balloon and mount it as a spare. Then when you put that spare into use, buy another Michelin Clincher Balloon and mount the two balloons on your rear wheels, using one of your high-pressure tires for your spare. Repeat the process on front wheels. If, in the meantime, you are compelled to run with a Michelin Clincher Balloon and a high-pressure tire opposite one another, you can do so temporarily without any inconvenience or harm.

Michelin Clincher Balloons fit Ford clincher rims without any change whatsoever.

Resolve now that with your next tire purchase you'll start enjoying the advantages of balloon tires.

Out of about 9,000,000 balloons of all makes now running, more than 3,000,000 are Michelins.

In The Desert Water Is Priceless

THE fate of an entire caravan can depend on one small water-hole. At an oasis in the wilderness, the value of water is beyond calculation; and though, in a modern city, there is less to impress us with its precious character, yet even here the cold logic of dollars and cents reminds us that water has a definite and very substantial cash value.

Did you ever realize that the cost of the water wasted in Chicago is enough in thirty years to buy the surface and "L" lines and dig the central part of the proposed subway? Half the total pumpage is lost through preventable extravagance—and pumped water is a costly convenience.

Watrous

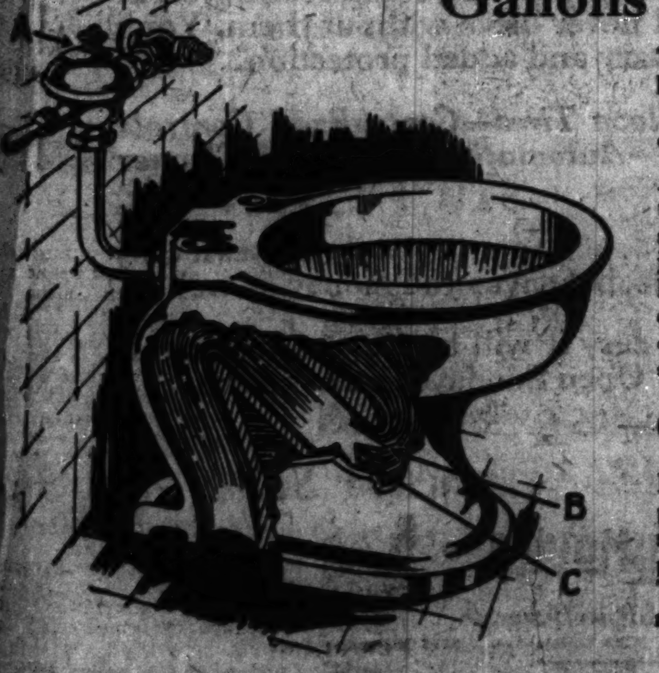
Duo-Jet Closets and Flush Valves

Cut Water Cost to One-Third
Save $3,000 or More a Year in Many Buildings

According to City Engineer Ericson, 150,000,000 gallons are wasted in Chicago every day by water closets that flush inefficiently. An avoidable loss of $3,000 or more through this cause is borne every year by many a building containing a fairly liberal installation of closets.

But there is one type of closet combination—and only one—that can prevent this water-waste—and the money-loss that it involves. The Watrous Duo-Jet Bowl, used in combination with the Watrous Flush Valve, accomplishes an annual saving of so great a sum of money that no owner of a large building can afford to ignore it.

Accurate Tests Show a Saving of 3 to 6 Gallons at Every Flush



The laboratories of the Armour Institute of Technology, Chicago, have conducted a series of tests which show that the Watrous Flush Valve and Duo-Jet Bowl use 30 to 38% of the water required by one of the most efficient competitive closet combinations.

A regulating device in the Watrous Flush Valve (A in the sketch on the left) supplies to the bowl the exact quantity of water required for a thorough flush and refill—and no more. Two powerful converging jets (B and C) instantly empty the bowl, expending less than 2 gallons of water for the flush and refill, against 5 to 7 gallons—or more—consumed by the commonly used syphon type of bowl. Maximum economy is therefore obtained by using the Watrous Flush Valve and Duo-Jet Bowl in combination.

Clogging and Overflowing Prevented

By dispensing with syphonic action, the need of narrow, zigzag outlet passages is eliminated. Clogging and overflowing, frequent with the syphon type, are thereby avoided—also the resulting expense for repairs, redecorating walls in lower rooms, annoyance to tenants, etc. The improvement in sanitary service is therefore accompanied by a money-saving which should be added to the economies named above.

Ask Your Architect and Plumbing Contractor

If you intend to put up a building—no matter what kind—office-skyscraper, hotel, bungalow or factory, consult your architect and plumbing contractor regarding water-economy—and sanitation.

Before the walls go up, ask for their candid opinion of the Watrous Flush Valve and Duo-Jet Bowl. Refer the question of sanitation to them and the non-clogging feature. Ask them to be specific about the economies made possible by the Watrous valve-and-bowl combination.

And, to inform yourself more completely, write to us for booklet S. T.

Pioneer Trail Is Last Bond Issue Road in Illinois

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., April 25.—[Special.]—What in all probability will be the last road to be constructed of those designated by the $60,000,000 bond issue map is known as route 39 and extends from Bloomington to Champaign, a distance of approximately forty miles. This road was not placed upon the first map that was prepared by the state highway department, but, due to the energy and activity of some of the influential residents, was added just before the bond issue was submitted to a vote.

Objection was raised at the time that a parallel road, known as route 9, extending east from Bloomington to the Indiana state line via Paxton and Hoopeston, had previously been incorporated into the program. The promoters of route 39 refused to step aside or agree to wait for the $100,000,000 bond issue as they were advised to do. They stood pat and their persistency was rewarded.

The first lettings for paving the route have been made for the sections towards the Champaign end. The last will be for the Bloomington end.

Probably all would have been given attention at the same time but for some objections upon the part of residents in Gillum and vicinity who complained because the road gave that village a detour, missing it by a mile. A new route was suggested and sufficient influence brought to bear to secure a new survey. A massmeeting was held in Bloomington to discuss the situation and both sides of the controversy agreed to abide by the recommendations of the engineers after taking a second trip over the rival routes. This resulted in a recommendation that the original line be followed, due to lesser cost and fewer engineering problems. This report was followed by the release of the maps and deeds of dedication for necessary right of way. The deeds are now being signed as the required land is procured.

Route 39 is historic, due to the fact that it follows the main trail of the Indians and later the settlers from the east. As the pioneers worked their way west 100 years ago, there were three great routes, one via the great lakes, another via the Ohio river, while the third entered Illinois near the present site of Danville and extended westward to Peoria. The present road varies but little from that early trail of a century ago over which the pioneers in oxcarts trekked their way to the unknown west. Its sinuous course from Champaign to Bloomington made it difficult for the state engineers to prepare their maps and secure the desired freedom from curves. They announced that no other road in the bond issue map gave them so much trouble or was attended with so many engineering difficulties, due to its diagonal contour and irregularity. The original name, given to the road by the motor clubs, Diagonal trail, was well applied.

Yellowstone Opens

All main roads to Yellowstone National park will be in good condition when the formal opening of the park takes place on June 18 at West Yellowstone, Montana, the western entrance to the park.

Although the hotels and permanent camps will not be open until June 18, when the roads are free from snow, which sometimes occurs several weeks earlier, motorists having their own camping equipment will be permitted to enter the park. Food supplies are obtainable at the park stores.

Rose Highway.

Vancouver Kiwanis club members have commenced planting 700 rose bushes along the North Bank highway between this city and Camas, fourteen miles east of here. The plants are of the Crimson Rambler variety.

Test Oakland Performance

Come in today—see this car—drive it.

Then you'll know why we're eager to have you match Oakland performance against any other car you know.

Then you'll know why this Coach at $1215 gives you more dollar for dollar value than any car at any price.

The man who told us the following owns two automobiles—an Oakland Six and a much more expensive car. We will let his word speak for us.

"I can travel crowded streets in quicker time, but without excessive speed, in my Oakland than any car I have ever driven.

"I have never seen a car that gets through traffic the way that Oakland does. It seems fairly to pick its openings and literally to dart through them.

"But you always feel safe, for the way those four-wheel brakes take hold is positively wonderful.

"And talk about quick getaway! Why I am yards ahead of the nearest car the minute the green light flashes.

"But it's on the open road where you can really let go, that you appreciate Oakland speed. My speedometer hit the sixty-five mark recently with still something to spare.

"And it's where the grades are steep and the going heavy that you gain your appreciation of Oakland's power and smoothness. You ought to see me take those hills—on high."

This is a fine word picture of Oakland performance, but it's nothing different from what we hear every day.

If you're spending around a thousand dollars for a car you've a right to expect—and should not be satisfied without—these features of advanced engineering which put the Oakland a year ahead of its class.

Six-Cylinder L-Head Engine—admittedly a distinct advance in engine design and efficiency—built to standards as exact as the finest airplane motors—special bronze-backed bearings—cylinder walls honed to mirrorlike smoothness—full pressure lubrication system. No wonder it is so powerful, speedy, flexible and yet so economical.

Oakland 4-Wheel Brakes—Two years of demonstrated success. Any motorist who has ever experienced the driving comfort and greater safety of four-wheel brakes will never drive without them. Your family deserves this very necessary and added protection.

Duco Finish—Body by Fisher—Balloon Tires—Centralized Controls—V. V. One-Piece Windshield—Automatic Windshield Cleaner—Disc Wheels—all at no extra cost.

Liberal Time Payment Plan—Our Special plan not only makes it easy to buy this car on time payments, but saves you money as well.

Bring your used car in and see how easy it will be for you to get this new and advanced automobile. Open Sundays and evenings.

FARM AND GARDEN

American Women Rank Among Best Cattle Breeders

And Chicago Girl Holds Record as Judge of Shorthorns.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

WOMEN in America, as well as in England and Scotland, rank among the outstanding cattle breeders in the country. Persons of royalty and of political and social high standing in foreign countries are owners of some of the finest herds and flocks, and evidence of the same tendency is found in the United States in both the city and country.

King George owns a fine herd of Shorthorns; the Duke of Westminster, the richest peer in all of Great Britain, is the owner of large herds, and the Prince of Wales has two herds, one on his farm in England and another on his Canadian ranch. For years America has had kings and dukes and princes in cattledom but they have not been known by such terms of nobility—just Tom and Dick and Harry.

Women abroad are also owners of some of the finest bred herds in the land, taking a keen personal interest in their farms. Lady Cathcart, owner of Cluny farm at Aberdeenshire, Scotland, is one of the prominent cattle breeders of her country. In recent years America has had her ladies of cattledom, too, but they are just called Mary and Martha and Jane.

Call of the Wild.

American women's interest in farming, in cattle breeding, may be a sort of "call of the wild," as Jack London put it in his story of the wild life of a dog. His hero, a great St. Bernard and Scotch shepherd dog, a pet of a large estate, eventually "responded to the call of the wild, harking back to the life of his remote forbears as leader of a pack of wolves." So the interest which women in this country are taking in cattle may be a harking back to the life and interests of their foreign farmer ancestors.

Miss Helen Lowes, a Chicago girl of Scotch and English parents, "probably the best known person of her age among Shorthorn breeders of the country," according to Prof. Rosco R. Snapp, University of Illinois, is one of America's "ladies" of cattledom. Miss Lowes, who lives at 4615 Hermitage avenue, owns one of the best small herds in the Mississippi valley.

Just as other girls take college courses and train themselves to become teachers, writers, doctors, lawyers, nurses, and economic experts, Miss Loewes has spent her time in a university studying the scientific breeding of live stock, emphasizing particularly the breeding, feeding and management of cattle. She spent a year at Northwestern university, and then entered the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, in the fall of 1919, and took practically every course offered in animal husbandry work.

Had No Experience.

Before entering college her only experience with animals was her pet dog and pony. Prof. Snapp says, "As I recall, Miss Lowes had had no experience at all in farming or in handling animals. Nevertheless, she showed an exceptional interest in her animal husbandry work from the start. She registered in practically every animal husbandry course she could, and took forty hours of the fifty hours of undergraduate work then offered in animal husbandry.

In her first live stock judging courses she was one of seven students out of section of forty-four to receive a grade of A. Six girls and thirty-eight men were in this section. Three of the seven A's given were earned by the girls. Of the three girls Miss Lowes was the only one who had not been farm reared."

In fact, Miss Lowes has lived all of her life on Hermitage avenue, Chicago. While in school at Urbana, she spent Saturday and Sunday afternoons at the University farm looking over the animals, and she knew practically every cow and calf in the college herd. She made frequent visits to neighboring breeders' farms and spent hours talking with them about their cattle, lines of breeding, pedigrees, etc.

Good Eye and Memory.

Prof. Snapp says Miss Lowes was always willing to cut class to attend a cattle sale, and drove her own car, thinking nothing of going 200 miles to see a good herd of cattle.

"She has a good eye for a good animal and a good memory for pedigrees and blood lines," adds her former instructor.

In a hoof and horn club live stock judging contest in 1921, Miss Lowes won first in competition with more than fifty men, many of whom had had wide experience in handling cattle.

"Do you encourage women to take up animal breeding at college?" Prof. Snapp was asked.

"We do not," he said. "We treat them the same as the men students; offer them the same facilities and give them the same opportunities. Each year from two to five women register for the general agricultural course at the Illinois Agricultural college."

"Is there a real field in animal breeding for women?"

"I do not know," said the instructor. "If they are to inherit the management of land, such training will be of much value to them and will enable them to intelligently direct the management of their farms. But for the girl without land I should question the advisability of such a course."

Father Gives Her Farm.

Miss Lowes was graduated from the college of agriculture at the University of Illinois in 1922. She immediately went into the business of raising Shorthorn cattle, buying her first cow the year before finishing school. During her first year out of school her father bought her a 160 acre farm, which is known as Ravens Hill farm near Kitchell, Ind., eighty-five miles southeast of Indianapolis. She now owns a herd of eighteen head, including calves. All of the animals are registered in Helen's name.

On Ravens Hill farm there are representatives of five Shorthorn families, including Simmer's Fancy stock, Cattle with some of the blood lines of White Hall Sultan, recognized as the greatest bull that ever lived in America, are to be found in Miss Lowes' foundation herd.

Miss Lowes was the lone woman, bundled up in a raccoon skin coat, who attended the last Shorthorn congress sale and banquet recently held at the Union stockyards. She buys all her cattle, works out the breeding schedules, keeps all the records, and looks after the management of the farm generally. All of the Ravens Hill farm cattle have been tested for tuberculosis and are on the road to being put on the federal accredited herd list.

Just Like a Man.

Miss Lowes, member of the Gamma Pi Alpha sorority, an honorary agricultural sorority for girls, does her own thinking and planning just as a man. Plugging around on the farm in her knickerbockers with Sandy, her Airedale dog, for a guard, she plans her crop and live stock operations in every detail.

"I do not think it wise to raise cattle without keeping some other kind of live stock," said Miss Lowes. "I am keeping Duroc-Jersey hogs in order to get a quick return, especially while I am establishing my herd of Shorthorns."

William Johnson, fieldman of the Shorthorn World, says Miss Lowes' herd is above the average of the smaller ones.

"LADY" OF CATTLEDOM

Miss Helen Lowes of 4615 Hermitage avenue, Chicago, is outstanding judge of Shorthorns and owner of herd on her Ravens Hill farm, Kitchell, Ind. Miss Lowes took up cattle breeding as a life work immediately after being graduated at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, where she took practically every course offered in animal husbandry.

Prefer the Farm.

Farm boys in Iowa are not restless and wild about coming to the city, if the survey recently made in that state indicates the attitude of the Hawkeye state's rural youths. The survey among the average farm boys in that state showed that about five would stay on the farm for every one who plans to go to the city.

MOTORDOM

Better Roads Cut Four Cents a Mile from Travel Cost

MINNESOTA county agents last year operated forty-seven automobiles at an average total expense of less than 7¼ cents a mile, compared to more than 11½ cents in 1920, the year the state good roads plan went into effect. The figures are from reports made by the county agents to the extension division of the University of Minnesota.

The average mile cost on the representative group of cars was slightly higher last year than the year before. The biggest increase was in depreciation on the older cars as fixed by dealers' valuation in a lower used car market. With exceptions of three middle class machines, the county agents' cars as listed were of light, popular priced makes. Mileages ranged from 4,306 to 18,125 for the year, and the average cost was greater on the smaller mileages. Mile costs ran over 10 cents on seven cars, between 8 and 10 cents on eight, and between 6 and 8 cents on twenty-two cars.

Road conditions directly affect the expense of running an automobile, the cost accounting experts agreed, and a good road may easily cut 3 cents a mile off the operating cost. At that rate, on the basis of 500,000 autos run an average of 5,000 miles each, Minnesota's better roads made a saving of $25,000,000 last year—returned about $3 to car owners for every $1 paid in motor vehicle taxes.

An increase in gasoline expense last year over 1923 was attributed to above normal rains, which made the roads soft and slippery much of the time and further emphasized the close relation between road conditions and auto running costs. County agents' cars averaged 16.2 miles to the gallon in 1923, against 15.2 miles in 1924.

Reports from agents in some of the northern counties of Minnesota showed higher costs than those in southern counties, which were settled earlier and are further advanced in road improvements.

Highway Movies.

Motion pictures of the Pan-American highway commission are now being exhibited by the United States department of agriculture.

The commission visited the United States last summer to study highways of North America. Organizations desiring to use the films can make arrangements through the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Tire Tip.

Use the oldest tires on the right hand side of the car when driving extensively in the city. On a tour use the oldest tires on the left hand side. In the city tires are often damaged through striking the curb, in turning corners or in parking. On the tour the tires on the left side of the car have the easier path.

ARRESTED AS JAY.

Electra Lynne was the first resident of Los Angeles to be arrested when the California city began a crusade of "jay walking" in a safety campaign.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question $5 is awarded to George Wade, 807 Crescent place, Chicago.

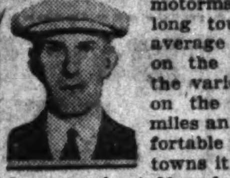
The Question.

What do you consider the best running speed in making a long tour?

Where Asked.

Washington boulevard and Kedzie avenue.

The Answers.



Herman Hause, 3541 Ogden avenue, motorman—In making long tours a driver's average speed depends on the regulations of the various states, but on the open road 35 miles an hour is a comfortable pace. Inside of towns it is best to slow down to about 20 and escape all possible trouble and danger.

Teddy Rosenberg, 1112 South Spaulding avenue, mechanic—The speed depends on how much time the motorist has to spend. When I am making a long tour over good roads I find that an average of about 30 miles an hour is best.—Fast driving shortens the life of a car and causes motor trouble. I seldom go over 30.

Saul Maltz, 922 Independence boulevard, garage owner—I make a number of long tours each year, but I have found that every season the roads are more crowded and that high speed even in the country is dangerous. I think 35 is a safe average on most open roads.

Robert Horwich, 1014 Independence boulevard, real estate salesman—My work keeps me in the city most of the time, but I have made a few long trips. I like to drive fast when there are few cars out and no danger of an accident. Forty is all right when the roads are clear. Over 40 is overdoing a good thing.

Mrs. Anna Hause, 3541 Ogden avenue, housewife—I do not like driving fast at any time, and I believe in taking one's time even on a long trip. Thirty miles an hour is fast enough for any one on the roads. Most accidents are due to speeding.

No Speed Limit.

A speed limit no longer applies to motor vehicles in Belgium. According to a new road traffic regulation, motorists merely must avoid driving in any fashion which may endanger the public, and pedestrians must get out of the way and allow the cars to pass.

Weakness prevailed in the hog market yesterday which closed on a downward trend, the day's top and average prices lowering 5c at $11.45 and $11.30 respectively. Prevailing quotations are lowest since the middle of February and largely 60@70c under previous week's close. Indications of a moderate supply for early next week gave buyers the advantage, despite the small number on hand. Outside demand was fair, taking 3,500 hogs. Only inferior grades and penholders, totaling about 4,000, remained unsold.

Hog Receipts Small.

Hog receipts last week at 134,500 were smaller than any corresponding period in over five previous years, being 17,100 smaller than a year ago and 20,400 under the five year average. Estimated average weight last week at 234 lbs equals previous week, but stands 1 lb lighter than a year ago and 4 lbs under the five year average. Average cost at $11.60 was lowest since week ending February 21, but stands $4.30 above a year ago.

Sharp fluctuations in values characterized last week's cattle market, a big portion of the midweek advance being erased on dull closing sessions, with late selling steady to 25c higher compared with a week previous. Common and medium grades showed the advance. The week's general average cost of beef steers figured 10c above previous week at $10.00, being higher than any corresponding week since 1920 and 45c above the five year average. Calves were little changed. An expansion in country demand forced stocker and feeder prices 15@25c above a week ago.

After a steady advance, which elevated fat wool lambs from $14.75 to $16.25 in six market days, the latter price buying best on Wednesday of last week, market reacted and closed fully 50c under the high time of the week. Prevailing quotations are still 75c above a week ago. Aged sheep were scarce and escaped the price lashing, closing 75c to $1.25 higher for the week. Feeding and shearing lambs were quiet at previous week's closing quotations. Springers closed 25@50c under the high time last week, but are 50@75c above a week ago.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 13,000 cattle, 48,000 hogs, and 19,000 sheep, against 17,636 cattle, 45,553 hogs, and 16,321 sheep a week ago, and 17,742 cattle, 58,247 hogs, and 18,659 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 55,000 cattle, 140,000 hogs, and 72,000 sheep, against 59,736 cattle, 169,533 hogs, and 78,846 sheep a year ago.

CASH·GRAIN N·E·W'S

Export demand for grain at the seaboard was slow, although a little business was put through in wheat and oats. One exporter sold 40,000 bu Duluth springs and a little amber and mixed durum.

Chicago handlers sold 8,000 bu wheat, 50,000 bu corn and 56,000 bu oats to the domestic trade. Deliveries on May contracts were 262,000 bu wheat, 365,000 bu corn, 282,000 bu oats and 792,000 bu rye. At Winnipeg deliveries were 507,000 bu wheat, 636,000 bu oats, 537,000 bu rye and 90,000 bu barley. So far this month deliveries at Minneapolis have been 806,000 bu wheat, 100,000 bu rye, 110,000 bu barley and 34,000 bu flax seed.

Offerings of cash wheat in all markets were small with the local basis nominally unchanged at 23@25c over May for No. 2 red and 3@5c over for No. 2 hard. St. Louis was unchanged to 5c higher on red winter, and Kansas City unchanged to 2c lower on hard winter.

Little change was shown in the basis on cash corn here with No. 3 grades 1½c over to 3c under May and No. 4 grades 4½@6¾c under. The basis on the white corn reported sold at the seaboard for export on Friday was said to have been equal to 10c under Chicago May. Outside markets were 1@3½c lower with Peoria leading.

Demand for cash oats was fair and the basis firm at 4½@6½c over May for No. 2 white and ½@2c over for No. 3 white.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 13 cars; corn, 59 cars; oats, 29 cars; rye, 11 cars; barley, 6 cars.

WHEAT PRICES DECLINE AFTER RALLY FOR WEEK

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat market developed a reactionary tendency due to heavy profit taking, but all breaks brought in a good class of buying and despite scattered liquidation in corn net losses on wheat were only ⅛@⅝c. Many local longs went out of their lines of corn, not liking the action of the market and the close was 1¼@2⅜c lower. Oats were unchanged to ½c higher and rye unchanged to ⅝c lower.

Despite heavy rains over part of the belt the wheat market staged a remarkable comeback the last week, advancing 14⅜@17¼c from the low point of the week, and closed well toward the top, with net gains of 10⅝@11⅝c, due to the prospects of a small yield. Corn was 1½@2⅜c higher than the finish of the previous week after a range of 6⅝@7½c. Oats gained ¼c to 1⅛c, with May leading, and rye was up 2½@5¼c. Provisions were unsettled, with lard 10@15c higher, ribs unchanged to 17½c higher, and bellies 10c lower to 5c higher for the week.

New High on Wheat.

July wheat at the high point touched $1.52, the best figure since March 16, while September at $1.44 was the highest since March 14. Liverpool closed ⅛d to ½d higher, making a poor response to the upturn in American markets on Friday and was largely responsible for an opening decline of ½c to 2½c, the latter on May. Unexpected strength in Winnipeg led to general buying and the bulge to the best figures of the day, but the failure of outside interests to enthuse on the buying side, combined with the material advance from the recent low point, caused heavy profit taking through strong commission houses, and at the inside values were off 3¼c from the top. Reinstating of lines sold out on the early bulge caused the closing rally.

Cromwell's report estimated the winter wheat yield at 454,000,000 bu, or 16,000,000 bu above the average of the private returns given out Friday, and he expressed the belief that the government's par yield for the May report was somewhat too low. Minneapolis May closed at 8¼c under Chicago, while Winnipeg gained 1⅝c for the day and finished 10⅞c over Chicago. Export demand at the seaboard was distinctly slow.

Liquidation On in Corn.

Despite the impressive manner in which the heavy deliveries of corn on May contracts had been absorbed the eastern shipping demand failed to improve, and some of the local longs made an effort to get out of their lines, and found support lacking, scattered liquidation developing, and some stop loss orders were uncovered, the inside figures showing 3¼@⅞c under the early high. There was a fair class of buying on the break, and a local professional who was a free seller early took part of his line back. Oats followed corn.

Demand for cash rye was slow, and a charter was made for 300,000 bu from Duluth to Chicago at 1⅝c, efforts to place the grain east at equal to a Chicago basis being without avail. The grain will be loaded Monday. Murray estimates the crop at 61,652,000 bu, against 63,446,000 bu last year. Condition is 86, against 88.2 a year ago.

Provisions Are Unsettled.

Provision trade was dull, with scattered selling of lard by local traders, while there was fair buying by a commission house on the declines. Closing trades were unchanged to 10c lower, with ribs 2½@5c higher and bellies 15c higher. Deliveries on May contracts were 300,000 lbs lard. Prices follow:

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

Profit taking in all grains as a result of Friday's bulge was too extensive for values to hold in their entirety, yet losses were small. Traders said that in case Liverpool followed the decline here they looked for a break, to be followed by a bulge on Monday. Leading interests continue bullish on wheat. They made the point that it is difficult to sell coarse grains in the east at prices in line with the cost of shipping.

The big selling of corn was credited to a local professional who is said to be short and put out a line of July sufficient to cause a break, while on the decline he was credited with buying. Several of the large pit operators bought on the early bulge and went out on the break.

Indications are that wheat statistics on Monday will be moderately bullish. A decrease in the visible and in the quantity on ocean passage is expected. Duluth stocks are to decrease and Chicago to increase. World's shipments were estimated at 13,000,000 bu and will compare with 19,413,000 bu last year. The increase in Chicago stocks is due to large receipts from the northwest.

Interests who have been active buyers of May wheat for several weeks were large sellers yesterday and the premium over July was reduced to 9½c. Large interests were buying July and selling May and also sold September.

Bartlett Frazier & company, in a long summary of the wheat situation says: "We believe that the world position in wheat is now the strongest in many years and insures a higher range of prices for the 1925-26 season than those now prevailing. In 1924-25 world production and consumption were so closely adjusted that a $2.00 level served to bring out every available bushel of wheat in all exporting countries. The world acreage is now so low that full production per acre must be secured in every country. The United States, the greatest producer of all, starts this year with a very low prospect, with unappreciable supplies to carry over and draw upon. This is a serious condition and must be given earnest consideration by the grain trade."

The London Seed and Oil Reporter gives the quantity of wheat and flour on passage from exporting to importing countries as 72,020,000 bu, against 76,600,000 bu the previous week, a decrease of 3,860,000 bu.

"The United States is the main source of import wheat from July to October included," says S. B. Patsig of Charles Sincere & Co. "In the last five years our exports have averaged 123,000,000 bu for the four months. There is nothing in European reports to indicate that importing countries would draw on the United States for less than 123,000,000 bu from July to October, if that amount could be spared."

The estimate on the wheat crop of B. W. Snow is for 672,000,000 bu winter and spring. Last year's crop was 873,000,00 bu.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

R. O. Cromwell, crop observer for Lamson Bros., believes the government's May pars too low, and says that the winter wheat condition of 76 per cent has been raised to adjust this. Abandonment estimated at 20 per cent, or 8,525,000 acres, leaving 33,790 acres for harvest. Production 454,000,000 bu, compared with 540,000,000 bu estimated April 13. Rye condition 86, production, 58,200,000 bu.

A report from Lincoln, Neb., says there are a few complaints of frost damage to growing grain. Wheat growing nicely, but indications suggest about 50 per cent of last year's crop. Iowa reports no frost damage so far and new crop doing fine. No damage reported from frost in Illinois.

Murray's estimate of the rye crop of the United States is 61,652,000 bu, compared with 63,446,000 bu harvested last year; condition 86, against 88.2 a year ago. His reports from Canada estimate the wheat acreage increased 5.2 per cent in the three western provinces; oats increased 4.7 per cent, and rye decreased around 1 per cent.

GRAIN TRADING INCREASES

Sales of grain for future delivery on the Chicago Board of Trade on Friday were increased, especially in wheat and oats, being the largest in all grains for several weeks. There was also a gain for the week, with aggregate sales of 503,082,000 bu, compared with 469,661,000 bu the previous week and 218,932,000 bu last year. LONDON.—The government's proposal to place a tax on silk imports has stirred up a hornet's nest, both at home and abroad—in fact, continuing developments indicate that a number of nests have been disturbed. So far most of the complaints have been against any kind of a tax, but today the Silk Association of Great Britain and Ireland petitioned the government under the safeguarding of industries act for what it termed "adequate protection from foreign competition."

WASHINGTON.—The I. C. C. will give shippers, commercial organizations, state commissions, and all other bodies interested an opportunity to produce here June 15 and in New York and Chicago hearings later any evidence they desire on the request of the eastern roads for a general advance in rates.

Trade Balance Still Strong in Favor of the U. S.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Europe took a quarter of a billion dollars' worth of goods from the United States during March. During the same period the United States purchased less than half that amount in Europe, although the total was considerably greater than that for the same month of 1924.

Both imports and exports were markedly increased during March, 1925, over March, 1924, but in spite of this the country's imports from North America were shown to be smaller during the period than last year. One of the sharpest increases was indicated in American trade with Russia. For March, 1925, imports from Russia were twice as great as those of March, 1924, and exports to Russia more than doubled.

Lease of Virginian R. R. to Norfolk, Western Delayed

Norfolk, Va., May 2.—Action on the proposed lease of the Virginian railway by the Norfolk & Western was deferred at the annual meeting here today of the stockholders of the Virginian. The matter, it was explained, must be taken up at a special meeting of the stockholders, the call for which must specify the subjects to be considered. The lease was approved by the board of directors of the road last week.

George W. Davison of New York was elected to the directorate to succeed G. W. Huntington, who resigned as president, and George H. Church, treasurer of the road, was named to succeed W. H. Truesdale. The board will meet in New York in the next few days to name a successor to Mr. Huntington and issue the call for the special stockholders' meeting to consider the lease.

A Long Record of Safety

FOR nearly half a century the founders and senior officers of the American Bond & Mortgage Company have been active exclusively in the real estate investment field. Even before the incorporation of this company, these officers successfully constructed thousands of city apartment buildings and developed hundreds of high grade city blocks. And since this time, this company has successfully brought out thousands of real estate bond and mortgage offerings secured by improved city properties throughout the country.

During this period of faithful investment service, this old and responsible company has steadily built up a strong capital and surplus—now in excess of $6,000,000. Housed in its own office buildings in Chicago and in New York, with offices spread throughout the country, enjoying hundreds of responsible bank and brokerage connections — this old first mortgage house is well qualified for absolute investment confidence.

Thousands of investors, including Banks, Insurance and Trust Companies throughout the United States, have purchased through the American Bond & Mortgage Company many millions of dollars of First Mortgage Bonds, secured by improved city properties, and without the loss of one dollar.

This is Ad No. 9 of an Investment Series.

JAPAN'S BOYCOTT PROVES MYTH TO AMERICAN TRADE

BY SCRUTATOR.

"Things that never happen" have made up a large share of the worries about American business, which have been featured by a great many writers for several years past.

The history of our commerce and industry since the low point of the 1921 depression consists very largely of events which could hardly have occurred, if the deductions and forecasts of a certain internationalistic school had been sound.

That financial factions have had the hearty support in print and speech of our "liberal" anachronisms—who are always against anything if its American or has any slant toward the conservation of American rights or advantages.

How much of the thinking of some of these folk consists of defense reactions, attempts to rationalize their peeve at their own nationality, because they fail to share its dominant characteristics in normal measure?

Just a few months ago we were told that our oriental trade was on the verge of ruin because of the Japanese exclusion law.

Japanese imports for the first quarter of 1925 were the heaviest in the history of the country. After allowing for a heavy decrease in the purchasing power of the yen, an increase in volume is still revealed. The American share of this trade is indicated by the fact that imports of raw cotton alone accounted for most of the increase.

Dispatches also tell how American engineers have uncovered for Japan great deposits of iron sands which will make the country more independent industrially. With further industrial development Japan ought to be able to take care of its own people and also to undertake some real colonization in eastern Asia instead of exporting gardeners and domestic servants to lands already pioneered. Set over against an almost vacant half continent, it is entirely abnormal that of all Japanese living abroad, over half should be in the United States and Canada.

The first statistics issued from Moscow showing the geographical distribution of Russian trade are a complete refutation of seven years' talk by those who deal so largely in things that never happen.

Before the war the United States occupied a minor position in Russian trade. Now the United States is the third largest exporter to Russia, the nations ranking as follows in gold rubles of exports: Britain, 53,903,000, Germany, 51,307,000, and United States, 46,172,000. These figures will get scant comment from the friends of Russian recognition.

Perhaps we ought to be ashamed of ourselves for having any Russian trade. The stuff we have sold has undoubtedly been paid for by money wrung from a helpless and infantile people, who are really in no position to export anything. The stage is being set for another Russian relief effort. Probably the best relief that the civilized world could render to Russia would be to refuse to buy a single bushel of grain from a country unable to feed itself.

COTTON MARKETS

Cotton closed around the lowest of the day, with losses in Chicago of 1 to 20 points, New Orleans, 19 to 25 points, and New York, 21 to 22 points. Liverpool was higher and weather in the south was fair and clear, and favorable for the crop. Trade reports were mixed, as was also sentiment. Profit taking was the leading feature, causing the decline. The consumption of cotton shows a good increase the last month and stocks have decreased materially. Prices in the leading markets follow:

A Business for Your Son

Fathers—If you have a well educated, sound thinking son you desire to set up in business, here is a splendid opportunity.

I will sell my periodical publishing business, which is soundly established and has for years earned big profits.

I will arrange to turn over the property with its present working organization so that change of ownership will have no detrimental effect on its profitable operation.

This is a chance for a young man with brains and energy to start in business with a property that will net him at least $15,000.00 the first year, and bring him steadily increased net earnings from year to year.

The only reason this property is for sale is that I am ready to retire, and have no son or other heir.

Negotiations will be entered into with only such inquirers as may give assurance of good faith.

New York, May 2.—The rally in stock prices which started yesterday continued through today's brief session, being given added impetus by Washington dispatches stating that President Coolidge believes business should be allowed to develop undisturbed during the congressional recess. Trading showed a marked expansion in volume, total sales running above 600,000 shares for the two hour session.

The rapidity of the advance in special issues, particularly in American Can, which was bid up over 5 points, to 181⅝, indicated a hurried retreat of the short interest. Other outstanding industrial strong spots included Associated Dry Goods, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Coca-Cola, International Shoe, Mack Trucks, Nash Motors, Stewart-Warner Speedometer, and United States Cast Iron Pipe, all of which closed 3@10 points above Friday's final quotations.

Merger Boosts Rail Shares.

Rails continued in brisk demand, the leasing of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh by the Delaware and Hudson stimulating the buying of stocks of other small carriers which are likely to be absorbed by the larger systems. Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh soared 6 points to a new record top at 92¾, and then fell back to 90 on profit-taking. Ann Arbor preferred advanced 2½ points to a new high at 56, and Frisco common reached new high ground at 75⅝.

Southern Railway led the advance in the higher priced issues by climbing nearly 3 points to a record top at 95. Net gains of a point or more also were recorded by Ann Arbor common, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Chicago and Northwestern, Delaware and Hudson, New York, Ontario and Western, Wabash, and Wheeling and Lake Erie.

Oil Stocks Show Strength.

Oils gathered strength on publication of a government report showing that crude oil consumption exceeded production by 14,000,000 barrels in the first quarter of this year. Tidewater crossed 136 for a gain of more than 3 points, while Houston, Midcontinent preferred, and Skelly gained a point or so, many of the others improving fractionally.

Trading in the public utilities quieted down somewhat, although North American advanced a point on a substantial turnover.

Radio corporation lost ground on the announcement that the De Forest Radio company had obtained a temporary injunction against it for alleged unfair business practices. Pittsburgh Coal common and preferred and General Cigars sank to new low levels for the year.

United States Steel common touched 115 and then eased to 114¾, up ½, and Baldwin sold as high as 113⅝, and then eased to 112½, where it was up 1¼ on the day.

Bond Market Holds Advance.

The normal Saturday contraction of business in the bond market slowed up the forward movement of prices, but trading was still marked by an undercurrent of strength. The best demonstration of strength were given by the railroad issues. Standard investment liens fluctuated within narrow limits.

Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh bonds scored a net gain of 1½ points. Ann Arbor 4s and Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis 4s moved up a point each. Seaboard, Denver and Rio Grande, and Chicago and Terre Haute issues continued to forge ahead. Public utility bonds were in good demand, with Standard Gas 6½s advancing 2 points. United States treasury 4s achieved a record high price in the early trading, but later eased off with the rest of the government list.

New York Reserves Lower.

The weekly clearing house statement showed mixed changes. Loans, discounts, and investments increased $196,919,000 over the week before; the reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve bank increased $6,162,000 and net demand deposits showed a gain of $196,-[illegible],000, one of the largest this year. Cash in own vaults dropped $3,617,000 and time deposits $1,038,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $619,107,000, leaving excess reserve of $269,550, a decrease of $[illegible]772,510 below that of last week.

Foreign exchanges ruled slightly easier. Demand sterling was fairly steady just above $4.84 and French francs held around 5.23 cents. Spanish pesetas dropped 7 points, to 14.55 cents, but the other European currencies showed only nominal changes.

RAILROAD NOTES

Freight traffic conditions on railroads operating east from Chicago and St. Louis continue to reflect mainly satisfactory conditions. The volume of general merchandise tonnage is keeping up with a well distributed movement. This is considered satisfactory. Total volume of freight compares well with the totals of a year ago. Southern railroad traffic officials reported satisfactory conditions in moving freight with bulk commodities totaling about the same as recently.

On April 22 class one railroads of the United States had 344,318 surplus freight cars in good repair and available for immediate use if conditions demanded, according to the American Railway association. This is an increase of 1,150 over the number of surplus freight cars reported on April 15. No car shortage was reported.

Orders for equipment by the railroads in the first four months of 1925 were about half the volume of the corresponding period of last year, a compilation by the Railway Age placing the total at 304 locomotives, 26,206 freight cars and 391 passenger cars, compared with 612 locomotives, 72,730 freight cars and 704 passenger cars a year ago.

WALL STREET NOTES

The speed with which the steel industry regulates itself to meet requirements of consumption is indicated in the drop of operations to between 70 and 75 per cent of capacity, showing also, it is said, that the industry is thoroughly stabilized, with producers disinclined to have a greater output than consumers want.

An intimation that profits of meat packing companies may not be so good as last year, which was the best twelve months the packers have enjoyed since the deflation of 1920, was given by Thomas E. Wilson, president and one of the receivers of Thomas E. Wilson & Co., on his return from a business trip abroad. Higher prices which the companies must pay for live stock are having an adverse effect on earnings, he indicated.

Commercial failures in the United States in April exceeded the number in March and February and for the corresponding months of two preceding years, the total of 1,939 having liabilities of $37,188,622. In addition, 45 small bank failures occurred during the month, most of them in the far west and the south. There were 471 commercial failures last week, compared with 470 in the preceding week and 414 during the corresponding week last year.

Freight traffic on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul in April showed improvement over the same month last year, 162,968 revenue cars having been handled, against 151,132 a year ago. Rock Island loadings also gained, 135,005 cars for the month, compared with 127,963 in April last year.

The first dividend paid by the Hale & Kilburn corporation since its incorporation in 1876 was declared yesterday, a payment of 50 cents on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred. At the close of 1924, accumulations on the preferred stock, since the reincorporation of the concern in 1915, amounted to $46 a share. The Art Loom company declared an initial quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock.

Declines continue to exceed advances in the wholesale markets for the principal commodities, 29 out of the 47 changes that appeared last week in the list of quotations compiled by Dun's Review being in a downward direction. In the preceding week's record there were 47 reductions and 19 increases. In a similar statement for the corresponding week of last year, 30 declines contrasted with 14 advances. The Great Western Sugar company reduced its price on refined sugar 15 points to 5.50 cents a pound, New York basis. This is a new low for the year.

The week's bank clearings in the leading cities of the United States, compiled by the Commercial and Financial Chronicle, increased 6.3 per cent, reaching $10,010,793,771, against $9,417,870,293 in the same week a year ago. The gain for New York City was 6.5 per cent.

April records for the shipment of ore from Lake Superior mines were broken last month, when the movement amounted to 2,120,678, it was revealed in a statement issued by the Lake Superior Iron Ore association yesterday. The largest movement heretofore was in 1916, when 1,658,411 tons were loaded in April. Last season the docks loaded only 659,387 tons during that month.

Connellsville coke production was cut 26,010 tons last week. Ovens placed on the inactive list totaled 1,715, bringing production down to 113,750 tons, a new low level for the year. Leading furnace interests closed down 1,025 ovens at five plants.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The local unlisted securities market continued to show strength during last week, with advances predominating the list.

Numerous inquiries were noted for Acme Steel Goods, new $25 par stock at 37, with a limited amount available at 40. W. F. Hall Printing was traded in between 19 and 22. Elgin National Watch continued to advance, adding an additional point in closing at 66 bid without attracting sellers near the current level. American Seating was traded in at 140, and the close showed little change at 137 to 142. By-Products Coke moved up to sales between 64 and 65. Although [illegible] Sugar first preferred sold as high as 48, it was later offered at 46 with best bids around 44. Both the full voting and nonvoting shares of the Creamery Package company showed a good tone at 28½ to 30⅝ and 27 and 29½ respectively. Sullivan Machinery was quoted a full point higher at 56 to [illegible] 2 points to sales at 64, and was later offered at this price with best bids around 60. McCord common was traded in at higher levels, sales taking place at 8¼, and although it relinquished a part of this gain the close of 7⅝ to 7⅞ represented a fractional improvement for the week. The preferred changed hands at 54½, up 5 points. Interstate Iron and Steel preferred shaded a point at 93 bid, 94 asked. Federal Electric common was traded in around 6, and the preferred between 30 and 31. A better demand existed for Chicago Railway Equipment common at 48 to 50, while the preferred was wanted at 30¼ with stock available at 30⅝. [illegible] declined from 128 to low sales at 127, but firmed up at the close to 130 bid, 134 asked. The preferred showed an easier tendency at 107½ to 108½. Butler Brothers was traded in, ex-dividend, between 33⅝ and 35⅝.

The public utility group was featured by [illegible] points to closing sales around 279. American Gas and Electric was 7 points higher between 82 and 83. American Super Power "B" developed strength, rising 3 points to high and last sales at 32⅝. Less activity was shown in American Light and Traction common until near the close when it sold up over 3 points to sales at 155¼, and closed at 153 bid, 154 asked.

Lehigh Power Securities changed hands at 108, an advance of 4 points. Northern States Power was steady around 109, while the warrants were traded in between 9⅝ and 10. Southeastern Power and Light preferred was in better demand scoring 4 points to sales around 81. United Light and Railways 6½ per cent prior convertible preferred reflected the advance in United Light and Power common stock in sales at 112, an improvement of about 10 points. It later reacted, however, to 104 bid, 107 asked. United Light and Power warrants sold up to 11. Closing [illegible]

by Corinne Lowe

The girl of from 10 to 14 who wears this coat of Lanvin green hasha need not feel convicted of "looking young." For the cape which is such an essential feature is taken over bodily from sophisticated modes. A slit in the back gives individuality to this detail and at the sides you see two other major operations—in this case topped by gold filigree buttons. Dull gold braid is employed on collar and pockets. A sports costume for her of from 12 to 16 is found next in a combination of striped flannel in red, yellow, and white with plain white flannel. The miss of from 15 to 18 who wears the following alliance of willow green chiffon and string color lace need never feel nervous about her afternoons. Observe the sleeves and the line of shirring on either side of the molded bodice. Next, an ensemble in Burgundy red wool jersey designed for her from 14 to 18. Last, for 12 to 15 comes a tailored afternoon model in periwinkle blue crepe with a narrow gold kid belt and a gold ribbon at the neck.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—In the days when the Florodora Sextette and the Gibson girl were both raging in the land, it was as hard to dress a girl of from twelve to fifteen as it is to dress a radiator. Then there was a wide discrepancy between the full long trailing skirts of adult wear and the requirements of youthful simplicity. Now, however, since we mature souls have gone back to these bassinet modes for ourselves, now that we wear jumpers and short skirts and slender, guileless lines, the junior girl has a frightful scramble to look as simple as her [illegible].

As a result of this, the modes of any young person ranging from twelve to seventeen represent merely a selective process. They are culled from the prevalent fashions of the older woman, and, aside from the formal decollete, there is no limit set upon the culling.

I myself have no young girl to array—or to point out to me certain glaring faults in my demeanor and outlook. But if I had one, I think the first thing I should do after receiving my daily suggestions from her as to the correction of my character and deportment would be to get her a navy blue suit and then—if she weren't sallow—to top it off with a red felt hat. For traveling, school, street wear, there is nothing more desirable than the juvenile tailleur. And I specify navy blue because not only is this a perennial form of good taste in the attire of the junior but because there is just now a perfect passion for the old classical [illegible]. Both coats and suits testify to this inclination and nearly always are they completed by some touch of red.

Now, we don't often say a sartorial "no" to our young miss; but when it comes to the long flaring jacket which O'Rossen and other celebrated designers of the tailleur have emphasized this spring, we have to be firm. This jacket is decidedly not for the girl under eighteen. To her is allotted, on the contrary, some duplicate of the boyish sack coat. She wears it, just as do her elders, with a tailored blouse, which may reflect the mature turndown collar and four-in-hand, or which may revert to the Peter Pan mode. Quite likely this suit has some touch of crimson, and this will probably be repeated in the hat. The latter may be either of the felt which I first suggested, or it may be the fashionable velvet trimmed Bangkok now so deeply stressed in adult circles.

Perhaps the most famous of juvenile tailleurs this spring is not a sack coat at all, but a slightly overfed bolero. It has been tried out rather tentatively this year for older folks, but has found a much more successful outlet in the juvenile field. There are quite a few charming little afternoon frocks for young girls reflecting some adaptation of the famous Spanish jacket. The reason for this is not far to seek. The bolero is often a potent aid in overcoming those defects or figure which so often make our teens an afflicting pilgrimage. The tall, skinny girl and the chunky girl—both often come off well from the hands of the bolero.

In the case of the latter type one must modify this statement. She who is both tall and slightly too heavy, and whose torso is proportioned in length to her legs, thrives much better with the long waistline than she does with this under-the-arm boundary. If, however, the stocky young girl has a torso greater proportionately than her length of limb, the bolero tends to restore the effect of balance. I was convinced of this not long ago when I saw in a matinee party of schoolgirls a young miss of about fourteen, whose figure was more a matter of hope than of realization. She was not tall and she was plump, and the upper part of her body was much longer than it should have been. But any disadvantages of physique were made up for by the advantages of having a mother who had attired her in a frock of Madonna blue crepe made with a finely plaited skirt topped by a bolero of self-material. The bolero was short as a ticket agent's replies, and it gave to this child what nature had not given her—length of limb.

For the afternoon frock that every girl in her teens requires, quite a few flowered chiffons and crepes have followed in the wake of the adult vogue. However, the emphasis is still upon plain crepes—especially georgette—in the tints that have bloomed in the spring tra-la. Madonna and periwinkle and ciel blue; willow and Lanvin green; all shades of rose and red from flesh to lipstick and pomegranate; citron, beige, and lavender—all are used.

Some of these afternoon crepes and chiffons in lovely colorings are quite frisky. They may have plaited flounces going all around the skirt or three tiers limited just to the front. They may be trimmed with lace or benefit by the open-work embroidery now so much in vogue. But it is interesting to see that some of the most exclusive shops are sponsoring for the young girl's afternoon frock the tailored types with long sleeves, which are now so highly developed a feature of adult modes.

We are showing at the extreme right one of these tailored afternoon models made of georgette in any of the colors I have mentioned. It is distinguished by its plaited skirt, abetted by rows of faggoting extending up over the bodice, and by its narrow belt of gold embossed kid placed at the normal waistline. This back to normalcy movement in waistlines is to be traced to a considerable degree in the province of junior clothes and is, of course, a logical sequence of the prevailing mode. The touch of gold kid echoed by the narrow ribbon at the neck is another symptom of the gold fever which is now prostrating fashion. This model is for the girl of from twelve to fifteen.

Sleeves for Miss-in-her-teens are like those of her mother and older sister. They follow the line of greatest resistance. Short cap sleeves are found on many of the models from the jumper sports frock to the evening dress, but in opposition to this simplicity is pitted an inclination to make this detail as whimsical as those designed for the older woman. Peasant sleeves, those developed with wide plaited ruffles, fitted types—all are encountered constantly in juvenile modes.

The frock for the girl of from fifteen to eighteen sketched at the center of the page is eloquent of such trend. It is given character by the long sleeves with their tight fitting cuffs of string colored lace, repeating the same mesh used for the skirt flounces. Yet, even without such faithful shadowing of the fashion, this model would attract attention because of the lovely blending of the willow green chiffon employed for the gown and the string color of its lace accompaniment. A hat of willow green hair set off with narrow flutings of the lace and a brown flower centered with gold completes the harmony.

The period frock knows no age stop. It is worn by girls from eleven onward, and it is worn for both afternoon and evening occasions. Taffeta is the usual medium, and sometimes this is veiled with tulle or georgette. Among the most charming of confirmation frocks I have seen followed this time honored prescription of full skirt and fitted bodice ending at the normal waistline, and it followed it in white taffeta draped in sheerest of snowy georgette. The skirt was made to appear more bouffante because of the three rows of grouped ruffles traversing it. These ruffles were of white net, with a fairylike picot edge of silver, and the metallic touch was reasserted in the single white flower placed at the side front of the corsage. Furthermore, the round neck and cap sleeves held just a glint of silver ribbon.

The yoke is another grown-up detail which has been borrowed to make a juvenile holiday. Quite a number of the little afternoon crepes use a yoke effect in conjunction with a long waistline. Even in the jumper it is often either hinted or articulated. Thus, second from the left we find a jumper of white flannel with a yoke taking a prominent part. The jumper is set off with a four-in-hand and cuff ties of the same gayly striped flannel forming the skirt, and even the hat establishes its cordial understanding of the situation by a band of this striped flannel. This is for the girl of twelve to fifteen. Flannel, by the way, is just as popular for the teens as it has been in times gone by.

Among the practical fabrics for the schoolgirl wool jersey maintains all its traditional authority. And second from the right we illustrate this in an ensemble costume of Burgundy red.

Man Who Claims Business Girls Don't Make Good Wives Is Answered by Fine Tributes of Their Employers.

WHAT sort of wife does the business girl make?

Recently there was printed in this column a letter from a sixty year old business man who claimed there was not one girl out of five who works for her living fit to marry and raise children. Not only unfit to marry and raise children, but few of them have any such idea when they do marry. Their idea, according to the sixty year gallant, is to get all the pleasure of being provided for bountifully and in return assume not a grain of responsibility.

"We elderly men," he wrote, "have seen hundreds of fresh young girls with a gentle bearing and feminine ways come downtown to work. At the end of three or four years they are hardened, coarsened. They learn to spend money far above their station in life. When they marry they are quickly and easily dissatisfied. It is a rotten life for a girl and a losing one in the long run. She may make money, but she saves nothing, gets rid of it faster than it comes. She wants to marry the boss or the manager, and if she can't marry him she goes as far as she can."

Fine Tributes to Business Women.

Naturally, that letter brought forth a storm of protest. But out of the storm came many fine tributes to the girls who earn their living from men who employ them and men who work alongside of them. As a safe matrimonial bet—the safest there is—they grant the business girl first place for these simple reasons:

She knows something of masculine psychology from working side by side with men and consequently she brings to the altar no demigod ideal of him. He is a human being, like herself, and, like herself, full of faults.

She has learned the lesson of self-control. Fits of temper, sharp retorts, hysterics and tears have been fought down in her office training, if she were the kind given to such.

She knows what a dollar will buy and what it won't. She is more reasonable about money, consequently, than a girl who has had money provided her without effort on her part. She can make sacrifices because she has had to make them frequently when she wanted to buy something which she could not afford out of her own earnings.

She is not jealous of the girl in the office because she knows that the girl in the office isn't crazy about her employer any more than she was.

She can listen to his shop talk without looking bored because she understands it is his chief topic of interest, and why it is.

If she cannot cook and do housework, she can soon learn, for her office training has taught her you can learn anything if you make up your mind to it and will apply a little of the same efficiency and common sense required in other training.

What One Man Thinks.

The cashier of one of our large state banks rises up with this defense: "I do not know whether or not it is customary to reply to things printed in your column, but I could not let that article headed 'Brick Bats for Business Girls' go by without handing out a few bouquets.

"My personal experience with business women or girls has covered a period of about twenty years, and as I call to mind those with whom I have been associated during that time, I cannot help but think your 60 year old business man is all wrong, my estimate as to the fitness of such girls to marry, make a home and raise a family being completely reversed, four out of the five being better fitted by having had business experience.

"In regard to the matter of dressing, spending, and extravagance, my opinion is that having to earn their own money they are much more careful about spending and I cannot see why a business girl should be expected to learn more readily than others to dress and spend above her station.

"If, after a few years in business, some few seem to be hardened, that can be traced to the men in their respective offices with whom they have been compelled to associate, and even then it is the exceptional case, in most cases the moral standard of the place of business being to fit the business girl.

"The statement that the life of the business girl is a losing one and a rotten one is only true where it is made to be that by the business man. Most of the girls enjoy their work as much, or more, than the men. They are more dependable and efficient, frequently. I have known many business women who have not only performed their office work entirely satisfactorily but have at the same time been of considerable assistance with the work and the financing of their respective homes.

"Summing the matter up, it is my belief that business not only does not make girls unfit for home makers but tends to make them more appreciative of what it takes to make a dollar and, therefore, more careful about spending; that the girl efficient in business will be equally efficient in the management of a home and will certainly be more competent to advise with her husband in regard to his business problems.

"To close, will say we now have in our employ two very capable and efficient girls, and we are scared to death for fear some men may stumble on to the fact that they would both make excellent wives for the right men—but don't believe that there are any right men."

Business Girl Not Flirtatious.

The idea that the business girl has her eye on the manager or the boss as the ideal matrimonial mate is flouted by the girls, and in terms, let me add, none too flattering to the charms of the employer. Mr. Employer's jealous wife would be painfully chagrined were she to learn the actual status in which he is held and how far it is removed from the center of affections. He is his wife's property, and she is welcome to him as far as his fair employés are concerned.

As Florence says: "Business girls don't care a rap about marrying their bosses or the manager of their offices. I am secretary to a very busy business man and have occasion to meet and speak with my boss' friends and on numerous occasions have been asked to come to lunch with them, to dinner and the theater. Never once have I accepted the invitations extended me, because I do not believe in mixing my business with pleasure. Business friends are one lot and social friends another, and remember I am far from being old fashioned. I am only a young girl, and have bobbed hair, too, and I'm engaged to the most wonderful man in the world. We could have been married two years ago but for my wish to wait till I was older and better fitted to make the right kind of wife for him. So, you see, we don't all get married to see what we can get out of it, as that old man said."

Doris Blake's Answers TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

Shows False Pride.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 21 and have been keeping company with a fellow three years my senior. I meet him on the outside, as my home is not as nice as his. I can't bring myself to invite him to it. I know he would love to meet my mother. He told me he loves me. What can I do? I hate to lose him. BLONDIE."

Blondie, you should never be ashamed to bring your friends to your home. They like you for what you are and not for what you have. If they do not, they are not worth cultivating, dear, and the sooner you find it out the better. As long as your home is neat and clean you should not hesitate to invite your friends to it, Blondie.

Easier to Forget.

"Dear Miss Blake: I was engaged to a fellow, and now his relatives have forced him to leave me. He wants the ring back. Is it right for me to return it? Please tell me if I should return the presents to his relatives, which I received for my engagement, for they have asked for them. Could they sue me for not returning their presents? Will you kindly give me your opinion? "LOUISE."

Recently a judge handed down a decision that an engagement ring was a gift to the young lady and her to keep if she wished to. However, it is customary to return an engagement ring when the engagement is broken. It is not necessary to return the engagement presents, but if the donors asked for their return, why not let them have them? Then they won't be around to remind you of the unpleasant experience, and it will be easier to forget.

Accommodating Cousin.

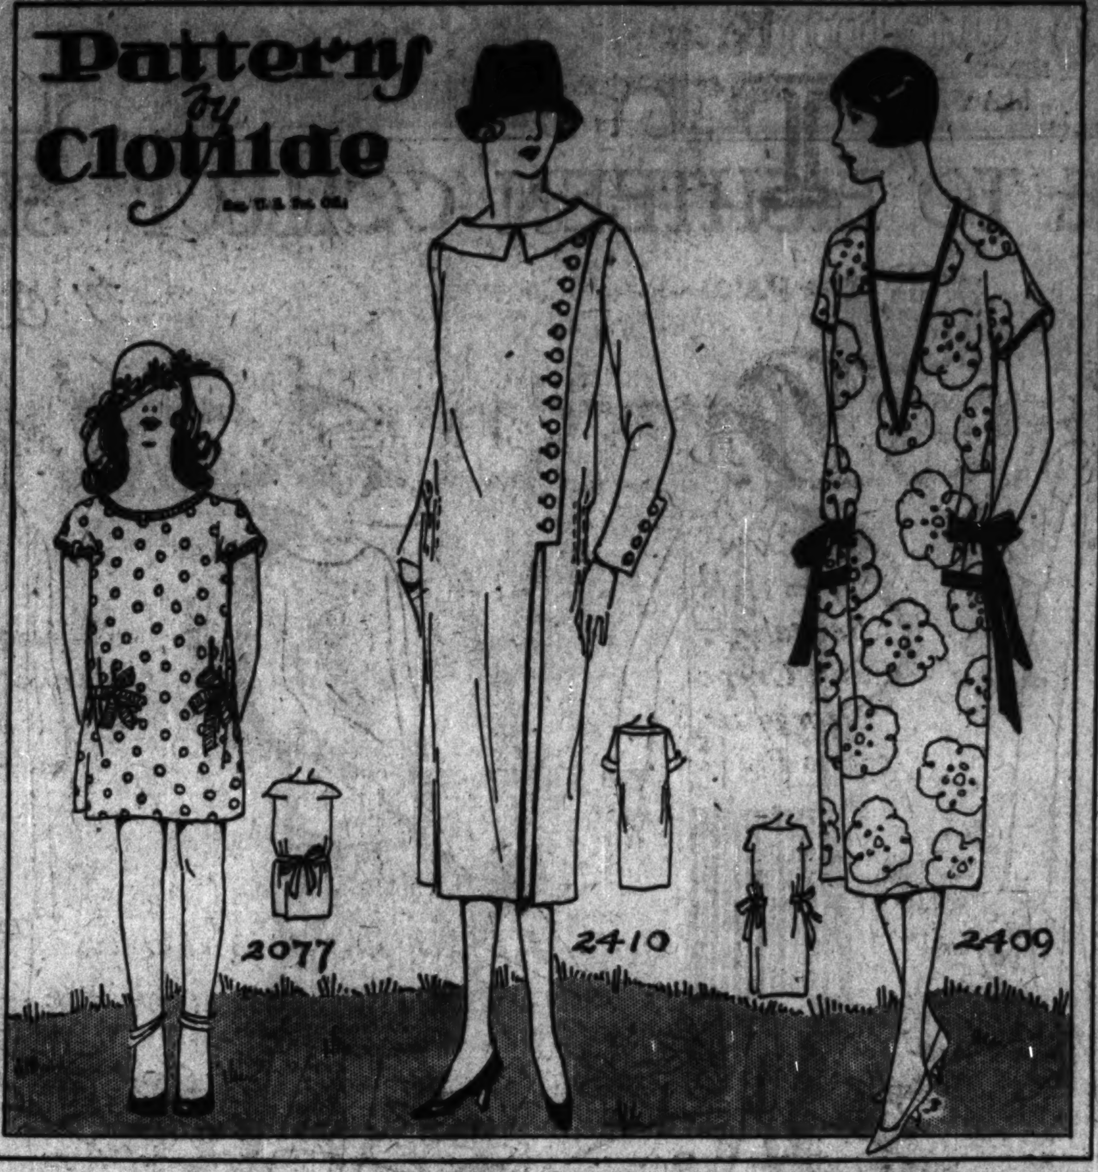
"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl of 15 and have been going with a fellow two and a half years older. I like this boy and I think he likes me. I have a cousin a few months older than I, who insists that a girl my age should have a chaperon, and he always comes along with me, but he never allows my friend to pay for him, so he is not an inconvenience that way. Do you think it is proper for me to go out alone or bring my cousin along? "PERPLEXED."

Fifteen is quite young to be going out with the boys, Perplexed. Going to parties is one thing, but going out alone with boys to the movies or the theater is quite another, and unless you are accompanied by your cousin I feel your mother would not approve of it. Isn't it nice to think he is sufficiently interested in you to wish to go along?

Has Right Idea.

"Dear Miss Blake: I'm a young man, 17, and for the last eight months have been going with a girl of the same age. We have confessed our love for each other. I realize that this is the time of life to make friends, but when I go out with other girls she gets angry. I told her she should go out with other boys and that she'd probably find some one she liked better than me. She objects to this, saying she cares only for me. Please advise me what to do, as I have numerous girl friends. KENNETH."

You have the right idea, Kenneth. Do not let her change your mind for you. She may think she cares to go out with you only, but just as soon as she meets another boy who attracts her she won't hesitate to go out with him, I am sure, nor will feel she is doing you an injustice when she accepts his invitations.



2077—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1¾ yards of 36 inch material with 3¼ yards of ribbon.

2410—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 42 inch material.

2409—Woman's and misses' dress—Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 36 inch material with 4 yards of ribbon.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THERE are many lovely designs in cotton voiles—any one of which would make up charmingly by pattern No. 2409. The dress is cut entirely in one piece, is made with short kimono sleeves, and is to be slipped on over the head. It is slashed in from the underarm edges, back and front, and the lower slashed edges are gathered. The dress is cut to follow the line of the neck across the back, and cut in a deep V in the front. To fill in there a vest is worn, and this may be made of the dress material, or something contrasting. The inserted pocket openings, and the neck, sleeve and vest edges can be bound with a plain color, matching the most prominent color in the printed design. Then ribbons are used for the tie strings that meet in bows and end over the gathered sides.

Of course, any of the pretty wash materials would be appropriate for this design, and the bound edges and tie strings could be made of the dress material—using a contrasting color. These rather thin dresses are always better looking if a deep hem is put in, and this may be hemmed on the machine. French seams will be satisfactory for the dress, and the gathered places over the hips should be bound or rather covered on both under and upper sides with a band, stitched to the dress on all four edges.

Pattern No. 2077 would make up prettily in taffeta for a party dress for a small girl. The dress is cut with short kimono sleeves that close on the shoulder; and fullness is let in on the sides of the skirt in the usual manner. The dress is cut with a round neck that can be finished with a binding. One of the all wool challis would be pretty for a dress made in this design; or for real summer weather dotted Swiss would be lovely. Be sure the dress is broad enough across the shoulders, and that the seams way up under the arms are loose enough. The shoulder seams are closed part way, from the sleeve edges up to a perforation marked on the pattern.

Then the back of each shoulder seam is finished with a little extension hem, and the front part of the shoulder seams is faced. The smallest sized snaps must be used on the shoulders, and on the faced edge set the snaps one-eighth of an inch in from the edge, and one-half inch apart. This will bring the snaps on the extension hem far enough in from the edge so the closing won't show at all.

It will look well to have the tie strings start from the front edge of the gathers on each side and tie in a bow in the back; and covering the starting by a perky, small bow. Or the strings can be put on to tie simply over the gathers on both sides.

The pattern, No. 2410, is for a one piece dress; and the design seems especially well adapted to one of the fine woolens, flannel, or one of the heavier crepes. The back of the dress is cut in one piece and the front of the dress is laid in plaits below the waistline. The opening is at the left side of the front, and is intended to button from the shoulder seam down to the top of the plaits. This in itself makes a sort of trimming; and with the collar and turned back cuffs nothing else will be needed.

The dress is laid in small tucks or plaits at a low waistline. The short sleeves are finished with turned back cuffs. If long sleeves are preferred, a pattern will be found for them. These are one piece sleeves, and the seam below the elbow is turned to the right side, edges faced and allowed to stand out. The seam is held together by buttons.

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads
There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this get two ounces of Calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The Calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.
If your druggist does not have Calonite, send $1.00 to the Research Laboratories, 760 Thompson Building, Chicago, and a package will be sent you by mail.

CORRECT ATTIRE FOR A WEDDING.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, address envelope for personal reply.

BY A. T. GALLICO.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—This department is beginning to suspect that most of its readers are going to be May or June bridegrooms, and the rest are to be best men, ushers, or at least guests at spring weddings. So many requests for the correct attire to be worn at weddings have come in that we feel we must rush out general information on this subject before it is too late, and countless men begin their matrimonial careers in the wrong way.

Only day weddings will be taken into consideration. From the nature of the letters I have received, it appears that all prospective couples have come to realise that it isn't at all the thing to do these days to be married in the evening. Morning, noon, or afternoon weddings are the style, and whether it is a 10 o'clock affair, high noon, or four or five in the afternoon, the sartorial obligation is the same in each case.

Before we go any further, I want to state, now and forever, that for a day wedding a tuxedo is not the correct costume. There is a quite generally mistaken idea that if one puts on a tuxedo, and a white tie—why the white tie I shall never understand—one is already on the road to a successful marriage. A tuxedo, with a black tie, would be worn to a wedding only if the wedding were to be performed in the evening and informally. When evening weddings do take place, a full dress is the correct thing to wear.

And another point I want to make clear is that a white tie does not make a wedding outfit, even if worn with something other than a tuxedo. You can't put on a white tie and feel that nothing now stands between you and "Here Comes the Bride."

The correct outfit for a day wedding is formal day attire, and nothing else. That is, unless the wedding is to be extremely informal, with the bride wearing only a traveling dress, or the like. But if the bride wears a veil, and there is a wedding party, it is only fair to her—and the bridegroom might as well start out being fair—for him to wear the corresponding formal dress prescribed by fashion.

For a real formal wedding the cutaway coat should be worn. This may be black or oxford gray. If it is black, the trousers are of a striped material. If gray, trousers of the same material are usually worn. The waistcoat may be double or single breasted to match the coat, with a white facing, or it may be double breasted of fancy material, such as pale brown or light gray—or even white washable vests are proper. A white plaited or stiff bosomed dress shirt is worn, and wing or turnover collar. The tie with a turnover collar is a four in hand or throwover, in plain color, or faint patterns. Black and white effects or gray and silver, or gray and black, in stripes or figures are popular for these ties. With a wing collar a bow tie is smart.

Shoes may be buttoned with kid or colored cloth uppers and patent leather or black calf lowers. Or spats may be worn with black plain oxfords. Gloves may be tan or pale gray or white, usually buck. A silk hat should be the headgear.

If the wedding is to be rather informal, with the bride wearing a veil, yet a small party and a general air of informality ruling, the cutaway coat could be dispensed with and the short black jacket be worn with striped trousers, with white or colored stiff shirt, and the same kind of tie and collar. In this case the hat may be the silk one or it may be a derby, or even a gray homburg or fedora or a straw in season.

This being a free country, no one can stop you if you want to be married in a business suit. This would be the case if the bride is not going to wear a veil, or if you are merely a guest, and don't wish to go to the trouble of wearing a cutaway. If a business suit is worn, a dark blue double breasted makes a smart outfit. A plaited or stiff bosomed shirt, with perhaps a wing collar and colored bow tie might be worn, and spats over oxfords.

If the wedding is to be late in the spring, and in the country, a white flannel wedding party would be considered one solution of the problem of what to wear. In this case the men of the wedding party would all get together and decide to wear white flannels with dark coats. The bridegroom and the best man could wear dark blue coats and the ushers might wear oxford gray coats with their white flannels. Different colored ties for the best man and bridegroom and for the ushers could be decided upon. There are many attractive possibilities in wedding outfits, if some plan is made.

This ought to answer the queries of A. R. I. and G. H. C., both of whom ask for advice about afternoon weddings. A. R. I. wants to wear a double breasted blue suit, blue plaited shirt, wing collar, blue bow tie, and patent leather shoes. This is all right, unless the wedding is to be quite formal.

G. H. C. wishes to know whether, as some one other than the bridegroom, he may wear either a gray or blue suit with black ties and gray spats. He may wear a wing collar or not, as he wishes. At any rate, a stiff collar should be worn.

ISN'T IT ODD?

By William Atherton Du Puy

ISN'T it odd that the bobolinks should be sweeping up from the south just now to take possession of a strip of the United States 500 miles wide and reaching from Nova Scotia to British Columbia!

They have spent the winter as brown marsh birds in Brazil and Argentina. Then in February they began the drift north, stopping in the upper part of South America for the male birds to change to their black, white, and yellow wedding garments. Then they hopped across the Caribbean to Jamaica, Cuba, and Florida, or came through Central America and across the gulf. They spread out and set their time clocks to arrive in the northern tier of states about the beginning of May.

There they take possession of the meadows. Only the northern states know the rollicking song of the bobolink, for it sings at no other than nesting time. The female keeps her straw-colored dress that she may hide in the grass, lay straw-collored eggs, and hatch them without being seen. The male flaunts his joy wisely withal, for he does it in such a way as to direct attention away rather than toward the nest.

The bobolink is primarily an eastern bird, used not to extend its province so far west. It likes meadows, and farmers create them. As farms pushed west the bobolinks went with them. They followed settlers into the Rockies, where they had not formerly nested, over the Rockies, down to the coast.

They still remember, however, that they are eastern birds. When late summer arrives the broods are reared, and when the time for the southern migration begins they do not go straight south from Michigan or the Dakotas. Instead they start east and do not stop until they bump up against the Atlantic. Then they turn down the coast in innumerable swarms, follow it to the tip of Florida, hop off in the long flight to Venezuela.

This is the way they got started going hundreds of thousands of years ago, and, although it is twice as far, they stick to the route.

The Tribune will pay $1 for What's Wrong Here suggestions. Alice May was furious at their treatment and shouted at her mother, "These boys are making me go in a bunch by myself." E. L. R.

The day Junior was three years old he came to the breakfast table with an air of great importance, announcing, "Well, I's three old years." E. C. B.

Magnesia Best for Your Indigestion

Warns Against Doping Stomach with Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically, from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time, because they know this wonderful antacid and food corrective which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

Milk of Magnesia and Mineral Oil Now Combined

One of the most important medical achievements of recent years is the combination of milk of magnesia and mineral oil. Haley's Magnesia-Oil successfully combines the two, and makes them doubly effective.

The oil carries the magnesia straight to the lower bowel, the seat of most so-called stomach trouble. All of the antacid properties of the milk of magnesia are applied to correcting the trouble at its source. Poisonous acids are neutralized, clogged tracts are lubricated—at one and the same time. Action is prompt, but devoid of griping. Delightful to take; no oily taste. Can be mixed with milk and given children without their knowledge.

Get a bottle of Haley's Magnesia-Oil today. Most druggists sell it. If yours can't supply you we will mail a bottle postpaid on receipt of price. Large family size, $1. The Haley M-O Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—What is it that makes the clothes of the Parisienne the standard of all the feminine world, from Hoboken to Hongkong, and back again the other way? It is the subtle something that we sometimes call "chic" and at other times classify as "verve," "individuality," or "taste." It is the gift of knowing how, when, and what to wear. It is the ability to choose from the season's offerings of many thousands of models the ones particularly suited to the chooser. And it is the discrimination that knows when, where and how to wear the models chosen.

In other words, it is a sense of the eternal fitness of things, backed by the relentless verdict of one's mirror. "Know thyself" might very well be the slogan of the Parisienne, and to it should be added "Consider thine environment." Catch a Parisienne wearing a dress suitable for the Moulin Rouge at the Cercle Interallie. She would rather forgo the the most tempting invitation than appear in what seems to her an inappropriate costume. M. Worth, that foremost prophet of the well dressed, says his greatest struggle is to get his clients to choose, out of a season's collection, the costume most appropriate to them.

"They want what they like," is his wail, "and not what is most agreeable to complexion, figure, and environment."

However, the Paris creators agree that the American woman is, of all their foreign clientele, the most adaptable, the most eager, and the most intelligent, which is saying "mouthful" and allows us to go on to the particular types exemplified in our illustration today. In the lines of these lie most of the law and the prophets for the spring season.

In our first offering is an analysis of Parisian chic for the slender woman, adapted for and adopted by the present season. It is created by Philippe and Gaston for the slender, and even thin, and designed to aid, abet and flatter such figures. For such it has chic to burn, and may be appropriately donned for almost any daytime function. The material is dark blue reps, combined with the sheerest of white organdy. The long tunic is slightly fitted above the hips and is given the season's flare in its underskirt of waved—rather than plaited—reps. The braided motif on the hip, from which hangs the sash, assists this flare in a discreet way.

It is, however, the sleeves that really do the trick. The straight fitted sleeve is suspended at the elbow, to make place for a puff of white organdy, its balloonlike effect being accentuated by lines of dark blue braid. The pointed braid motif that merges into the fitted cuff of reps is a grace inducing device that does a lot for the thin or even bony wrist.

A collar of organdy, cut in points and having braided edges, makes a charming finish for the neck, completed by long organdy ties. The model is called "Folie," and is considered by M. Gaston as characteristic of his ideas on the smartest features of the spring mode, with especial appeal to the Parisienne.

Our second offering shows the swing of the pendulum to the other extreme, giving an idea of the appropriate selection for a woman merging from forty-two into forty-four size. Drecoll has in this model considered the woman who has to look down the list of entrees and consider the number of calories before ordering. He has omitted none of the essentials of chic in his creation, which puts over some of the best ideas of the spring season.

First of all, the color of the frock—a pale bois du rose—snaps figurative fingers at the time worn tradition that only the slim can wear light colors. What the pale tint adds, in illusion of avoirdupois, the surplice closing with its revers of self-colored satin fulgurante, the diagonal waistline, and the long scarf collar promptly subtract. They also function in aiding the cachet of the costume.

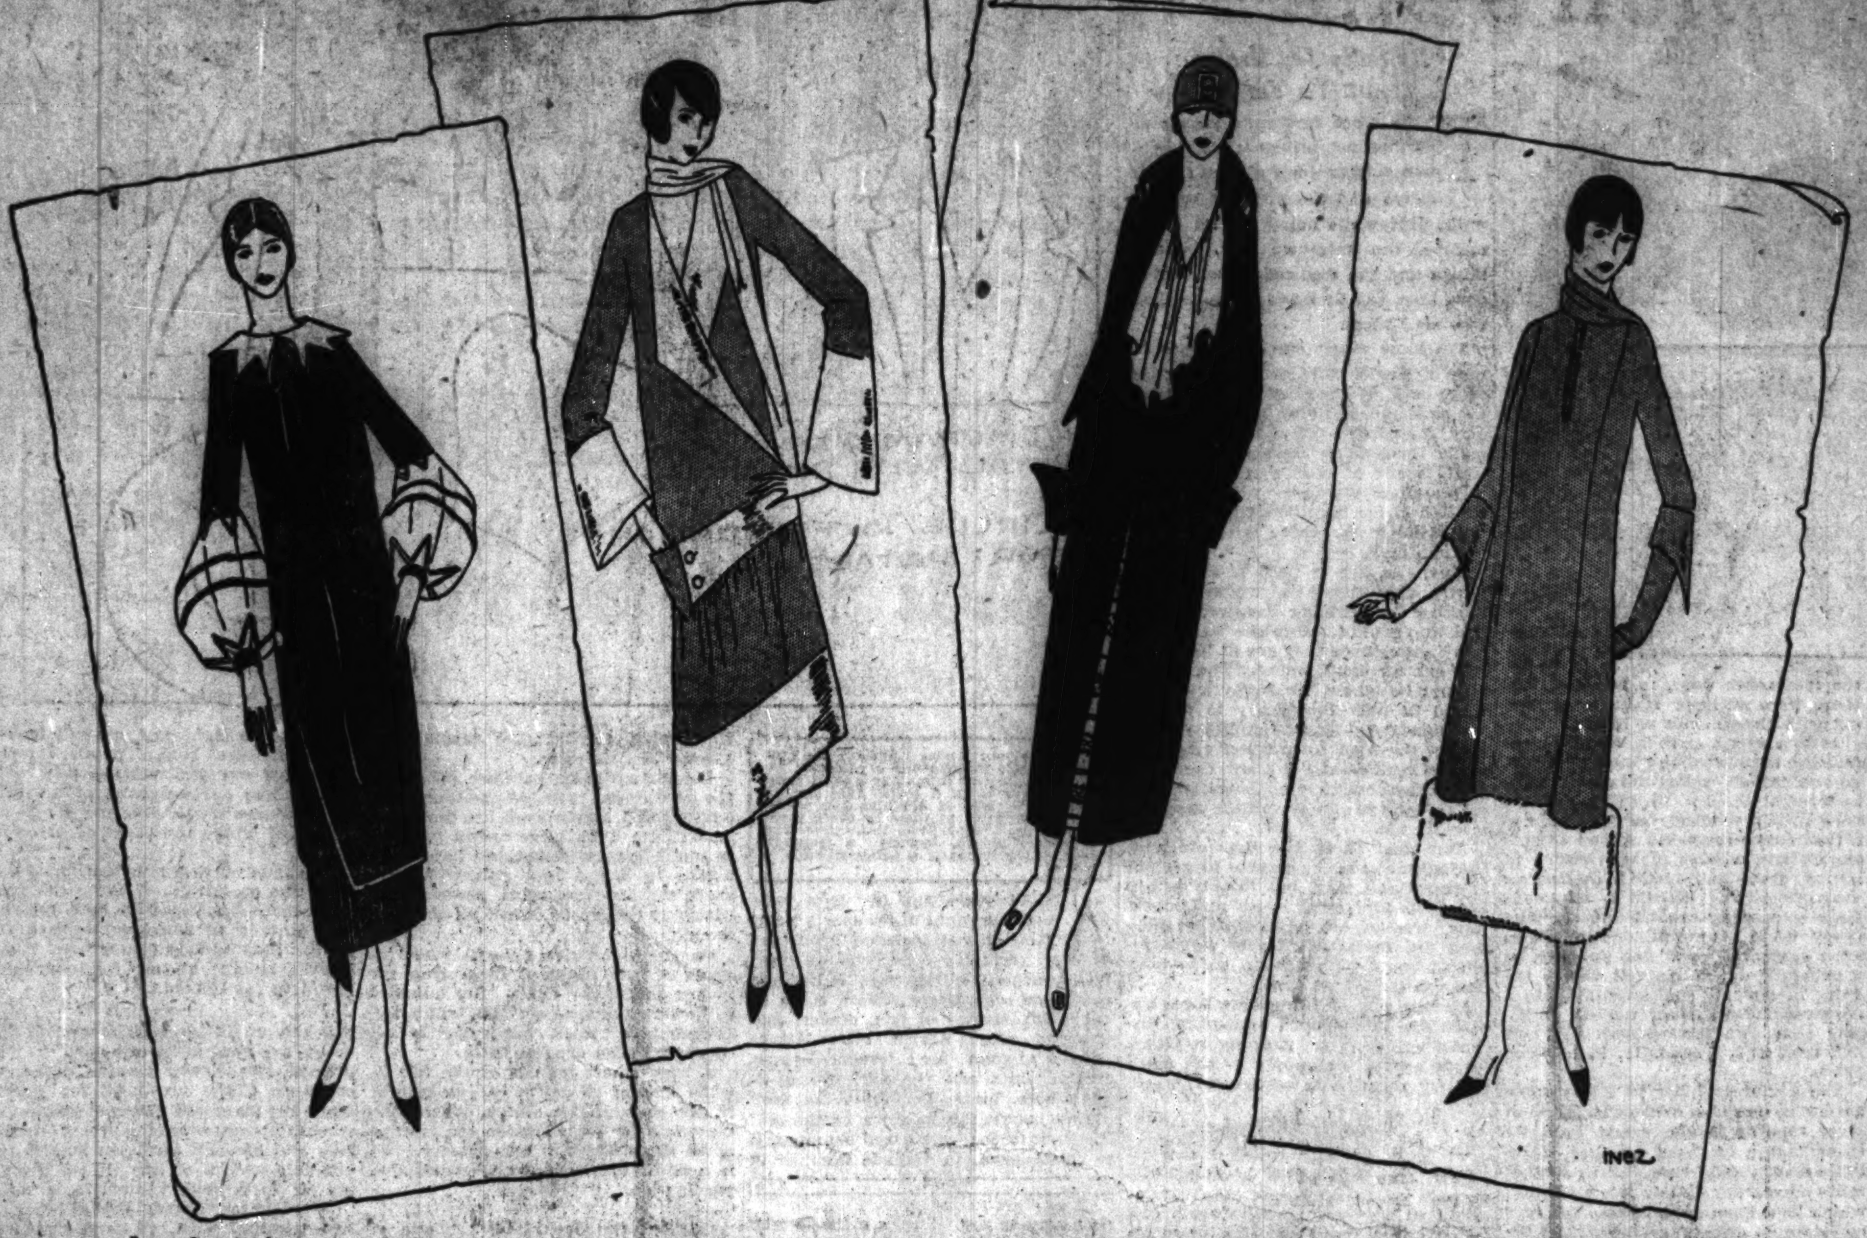
The material of the dress is pale bois du rose kasha, which contrasts beautifully in surface with the satin fulgurante that serves for bands, belt, and collar, while matching it perfectly in tone. The wrap around skirt, gathered slightly on to the wide, slanting girdle, is particularly effective, and the graceful loose sleeves are also appropriate for arms that cannot bear the revelations of the skin tight sleeve. The pocket, placed at the left side of the girdle, is one of those irrelevant trifles that bear the unmistakable stamp of Paris. When, where, and how to wear it is entirely up to the individual, and how much time and thought she cares to spend on consideration of these three questions.

Our third offering, a model from Anna, neatly sidesteps the problem of size, and admits a triumphant compromise between both the emaciated and the portly. The directoire still holds a respected place in the present mode, and this is one of its most charming exponents in the present season. Made of dark blue fresca, a novelty fabric that is popular in Paris, it has only its cavalier cuffs, its collar and revers, and its flaring skirt to tie to the romantic pre-Napoleonic period. It is worn over a slip of blue and red figured crepe de chine on a creamy yellow ground, and the softly ruffled jabot is of pale yellow crepe de chine.

It is one of those important factors of the smart wardrobe—the coat dress, which seems equally appropriate functioning in both capacities. Naturally, its service is limited to such occasions as permit either of these costumes to appear with propriety; that is to say, the affairs of daytime which are not too formal or festive.

Our fourth offering, which is one of the outstanding successes of the new Drecoll collection, is made of satin faced crepe de chine, a sort of grayish beige in color. The body of the frock shows the crepe de chine side, while the nifty little elbow cuffs and the sleeve from that point to the wrist are of the satin side. The scarf puts the satin face outward.

To balance this charming but not particularly warm neck arrangement, Drecoll has placed a wide band of creamy parmi fur at the bottom of the dress in the approved spring manner. The slit that marks the opening of the neck to a sufficient distance to permit you to wiggle into the frock is accentuated by a strand of pinkish pearl beads attached to the dress. It substitutes for the string of pearls that the Parisienne is so enamored with that she lives, eats, and sleeps in it. It is cleverly tinted, as are most of the pearl necklaces you see everywhere.



Irregular tunic, organdy collar, and puffed sleeves spell chic. Drecoll designs this to slenderize stout figures. Interpretation of Directoire in dark blue and yellow. Satin faced crêpe de chine and parmi fur for a street dress.

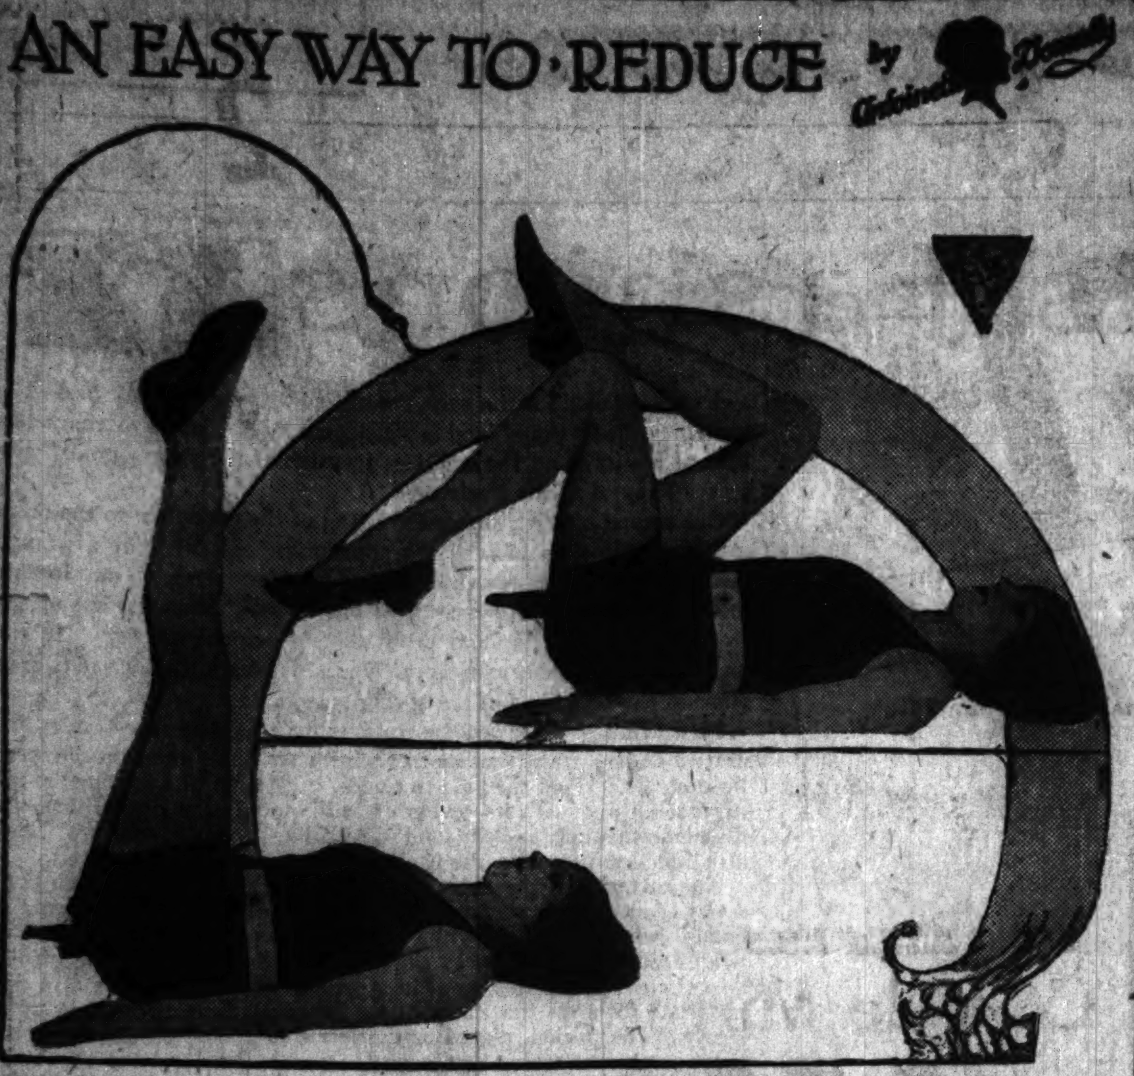
AN EASY WAY TO REDUCE

by Antoinette Donnelly



How One Woman Reduced "In Spots" Without Dieting or Excessive Exercising.

MILLICENT is the name we hit upon when she told me she'd tell me how she took two inches off her waist line and three off her hips if I wouldn't disclose her identity. Then she came one day with a gay gleam in her eye and suggested she be rechristened "Militant," for militant she was when she decided to rebel against her "hippy" figure. So Militant she'll be.

Well, Militant, was one of those young women whom nature started to mold with a lavish hand and along about the waistline was overcome with fatigue or something. Anyway, the job was finished in sort of a slapstick fashion. As a consequence Militant's stage aspirations were blighted by a figure that lost its symmetry somewhere about the hips and continued in a rough course on down to the toes. From her waist up she was perfect. A poetic swan's neck grew out of a pair of beautifully proportioned shoulders, and upon it rested a head and face that were and are truly beautiful. Long, slender hands and well shaped arms conveyed the correct idea of the why of sleeveless dresses.

But from the waist on there was something all wrong with her full length picture. Militant knew it, but philosophically accepted it for a number of years, relying upon full flounced skirts to cover her up. Then, when she got to be such a big girl she couldn't play the bouffant style of dress any longer, she decided something had to be done to keep that hip spread of hers from getting any worse. And it had to be done quickly, because after the Lanvin style there wasn't much left to choose from but the straight line frock. And no self-respecting straight line frock will stand for its bulging out in the back and being stretched over the hips. It just won't play at being a straight-lined frock any more.

Whittling Down the Hip Line.

Now, Militant didn't want to reduce any of the upper part of her. All she wanted was to whittle down the hip line, the lower back, and the legs. She was not a heavy eater at any time. So, counting the calories wasn't what she needed. She hadn't eaten the fat on, so there wasn't any point in trying to eat it off.

So, exercise seemed the logical thing. But what exercise? She had no taste for monotonous hone-drone one-two-three-fours!

Then there came a serious illness in her household. One of two months' duration, during which time Militant was on her feet almost incessantly acting as assistant nurse and helper. Perhaps ten times a day she had to climb one set of stairs in her home, and the basement often had to be visited for something, which meant another flight down and up again. Well, at the end of the two months she wondered if she wasn't getting a bit lighter where she wasn't before. But, as she hadn't taken any measurements in the beginning, she had to rely on the information supplied by her feelings for the time being, and they were lighter. No question about that.

Then, just as luck would have it, with the patient recovered, her family moved into an elevator apartment—on the fourteenth floor, to be exact. So there were no more stairs to climb—not with the elevator so handy.

After a month or so in the new place Militant began feeling "lumpy" again. So one day she asked the doctor what he thought about it. He told her people born with a tendency to big hips and a continuous increased spread thereof should not indulge in the luxury of sitting down and resting themselves very often. They should by all means keep on moving around and stepping lively when they walk. The middle aged spread of waist line and hip, as a general rule, he claimed due to the habit of flopping mechanically into a nice upholstered chair instead of letting your own feet support you now and then and, frequently, in between times.

The doctor told her he'd guarantee her a nice new slim model of a figure in three months if she would walk up three flights of those fourteen stairs twice a day, walk three brisk, snappy miles once a day and do two exercises, which he'd keep down to two for fear more would discourage her in the beginning.

Here Are the Exercises.

Militant followed the doctor's orders, and at the end of three months she has taken two inches off her waist line, three off her hips, and flattened her back perceptibly. And that isn't the half of it, she tells me, for she knows her legs are slimmer and she is going to keep on the régime until she has more inches to report among the missing undesirables.

Exercise No. 1, illustrated here, is one of them. First, the feet are on the floor, heels firmly planted. From hips to toe tips the muscles are stretched. Then proceed to raise them, keeping toes stretched to limit; raise them slowly, then drop them slowly, stretching during the process of returning the heels to the floor. Start with five times, then increase to ten, then to twenty, as Militant did. And do them morning and night.

Exercise No. 2 is the other. It is the movement of the leg you use in bicycling. Do one leg at a time, then the other, and then both together. You may do these with pretty fair speed once the movement is learned.

You might do a dozen others, as Militant says, but she found these two were enough, with the three mile hike and the three stair jaunt a day. And, having only two of them to do, she says, they do not take on the nature of a task you dread.

Worth trying, don't you think?

F. M. F.: THE LUMP BETWEEN your shoulders may be due to a faulty sitting posture. Here are some good exercises to do: Lie on your back on the floor, arms stretched down close to sides, feet and body stretched to the fullest length. Try to raise your head, with no help from the arms or feet, so that your chin will rest on your chest. Do not strain by repeating too often at first. Then, flop over, and raise the head backward as far as possible. You will feel the pull on the muscles of the back. Do these exercises five times each, gradually increasing the number of times. When you have mastered this, try to raise yourself to a sitting position, touching toes with the fingers.

F. F. F.: YES, DEEP BREATHING exercises will improve your circulation. Stand before an open window in a loose garment. With feet nearly together, chin down, and arms extended downward, the backs of the hands touching, gradually raise your chin and arms at the same time until the head is erect and the arms are over the chest. The movement of the hands is carried upward still further and the head is resting on the back of the neck, the hands separated about the width of the shoulders. Then, hands should be dropped downward in a large sweep of a circle to original position. After you have accomplished this, repeat, inhaling forcibly as the hands are raised, hold the breath as long as possible and exhale when the hands are being brought down.

MADGE: AT THE AGE OF 22, five feet, two, the standard weight is 120. I do not think you wish to reduce fifteen pounds. Your weight is standard. As a precautionary measure you might eat lightly of candy, pastry, bread and potatoes.

M. T. C.: A TWENTY-FIVE PER cent solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water is an excellent remedy for excessive perspiration. Dab it gently on the parts every two or three days, and allow it to dry on. Three applications are usually sufficient. The idea that the general health is affected if perspiration is stopped in the armpits is erroneous. The sweat glands will find outlet on the skin of other parts of the body.

MADE TO SERVE.

TO the more fortunate among us, springtime brings thoughts of new clothes—new clothes for ourselves and the younger ones as well. But while doing so, let us remember the outgrown and discarded things and the tremendous amount of good they will do when given to those who need them.

We have many cases on file right now of women who could help mightily to build up the family income while the husband is ill by taking jobs—if only they had clothes with which to make themselves presentable. Meanwhile, many of us in preparing spring and summer wardrobes are discarding articles of clothing which would solve the problem for these devoted wives and mothers.

Men, too, are in need of clothing—particularly those to whom milder weather is bringing renewed health and who could take up the wage earner's burden, once they are fit to appear and ask for employment. The clothes needn't be whole, for many a mother would be only too happy to remake and remodel. Many families can be set on the road to prosperity by this simple means—and I know there are more than enough men discarding winter clothing to care for all the cases we have on file.

And then there are the children. Springtime means a chance to get out of doors and play, but it also brings the need for sound shoes and stockings, dresses, etc. Hundreds of children are discarding shoes which repaired could be made to serve poor children for a long time.

Moving and housecleaning have unearthed a tremendous amount of discarded and outgrown clothing, so please let us apply this supply to the need, and put them all to service this week.

Piano Is Offered.

"I have a piano which I can no longer keep and which I should like to pass on to some one who cannot afford to buy one but who could call for it. The piano is, of course, an old one, but will prove a happiness to any one loving music whose home has hitherto been without it. A. M. R."

We shall be glad to forward your letter to the generous giver of this piano if her offer has struck deep into one of your fondest wishes. Write to us.

Loss by Fire.

"I am coming to you for my aunt and uncle and their five children, who early last Sunday morning lost their home, which was their all, by fire. Everything in the home was burned. They would be so grateful for any clothing received. The boys are 14, 11, 8, 5, and the little girl is 3. All of them are large for their ages. My aunt can sew and remodel anything. M. S."

Your gift of discarded clothing will prove a real act of kindness here, where disaster has taken almost everything. We are sure you will be rewarded with heartfelt gratitude.

Offers an Organ.

"I have a mahogany Kimball reed wind organ which some reader of your column and lover of organ music may appreciate. M. J."

This splendid offer will surely delight some one who is interested in organ music. Write in at once if you want it.

Needs Wheel Chair.

"I wonder if some reader of your column has a large sized wheel chair no longer in use. I have a friend who is in need of one and who will not get out of doors this spring unless she has one. She would be more than grateful for the gift of such a chair. M. J."

Perhaps we who are conscious of no physical pain or suffering are forgetful of those who lie indoors on these glorious spring days. The gift of your discarded wheel chair would bring constant pleasure to this woman, who would be enabled to ride out of doors.

Will Give Violin.

"I have a violin, in good condition, which I shall be glad to give to some worthy person, who wishes to study violin, but cannot afford to buy the instrument. It needs only strings and a new bridge, which will cost but a few cents. E. C."

Do you long to express yourself through music? This is a real opportunity to avail yourself of the opportunity, if you have the desire, to own and play that most expressive of all stringed instruments—the violin.

Offers Child's Bed.

"We have a child's white iron bed and mattress, which is no longer in use. If one of your readers cares to call for it, she may have it. O. C. B."

This splendid offer will surely make a real appeal to some mother who finds the sleeping arrangement in her home crowded, and the baby sleeping in a buggy or a too small crib.

Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By Clotilde

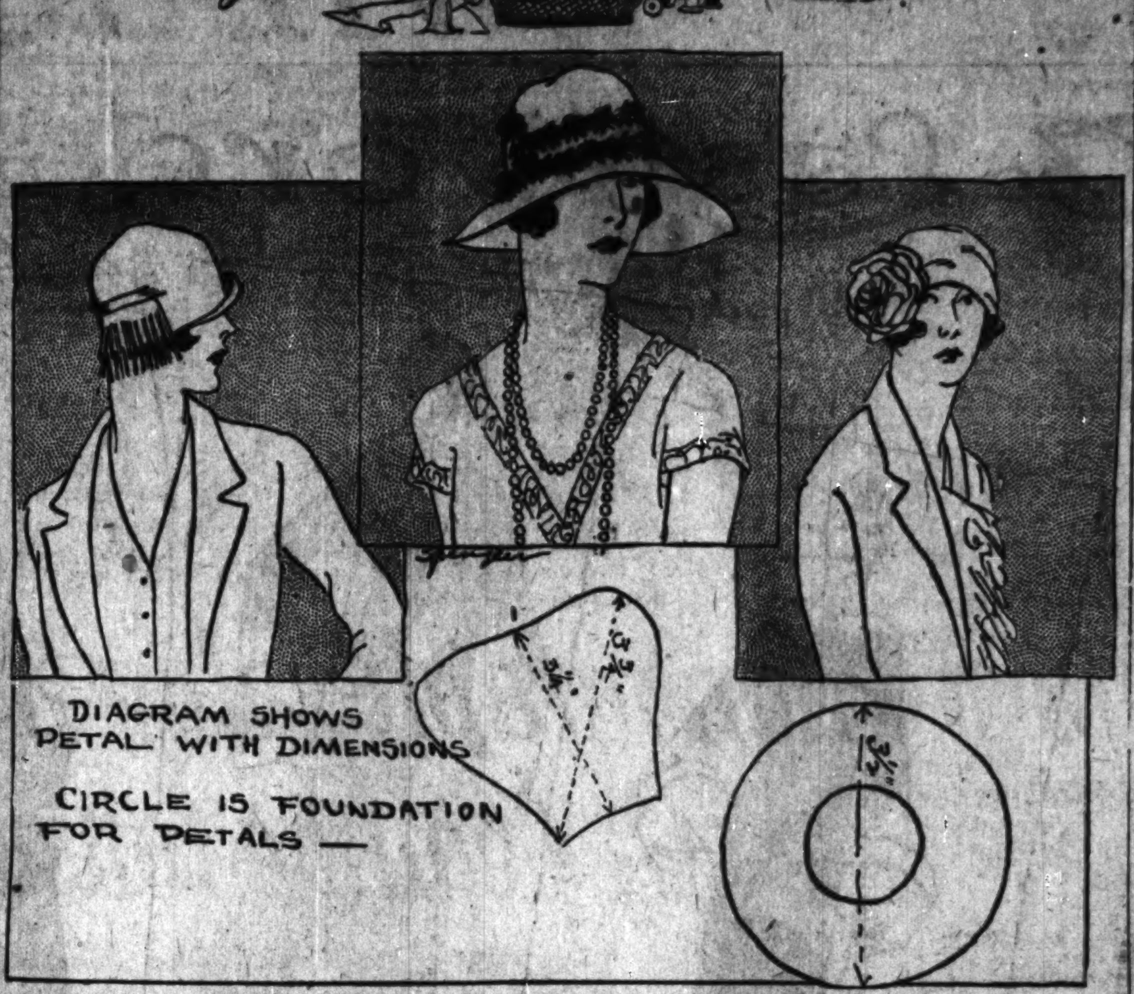

DIAGRAM SHOWS PETAL WITH DIMENSIONS
CIRCLE IS FOUNDATION FOR PETALS —

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

A FEW years ago felt hats were only throught of for sports wear. Now no well groomed debutante or woman's wardrobe is complete without a felt hat, either for sports or semi-dress. These come in such soft shades of tan, cinder, and Coolidge gray, Sevrin blue, lettuce green, almond seed green, oyster, cream, white, and the solid colors, as navy blue, black, and from the deep nigger brown toning down to the soft shades in cocoa, beige, and champagne to thistledown, to a shade familiar in the orchid family; also tango pink follows in that color.

Large mushroom hats are worn, but the smaller hat turns off the face; then again small mushrooms are seen. A smart trim for a large brown felt hat is small flowers, something like small asters in white and yellow having black centers—two rows, sewed alternately at bottom of crown all the way around.

On the right side a large wheel is made of solid flowers, measuring six inches across the circle. Six bunches of flowers are used for this trimming. Roses, pond lilies, gardenias of all colors are also used on felts.

A very smart trim is of the felt itself. Felt of all colors can be bought in the department stores, where the materials for lamp shades are sold, to make these flowers. One-quarter yard is needed, as the material comes two yards wide.

Cut out the five pieces the size of pattern, sort of a heart shaped petal, which is three and one-quarter inches in center and three and three-quarters inches from highest point to bottom. Sew these on a circle of canvas, leaving a hole in center. It should measure eight to eight and one-half inches across the first row of petals; for the next row cut the same petals, only make them three-eighths of an inch smaller; also make five and set these on top of where the edges of first row lap.

Continue putting petals on until five rows are on, always making the next petal three-eighths of an inch smaller. The stamen of a flower is used for center, putting it in center hole. These can be bought at any millinery supply store for 10 cents.

Scarfs of all kinds of materials and colors are good style this spring. The printed silk, heavy Canton crêpe, or crêpe de Chine are used for sports, while the plain and flowered georgettes or chiffons are more for dressy affairs. One and one-half yards in length and one-half widths of any of the thirty-six or forty inch materials is used.

1883 W. A. WIEBOLDT & CO. 1925

ON LINCOLN AVE. NEAR BELMONT—LAKeview 7000 ON MILWAUKEE AVE. NEAR ASHLAND—ARMitage 1000

42ND ANNIVERSARY

It was in 1883, at No. 605 on old Indiana St., which is now 1832 Grand Ave., that Mr. W. A. Wieboldt first opened to the public his little twenty-foot store. It was just forty-two years ago that Mr. Wieboldt established the policies of W. A. Wieboldt & Co., the policies that have been followed so closely ever since—the policies that have seen W. A. Wieboldt & Co. grow from an unpretentious two-story building to its present greatness—a combined frontage (including our new third store soon to open) of almost half a mile—the policies that have prompted the constant effort to maintain complete, attractive stocks of seasonable needs, at (values considered) the lowest prices in the city.

Those policies—so comprehensive and far reaching—have been the inspiration to provide for you shopping places which you will find to be increasingly convenient of access, and pleasant to visit because of the courtesy of those with whom you come into contact as our representatives. It is that rich experience, gleaned through those forty-two years of successful merchandising, that makes possible this great celebration—offering the merchandise you desire at savings that are more than ordinary—more than just "worth while." You'll find every section replete with the greatest values imaginable—our months of preparation assure that. You'll find it extremely profitable to shop here tomorrow and all this week—but not only that—throughout the whole year as well!

WROUGHT IRON ACCESSORIES.

TOUCHES of wrought iron go a long way toward supplying the decorative quality of a room. Especially is this true in rooms of the Spanish or the Italian type. From Italy come many wrought iron accessories for use in the American replicas of lovely Italian villas.

Of prime consideration among these importations, of course, are lamps of various types and sizes. We have just been to see an exhibit of these, and found them wonderfully fascinating. So perfectly delightful are they that it is needless to say they would grace any room in which they might be used, regardless of whether it be done in the Italian influence.

Combinations of Dresden figures and wrought iron form many of the delicate table lamps. One of these which is singularly lovely is composed of a group of three Dresden figures in soft pastel colors. The accompanying lamp shade is of orchid silk, veiled in fine lace and trimmed with French flowers. The lamp had just been sold to be placed on a night stand in an alluring French bedroom which is done in orchid and pale green.

Another iron table lamp is ornamented by a quaint Dresden figure of a ballet dancer. So full of grace is the little dancing form that, on seeing it, one can almost visualize the light swaying motion of a tiny fairy mysteriously placed upon the table.

Two figurines in costumes of the time of Louis Seize, one a man, the other a woman, are used in a pair of charming table lamps. Both are dressed in oyster green and rose. The wrought iron stands on which they are set are enameled oyster green. Silk lamp shades are of pale rose silk, edged with green.

Unusually effective is an old Dresden clock, which has been mounted on a fine wrought iron base, and made into a lamp. The shade for this is a soft French blue, trimmed with silver. High lightings of dull silver are applied to the iron base. Standing on a console table, flanked by a pair of Dresden flower vases, this clock-lamp makes a most pleasing decoration for the hallway in which it is placed.

Suitable for living rooms are lamps made of wrought iron, combined with Venetian glass bottles or vases. Bases and delicate tracings of iron wrapped around the glass make most effective lamps. They are so colorful, too. Can't you just see all those lovely shades of Venetian glass, glowing iridescently beneath the shaded lights? You could almost believe the slender iron bindings were holdings in a gorgeous, chimerical soap bubble, prolonging its stay for your special benefit.

Dully gilded iron holds a clear green Venetion glass vase of slender lines. There is a lampshade of green georgette over gold silk, edged with black. Topping this is a finial of emerald green glass. This lamp, accompanied by an amethyst Venetian glass cigaret box with a colorful, glass flower handle, is placed on an end table beside a great, black chenille arm chair. Doesn't it make a happy grouping?

There are lovely floor lamps, too, and torches. Most of these are in antiqued gold, rubbed so that the underlying black shows though. Placed in a charming boudoir, beside a chaise longue upholstered in damson rose satin, is a floor lamp of this type. The base shows dull colored iron flowers and the upright is of twisted iron. Jade green silk, trimmed with gold lace, makes the deep lamp shade.

Today's illustration is of one end of the living room in a delightful Italian house. The recessed fireplace is exceptionally fine. This alcove arrangement, with the little built-in seats beneath the windows at each end, and the fireside bench, creates a most inviting atmosphere. Boxed cushions for the seats and upholstery on the bench are of deep Italian red velvet. Andirons are of heavy black wrought iron. Flanking the arched opening is a pair of wrought iron torcheres, rubbed with gold. The glass in these is frosted, so that the light from the blue bulbs inside is softly diffused, causing a most uniquely artistic result.

In this same Italian house, there is an arched opening between the living and dining rooms. The bareness of this opening is modified by a pair of swinging gates. These are of wrought iron, intricately patterned. They were imported from Italy for the express purpose of imparting an unusual fascination to this particular doorway.

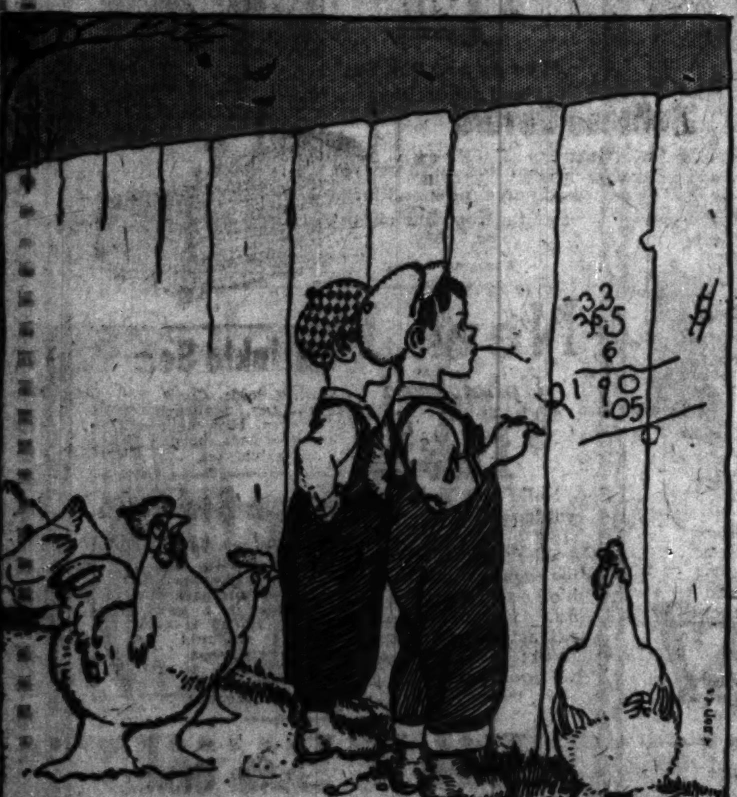
Tall flower stands, in a deep, narrow funnel shape, are placed at each side of the door opening into the hallway. They are about five feet high, of wrought iron strappings, decorated with flowers, and fitted with a removable glass inset, so they may hold any kind of long stemmed flowers.

A wide stone stairway leads up from the hall to the second story. One side of this is against the wall. The balustrade for the other side is made of decorative wrought iron posts, placed on every fourth step, and connected by means of a heavy iron chain. Most effective, from a decorative point of view, and interesting to hear about, but it wouldn't do at all in the household where there are children, would it?

There is a little breakfast room, entirely furnished in wrought iron. A set consisting of four chairs and a square table are of iron, enameled in a dull putty color, with touches of turquoise blue at the turnings. The table top is of thick black glass, with floral motifs etched in the center and in each corner. This is certainly an unusual treatment, and a pleasing one. Seats and backs of the little chairs are upholstered in a dull green and sand wool damask. In one corner of the room there are an iron bird cage and stand, decorated to match the furniture. Wrought iron flower boxes hold colorful, flowering plants, making a most cheery room, altogether.

Wrought iron extra pieces are added to give interest to a large sun living room. Near one end of a luxurious davenport, a low, coffee table is stood. The base is of rubbed gold iron, the top of Malachite marble. There is a removable tray, with wrought iron edge and handles, and a glass bottom. When it is on the table, with the marble showing through, it looks stationary, as it would seem that the bottom was marble and too heavy to lift; in reality, it is light and easy to carry about. Between two windows, on the opposite side of the room, there is a Swedish iron love seat. This is a graceful, kidney shape, and is fitted with crimson velvet cushions. These two iron pieces add a quality of fineness to an otherwise rather ordinary room.

O. DON'T YOU REMEMBER—



O, don't you remember our chickens, Ben Bolt?
Six hens and a rooster comprised 'em;
What we figured they'd pay
Each at one egg a day
Would certainly more than surprised 'em.

ENTREATY.

PAULA, dear, I can stand it no longer. I must write you and you must hear me. You were so cruel that day I went to bring you home again with me.

I know I vowed I would never, never have more to do with you, but it's impossible. I'm eating my heart out for love of you. When we were sweethearts I thought no love could be as great as ours; our few sweet months of married life were heaven to me. But they are nothing as compared to my love for you now. Paula, my love for you is a terrible thing. It jabs at my heart and leaves me sick with misery. I tell you, you must hear me if you have love or pity left.

It is spring here in the mountains—our mountains, and spring on the little ranch. Can you ever forget that first spring, just two years ago, when I brought you as my bride to the little home that was to be ours? You loved me then, Paula, and no matter what you may have said afterward you can never spoil that sweet memory for me.

And then that terrible day in November. Lies, lies, they were—all of them, Paula. How could you believe them? How could you ever find it in your heart to believe them? I swear to you, as I have a thousand times, they are not true! Believe me, Paula darling. Say that you believe and love me still, and let me come and bring you home again.

JOE.

The fewer hours of sleep you get, the better your bed should be

"If grown-ups slept like children," says an authority on health, "there would be fewer nervous breakdowns and more work done."

The trouble is that busy men and women, "keeping up with things," lose youth's easy ability to sleep. Americans live harder, move faster, and rest less than any other race.

Yet sleep comes first among life's few necessities. It is only while we are asleep that body and brain renew their worn-out cells and store fresh energy to meet each new day. You cannot recapture childhood's happy capacity to sleep, perhaps.

But you can add long hours of deep, unbroken rest to every night and reinforce this extra quantity with quality. Perfect sleep equipment will give you both.

Spare time to call on your merchant and compare your bedding with the Simmons springs and mattresses he offers in many styles at prices to suit every taste and pocketbook. Look for the Simmons label.

Bedding made of new materials cannot be built or bought for less. Write for a copy of "Restful Bedrooms" to The Simmons Company, 666 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

TALKING ABOUT CABBAGE.

ORANGE juice is good, but raw cabbage is better for those who would avoid scurvy. A food that hinders such a development is likely also to be the best of remedies for it. Cooked cabbage, if it has not been almost destroyed by long and sloppy cooking—its mineral elements leached out—will insure the eater of it against anemia and partly, or wholly, against the acid "troubles." Remember that it is 90 per cent water and that the soft solid part, except the central stem which tries to imitate a tree, or be a stiff backbone for the vegetable, is cooked in short order.

Among the greens of the spring time come the new cabbages, although so widely distributed are the contributors to our markets today that we can get almost all the varieties of cabbage the year around. The red cabbage comes in at unexpected times, as well as the curly or crinkled Savoy, and the old white cabbages are always with us.

Though rightfully at this season we should resort to the fresh green things right out of the ground, that is, take to the greens that got the names of potherbs in old days, yet if we have not an interest in those, and if we have not the time or training for preparing these things, the cabbage is all the greater a resource, as well as something as easy as possible to prepare. Also if one will take the pains to get the quite endless effects that may be secured, cabbage cookery may seem something highly worth while in which to become accomplished. Therefore, let us say, that if at this season the greens are not accessible to us, in all their precious rarenesses of taste and flavor, we will exalt the cabbage.

Poorly Cooked Cabbage.

Poorly cooked cabbage gives objectionable odors. It becomes a mess of digestively irritating woody stuff, deeply colored by the tannin in it. Tea has tannin and hard boiling brings it out, giving an objectionable instead of a delicate product with a pleasant aroma. Hard cooking does a similar thing to cabbage, while by gentle and short time cooking it may be soft and savory enough to mash. Remember, then, that cabbage cooked until pink may be nearly spoiled, especially if it has been boiled hard and long in a great deal of water. Long cooking in a fireless cooker is something else again.

Preparing Cabbage for Cooking.

In this connection let us mention the keeping of uncooked cabbage. In a small family one medium cabbage may be too large for one meal, or even two. Wrapped closely in waxed paper, it will keep well, and when a leftover part is to be used a thin slice taken off and rejected will leave the rest as fresh as though it had not been cut. The stem end needs as careful wrapping as a cut side.

If cabbage is to be cooked to resemble greens the chef's method of taking the leaves off one by one is the way to prepare it—rejecting the first imperfect ones. Cutting it in quarters is the least elegant fashion of preparing it. When cut slaw fashion it can be cooked most quickly. And yet another way to cut cabbage fine is to take one from which the stem has been cut off and the imperfect leaves removed, stand it stem down on a cutting board and slice through it almost as for slaw, but not cutting through to the board. Cut from the outside in, water, if gently cooked, but when this turning it and cutting it from opposite side when it becomes necessary. Hold it compactly, and cut across the other way, turning in the same way when necessary and cutting from without in. Now cut off a slice from the bottom, and the whole will fall into bits, except for the core, which though well slit can be removed as a whole. Cabbage cut in this fashion will cook in ten minutes easily.

In cutting cabbage for soups and stews the most attractive way is to take single leaves and cut them in inch squares.

The Cabbage Kettle.

When any green is gently or properly cooked, there is no reason for leaving off the kettle cover, and there is good reason for putting it on. The greens are cooked more evenly in a closed kettle, and less fire is required under it for the cooking. Much fire in the cooking of greens removes other qualities besides their bright green color, the presence of which makes them so much more palatable in appearance if present when they are served. The top leaves of any green in an open kettle do not have a fair chance with those at the bottom, and in some cases the top ones wilt and toughen so that they will never cook tender, while the bottom ones are cooked too much. A lot of water and hard boiling makes greens bitter or rank, and the mild cabbage loses a quality hard to describe, other than by the word savory, which means it is velvety on the tongue when crushed. Hard cooked, it does not crush.

New Cabbage Greens.

Pull off the leaves from a head of new cabbage and examine them for imperfections, perhaps saving the heart for slaw. Put them to cook in enough cold water to cover the cabbage when it is cooked, no more, and this is but little, and in a covered kettle so that they will largely steam done. After the water boils, the cabbage will require but fifteen or twenty minutes of cooking. Drain and serve with plain melted butter and a bit of salt. Or mash it fine with a fork, and season. Or chop the cooked cabbage and season it with salt, butter and cream. Or a French dressing may be used. Another way to vary it, and to give it a certain perfection, is to cook with it one white onion and one carrot, each sliced thin. When the cabbage is mashed or chopped, these are entirely lost to sight, but their contribution to the flavor is distinctive though obscure.

Plain New Cabbage.

Prepare and cut a new cabbage in halves or quarters, and drop it into boiling water, but cook gently (and evenly) in a covered kettle. The fresher and newer it is the quicker it will cook—in a few minutes. If eaten as soon as it is tender, drained and flavored with but a bit of salt and butter, it has flavors and shades of flavors that most cabbage eaters never know, or something over and above and in addition to the ordinary cabbage flavor. It may taste like lobster. This taste can be secured by exquisite cooking.

Cabbage Water.

Plain new cabbage needs but little water can be utilized for soup it is not wasteful to use a little more than is needed. Cabbage water saved to be used as a soup base ought to be preserved with care and used up promptly. It quickly grows stale.

New Sugar Leaf.

In cooking a sugar leaf cabbage, trimmed and cut in half, a way to measure the water is to put the halves round side down in a kettle and pour into them as much water as they will hold, with a bit spilling over. This latter, in a small aluminum kettle with a cover that will clamp, will be enough to start the steam, and in half an hour the cabbage will be cooked over a fire as small as can be maintained. The value of shut-in steam in cooking is not well enough understood.

Cooking Old Cabbage.

Old cabbage, like new, may be cooked in but little water if gently enough. When it has first been blanched for five minutes in considerable water, then rinsed with truly cold water—ice in this water is good.

Cabbage with Onion.

Take two good sized onions to one pound of cabbage, and, for the final cooking only one-third cup of water. Cut the cabbage fine as for slaw and the onions in the same way, and drop together into boiling water for four or five minutes, then drain and rinse with cold water; make it icy cold for the best effect, since this rapid change of temperature soften the cabbage as much as considerable cooking and advantageously. Add the third cup of water and when it boils let the cooking thereafter be the gentlest possible. It may be set on a fireless cooker stone which just hisses, the kettle hermetically sealed and left until cabbage is tender. Finish with butter. You will not taste the onions as such.

Savoy Cabbage.

Savoy cabbage is rich in sugar, and when properly cooked is as sweet as sweet potato, though so different of flavor. When correctly cooked it has so fine a flavor and may be so handsome a green as to deserve the reputation it has of being the finest of all cabbages. Because of its curly and bloomy leaves, which shelter live things, it is best to blanch this cabbage from five to ten minutes, rinsing it in cold water and then putting it to cook in about half a cup of water in addition to that which clings to its leaves, with a little salt. It will cook quickly in a covered kettle over a gentle heat and then when buttered it may seem to surpass all greens for daintiness.

Red Cabbage in Butter.

Cut red cabbage like slaw and put it in a frying pan with a small amount of melted butter, turning it over and over in the butter, then covering the pan as closely as possible and allowing the cabbage to cook gently in the butter and in its own juices. This may be so prepared as to rank in exclusive qualities with mushrooms. It is an ornamental member for a plate dinner. Red cabbage boiled first and then beated up in butter in which some sliced onions have been cooked tender makes an acceptable dish and there are ways of varying this considerably.

Colcannon Adaptation.

Disregarding the fact that people or the true Hibernian like to quarrel over what true colcannon is the following adaptation of the idea yields excellent results and best when the cabbage used is the Savoy. Blanch the cabbage, cook chop and dress it as for the table and then mix with it, half and half, some finely seasoned mashed potato. This can be delicious with high grade cooking but only tolerable with poor.

Hard on Little Eva.

I was impersonating little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which we were presenting for a church fund. We had contrived an invisible ladder by which my soul was to ascend to heaven. It worked so well that with only a slight tremor I permitted myself to be raised upward on the night of the affair.

I might have gained weight or the pulley might have slipped — anyway, when the wings were almost reached the ladder fell.

Luckily I was physically unhurt, but the mental strain of listening to jokes about the accident was terrible.

V. B.

Having Their Fling.

It was our last year in a strict boarding school, and my roommate and I had always been on our good behavior. We realized we had missed a lot of the fun the other girls had enjoyed, even though they had paid for it by being up before the faculty many times.

One night we decided we'd be daring and slip down, after midnight, to the rarely occupied guest room and sleep in the four poster bed in there. The corridors were dark, and the stairs creaked, but we tiptoed along until we had almost reached the guest room. Just then we heard the watchman coming down the corridor. We popped into the guest room and onto the bed.

A series of screams aroused every one. We had sat upon a visiting missionary from Africa.

I. W. G.

Dogs for Dogs.

Two cars had met, causing a great clatter of glass. The police told me to run quickly and call the ambulance. I ran down the street with my basket of groceries on my arm. All my bundles were coming unwrapped or falling out. First came the apples, bouncing out like rubber balls, then the meat, but I kept on going until I got to the hospital.

After calling the ambulance I went back to find my groceries. A man had picked up the apples for me, but I could not find the meat. He asked me what kind of meat I had, I told him frankfurters. He said he hadn't seen them.

I went down the street thinking someone was following me. I turned to look and a dog had one end of the frankfurters and the other hung in the basket. I looked back and the whole crowd was laughing at the scene.

The Classic has the famous Chicago Faucet [illegible] Renewable Working Unit—[illegible]

The Chicago Classic is a very handsome sink fixture that adds to the beauty of any kitchen—but it is not sold on the basis of beauty alone.

The fact is, it is so handy for so many things that a woman who is used to a Classic is simply lost without it.

The Classic makes you wonder why you always thought dishwashing such a frightful nuisance. Cleaning meats and vegetables becomes play. Filling the washing machine, or tall vases, or baby's bath are made so much easier with the Classic.

The mixing feature alone makes the Classic worth having. The long swinging spout, self-draining soap dish, hose-and-spray attachment all help to make your kitchen sink a pleasant workplace instead of a nightmare.

COLORADO

the Playground of the Nation is a Paradise of Scenic Grandeur

Every mile you travel thrills you. Every trip you take unfolds new wonders. Each place you visit is different, seems more beautiful and convinces you that Nature was over-generous to Colorado, when she was passing out her rare scenic wonders.

But, when you realize that these garden spots of the great outdoors belong to you and every other American and that Colorado is only Nature's custodian, preserving and developing them for the pleasure, recreation, rest and recuperation of this and future generations, you will understand why Colorado is known as the playground of the Nation.

"Keeping Pace with the Growth of Chicago"

THE NEW MORRISON HOTEL

To Be the World's Leader in Size—and Economy

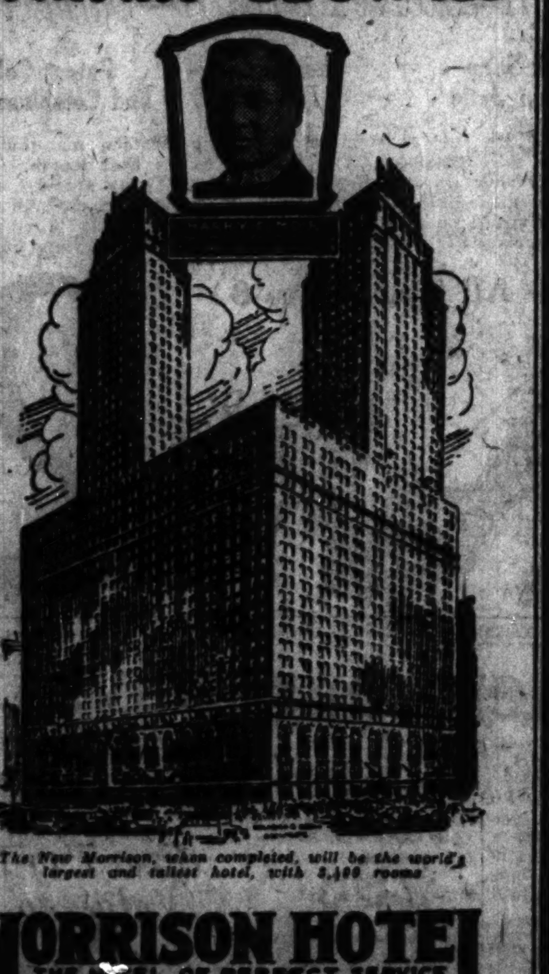
THE effect of the Morrison's recently acquired "sky-lease" will be a notable development of the hotel's present policy of renting rooms for $3 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 in any other front-rank hotel. Valuable store subleases have made this possible for several years, but the new Clark St. section will contain 850 rooms —400 in the tower—practically free of ground-rent. On the upper floors guests will enjoy the same pure atmosphere as at a suburban hotel—and a short trip by elevator, instead of a long taxi-ride, will give them access to it.

The Morrison at present contains 1,054 outside rooms, each with bath, but the New Morrison will have 3,400 —the largest hotel in the world.

The Morrison is the home of the Terrace Garden, Chicago's "Wonder Restaurant," the favorite "dance-and-dine" rendezvous of the Middle West. The following entertainers will appear here throughout the week beginning Monday, May 4:

DON BESTOR
AND HIS VICTOR RECORD ARTISTS
The Greatest of Dance Orchestras
ZELMA JENSEN
Famous Soprano, in Selected Solos
EDWARD ARTHUR
Offering His Eccentric Dancing Specialty
BEATRICE GARDEL
In Artistic Dance-Creations

Reserve your table by calling STATE 8700



The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel, with 3,400 rooms

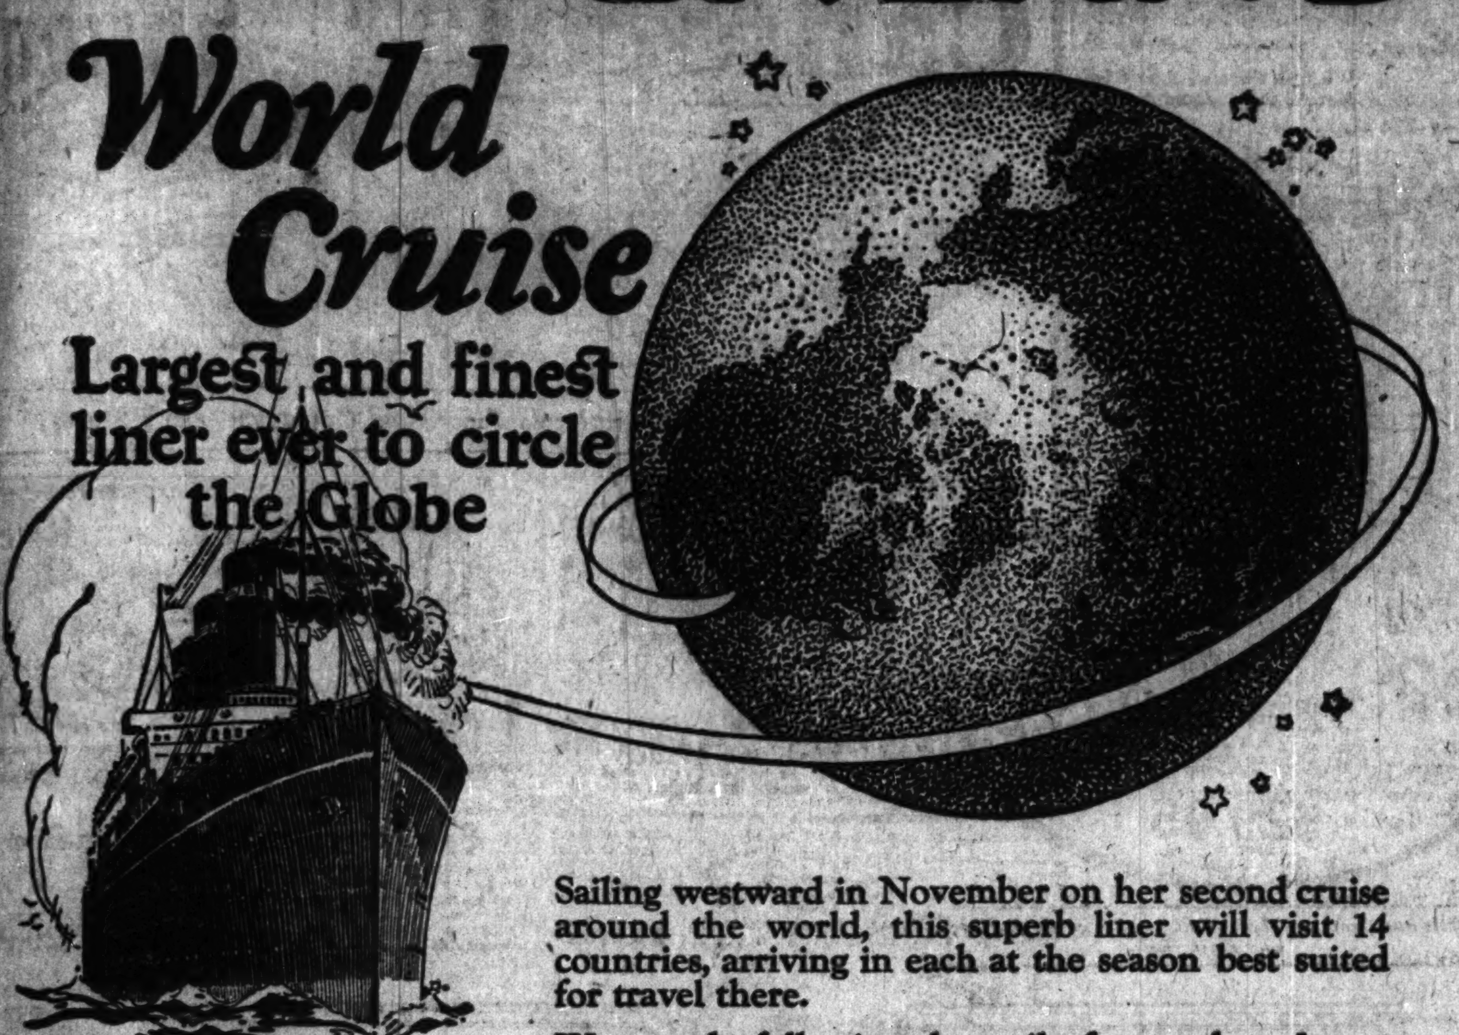
BELGENLAND

World Cruise

Largest and finest liner ever to circle the Globe



Sailing westward in November on her second cruise around the world, this superb liner will visit 14 countries, arriving in each at the season best suited for travel there.

Westward—following the trail of warmth and sunshine around the whole world. This makes possible a stopover in Europe for the spring and early summer.

Journeys ashore under the skilled guidance of the American Express reveal the little-known charms of every country visited.

132 Days — 60 Cities — 14 Countries

132 days to browse through sixty fascinating cities—to explore the mysteries of Egypt—to wander through Japan and China and the Riviera—to see new places—meet new people—find a new world.

Sail to these Fascinating Places—In their Most Interesting Seasons:

Havana, Balboa, Panama, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Hilo, Honolulu, Yokohama, Tokyo, Nikko, Kamakura, Kobe, Nara, Kyoto, The Inland Sea, Shanghai, Hongkong, Macao, Manila, Batavia, Singapore, Diamond Harbor, Calcutta, Colombo, Bombay, Port Sudan, Port Tewfik, Cairo, Alexandria, Naples, Monaco, Gibraltar.

The Belgenland is an ideal home for persons of cultivated tastes. She is a ship of sparkling personality — Continental in cuisine and service and in that indefinable thing called atmosphere. She has all the modern facilities for sports and relaxations of the great transatlantic liners. Her pleasing spaciousness is accentuated by restricting the passenger list.

The Red Star Line and the American Express Company—each completely experienced in the art of travel—have joined forces to make the Belgenland's trip round the world a supreme travel achievement.

Scott Fitzgerald and His Work

By H. L. Mencken.

SCOTT FITZGERALD'S new novel, "The Great Gatsby," is in form no more than a glorified anecdote, and not too probable at that. The scene is the Long island that hangs precariously on the edges of the New York City ash dump—the Long island of gaudy villas and bawdy house parties. The theme is the old one of a romantic and preposterous love—the ancient fidelis ad urnam motif reduced to a macabre humor. The principal personage is a bounder typical of those parts—a fellow who seems to know every one and yet remains unknown to all—a young man with a great deal of mysterious money, the tastes of a movie actor and, under it all, the simple sentimentality of a somewhat sclerotic fat woman.

F. SCOTT FITZGERALD emerges as a stylist in "The Great Gatsby."

This clown Fitzgerald rushes to his death in nine short chapters. The other performers in the Totentanz are of a like, or even worse, quality. One of them is a rich man who carries on a grotesque intrigue with the wife of a garage keeper. Another is a woman golfer who wins championships by cheating. A third, a sort of chorus to the tragic farce, is a bond salesman—symbol of the New America! Fitzgerald clears them all off at last by a triple butchery. The garage keeper's wife, rushing out upon the road to escape her husband's third degree, is run down and killed by the wife of her lover. The garage keeper, misled by the lover, kills the lover of the lover's wife—the Great Gatsby himself. Another bullet, and the garage keeper is also reduced to offal. Choragus fades away. The crooked lady golfer departs. The lover of the garage keeper's wife goes back to his own consort. The immense house of the Great Gatsby stands idle, its bedrooms given over to the bat and the owl, its cocktail shakers dry. The curtain lurches down.

Profiting by Criticism.

This story is obviously unimportant and, though, as I shall show, it has its place in the Fitzgerald canon, it is certainly not to be put on the same shelf with, say, "This Side of Paradise." What ails it, fundamentally, is the plain fact that it is simply a story—that Fitzgerald seems to be far more interested in maintaining its suspense than in getting under the skins of its people. It is not that they are false: it is that they are taken too much for granted. Only Gatsby himself genuinely lives and breathes. The rest are mere marionettes—often astonishingly lifelike, but nevertheless not quite alive.

What gives the story distinction is something quite different from the management of the action or the handling of the characters; it is the charm and beauty of the writing. In Fitzgerald's first days it seemed almost unimaginable that he would ever show such qualities. His writing, then, was extraordinarily slipshod—at times almost illiterate. He seemed to be devoid of any feeling for the color and savor of words. He could see people clearly and he could devise capital situations, but as writer qua writer he was apparently little more than a bright college boy. The critics of the Re-

GOOD Morning!

Fifteen good pictures in a month of thirty days is doing pretty well, don't you think? And there were others that weren't so bad, either.

"NEW TOYS" was Richard Barthelmess' new film. It was the simplest kind of comedy drama—in no way as notable as some of his other pictures—"Classmates," for instance—but he and his wife, Mary Hay, impersonated pleasingly a pair of newlyweds. The story was of the Little Things that ruffled the domestic waters of the Will and Mary who were the hero and heroine, and Dick and Mary made quite an honest chronicle of the material.

"A KISS IN THE DARK" was from the play, "Aren't We All?" and presented Adolphe Menjou as a fascinating, soft hearted, susceptible son of the boulevards—a perfect craze with the ladies. Aileen Pringle was the attractive one woman in his life and Lillian Rich had the rôle of the principal siren. Quite a clever little piece of movie work—intelligently acted.

"ROMOLA" presented Lillian Gish in the screen adaptation of George Eliot's novel. This was a lovely picture. It was photographed in and about Florence, Italy, and the sets and costumes were something not to forget. Miss Gish's heroine was a creature of infinite charm. The supporting cast, including Dorothy Gish, was a fine one.

* *

"THE CHARMER"—Pola Negri—charming! Nothing especially original about the story, but it was buoyantly acted by all concerned, and so "The Charmer" turned out to be quite sparkling entertainment.

"CHEAPER TO MARRY"—a clever cast answered—"YES!"

"UP THE LADDER" brought Virginia Valli out in one of those stories where the husband, when he attains success, turns from a faithful wife who helped him up the ladder and flutters about with flossy false alarms. Miss Valli as the wife learns a lesson and teaches her erring spouse one. Old stuff, perhaps—but well done.

"SEVEN CHANCES" was Buster Keaton's new "funny." As usual, the comedian maintained his gloomy exterior, and

Music Week Asks Your Attention

By Edward Moore.

CHICAGO'S music week unfolds itself today, and will continue through next Sunday. Apparently a somewhat lively eight days is being contemplated. One hears of its being sponsored by the Chicago Federation of Women's Organizations and indorsed by Vice President Dawes and Mayor Dever, its two honorary chairmen.

CHARLES MARSHALL, Chicago opera tenor, singing at Orchestra hall this afternoon.

Mrs. Ora Lightner Frost, the general chairman, sends word that the slogan will be "Give more thought to music," and that with this in mind the affiliated clubs of the federation will take daily programs into institutions, community centers, hospitals, and clubs. There is promise of coöperation from churches, schools, theaters, and radio stations.

A few definite plans are announced. The Friends of the Aged, one of the federated clubs, will convey groups of old people from various institutions to Kimball hall next Friday noon, where they will be given a concert. Special programs are being arranged for next Sunday, May 10, which will be Mothers' day. Prizes amounting to $50 will be awarded to Chicago boys and girls between the ages of twelve and eighteen for the best essay on "What Music Means to Our City." The winner, it is said, will broadcast his essay, and Mrs. Frost, who lives at 1040 Lake Shore drive, will give further information.

Breakfast and a Revue.

One of the outstanding items is a breakfast, to be followed by an "artists' revue," at the Hotel Morrison tomorrow noon. Its purpose is to bring to the attention of the federated clubs American musicians who are considered worthy and are available for engagements. The program will be given by Elizabeth Stokes, Stella Wrenn, Ebba Fredericksen, Edith Frost, Annette Baumer, Kathleen Morris, Frederick Wood, Joel Lay, and Harold Morris.

Out of the mass of not always clearly detailed prospects one point would seem to be fairly definite. The idea of this music week apparently turns to the hearers of music rather than its makers. It is a by no means unimportant detail, for the makers of music are increasing considerably faster than the audiences before whom they may appear.

Managers of musical attractions report that the process of booking their attractions lies through fields that can hardly be called rosy. Directors of music schools are giving much thought to the problem of what outlet can be found for their graduates, and without reaching any satisfactory solution. Artists, particularly young artists, are finding it increasingly difficult and expensive to get started on a concert career.

About as many cures are offered as there are angles to the problem. The chauvinists would like to bar foreigners. The local managers would rejoice if the foreigners would accept smaller fees. Nearly all of them would abolish the radio. The radio managers maintain that broadcasting gives an artist advertising such as he can get in no other way. And so it goes.

HERE'S COMEDY WITH AND BY THE NUGENTS

By Burns Mantle

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Nugents, from vaudeville, have made another late season start with a comedy that, given a fair break, might easily do as well as their "Kempy" did two or three years back.

This one is called "The Poor Nut," and is as spirited and interesting for two of its three acts as was George Ade's "College Widow," which it slightly resembles.

Here the hero is a track athlete at Ohio State in place of a football player, but one who has quit athletics because he suffers from a most troublesome inferiority complex. He is convinced, the poor nut, that he is no good and never will be—just because once at a Psi Sigma dinner he spilled noodle soup on his vest and everybody laughed at him.

But along comes a bright young psychologist from Wisconsin the day before the Wisconsin-Ohio State meet, and tries her Freud on him. They have been corresponding ever since she won a beauty contest, and he cut her picture as Miss Wisconsin out of the newspapers.

In these letters he has given his suppressed ego an outing. He has told her that not only is he a conquering hero on the cinder path, but he has let her believe he is considerable stepper as well. And then she comes and finds him just nothing at all but a goggle-eyed young botanist, who still harbors the old-fashioned notion that a college is an institution of learning.

Whether He Will or No

Immediately she decides he must be analyzed. His libido must be turned outward. He must change himself into a man, prove himself the hero he burns to be—and then, as a reward, she will marry him. The fact that he has not the slightest desire either to make any change in his libido, whatever that may be, or to marry her makes no difference.

"You're not afraid of sex, are you?" she demands.

"Not in the classroom," he replies, "but in private it sounds so kinda public."

The peppy little analyst takes charge of him however; steams him into winning the relay, gets him [illegible] to his favorite fraternity and then, for one reason [illegible] another, turns him over to the girl who is perfectly willing the poor nut shall be a professor if he wants to.

It is a healthy, human, humorous, simple little play, touched with hokum here and there, but never to its disadvantage as entertainment. J. C. Nugent helped Son Elliott write it, but it probably is mostly the boy's. Elliott plays his own hero with a nice feeling for the character, and Florence Shirley and Norma Lee are the girls.

Courage of New Producers.

Whether they hit it or not, I admire the courage of these new producers. And their confidence in their own judgment. Sophie Treadwell is another who recently has made the ven-

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

AT a play not doing so well, I sat the other night in the row directly behind six persons who entered in pairs. Two had bought their seats at the box-office for $5.50—$2.50 apiece and war-tax; two had bought theirs from a broker for $7.70; and two used a cut-rate card which called for seats at half-price, or $2.50 for the pair. The six seats were in a row: the two on the aisle, which most theater-goers regard as preferred, fell to the buyers at the box-office. . . . It might be absurd to say that the circumstance was a chance illustration of why the public is not going to the theater in Chicago: from all I am told, the public isn't going to the theater in New-York or anywhere else save as it is bent on seeing this or that particular play. But I know of no other business wherein the same article is retailed at any one of three prices. That the play happened to be a bad one does not enter into consideration of the matter: some of the season's best plays have not prospered in Chicago. . . .

FRANK MONROE He's again a detective: this time, a comic one in "Going Crooked."

You may, in considering the figures, have made a calculation in passing that the management at least evened things up in that the premium on the tickets sold through the broker offset the discount on the tickets sold through the two-for-one slip. That was not the case. The play, not being in demand, was not of interest to the brokers; and the management was so happy to have seats sold through any channel that it waived its claim on a percentage of the premium. . . . The managers with successes say that the flood of half-price tickets let loose when Easter-week failed to bring a general revival of theater-going has washed away the normal, to-be-counted-on attendance in the balconies.

Vicissitude.

Mr. Benchley, who writes about the drama for Life, wrote this as part of his memorandum on the Theater Guild's revival in New-York of "Cæsar and Cleopatra":

> . . . Here, however, our enjoyment of Shaw's dirty cracks at his countrymen is again hampered by the excessive enjoyment of the same lines by those in the audience who are anxious to be counted among the wise ones who know what's Shaw.

Having resided for some years in New-York and gone much to the theater while there, I think I know just how Mr. Benchley feels. Nothing else so irritates a drama-critic as to sit at a première with an audience capable of understanding what's going on. The offensiveness of such a gathering is multiplied when the first-night marks revival of a play celebrated for witty and pungent speeches, as is "Cæsar and Cleopatra." The critic, as a rule, takes the trouble to read up on the play just before going, and it is disillusionizing, if not actually degrading, to discover that some preposterous literates among the laity have done just ture. So is an experienced newspaper woman and short story writer; the wife of W. O. McGeehan of the Herald-Tribune, too, incidentally. A year ago she wrote a drama called "Gringo," a sort of second "Bad Man." It proved to be one of those success d'estime things that pay dividends in kind words only.

Here's Comedy With and By the Nugents

By Burns Mantle

This year she had another ready, a comedy which is now called "O, Nightingale," and which came in with the Easter rush. This one was peddled up and down and round about, and no manager wanted to buy it. So Miss Treadwell decided to produce it herself, with the help of Mary Kirkpatrick, who is in the play brokerage business, saving one salary by assigning one short part to Miss Treadwell herself.

Together they put in their own capital and arranged for as much more as they would need, hired a troupe, bought a production, leased a theater, and presented their play.

The week they came in the competition was terrific, and they were buried, but they went smiling through. This week they are moving down from the 49th street theater to the Astor, in Times square, which indicates that the little play is showing life.

It's Good Comedy.

"O, Nightingale," a comedy, is wisely and wittingly written on the familiar theme of the girl from the country who tries to make her way on the Broadway stage, with nothing to sell but a little knowledge of Shakespeare and a boundless enthusiasm.

Innocent she is, and ignorant. Coming from Kansas, she still is as trustful as though she had never seen a moving picture nor read a snappy story. The world is good, says she, and if it is not it should be. And so is Broadway.

When another girl tells her she can't possibly hope to get along on her own without a man's help and influence, she does not flout the idea. She goes in search of a man.

She finds him in the person of a somewhat doddering old Frenchman, one who has sold his title to a modern American club woman and has a great deal of spare time on his hands.

He is perfectly willing to buy her clothes, lend her money, and arrange for a dinner at which she is to meet a prominent play producer, mostly because he admires her spirit, and just a little because he thinks the back of her neck is pair-fait-lee chairm-eeng.

At the dinner little Loney (her name is Appolonia Lee) makes the discovery that New York managers call everybody sweetheart and that they are not interested in Shakespeare; also that capitalizing the back of one's neck afterwards leads to complications, and finally that the young sculptor in whose studio she has been taking dancing lessons is really the sort of young man a girl should lean upon.

"O Nightingale" really isn't half so trite as that sounds. Its dialogue is witty and its philosophy wise, and the slaps its experienced author takes at the Broadway of fact and legend through the persons of the theatrical manager and his large, blonde wife are alarming true to subject.

Martha Bryan Allen, one of the most promising of stage youngsters, plays the heroine, instead of Helen Hayes who tried it on the road. It is a little overplayed, but there is skill and a nice sense of character in the performance, too. Ernest Lawford, who really is about as menacing as a blue bottle fly, plays the wicked Frenchman much better than you who know him would suspect, and Lyonel Watts is the sculptor.

Think of the Shoe Clerk.

The humble shoe clerk comes into his own, temporarily at least, in a new piece called "The Fourflusher." And heaven knows he has waited long enough. The equally lowly ribbon clerk has been permitted to be heroic on occasion, and many samples of bluffed and beaten men have been dramatized, but, so far as I can recall, Raymond Hitchcock is the only shoe clerk who ever has figured in the drama, and he quit the business to become a comedian.

I don't suppose anything exciting ever does happen to a shoe clerk. He is pretty much buffeted around, and usually appears docile and subdued. In this play the hero is just such an inoffensive youth, working in a small town and hoping one day to be manager of the store, but along comes the proprietor's son and gets the job. Son, of course, is college spoiled and hopeless.

That day, however, the hero's uncle comes to town. He is a large, noisy, crabbed, rich individual, threatened periodically with heart attacks. And the town gets the idea that this shoe clerk nephew is likely to be a wealthy man soon because he is the hypochondriac one's only heir.

On such a flimsy promise they extend the boy unlimited credit, and he acquires everything from an automobile to a top hat. He also barely misses acquiring the town heiress, but his uncle's refusal to die and the exposure of his real poverty send him back to the store and the torn alpaca, and there he realizes it is really the cashier he has always loved. After which they buy him the business, and all is as audiences like to have it.

I never quite forgive the lordly experts of the drama for thumbing their noses at this sort of thing. There is a definite public for it. Think of all the shoe clerks, for instance. And how sadly in need these hokum—dreams they are. Russell Mack, previously devoted to musical comedy, is the hero of this one; Louise Allen and Sue MacManamy play opposite him. Caesar Dunn wrote it.

Lambs at Play.

The Lambs gamboled their annual gambol at the Metropolitan opera house Sunday, collecting therefrom something like $42,000 and the usual wild applause. They had all the big boys there, including Will Rogers and Jack Pershing, Will introducing Jack and the general making the expected complimentary remarks.

They had Gloria Swanson, too, but she was only on the screen. From there her voice was reproduced mechanically in conversation with Thomas Meighan, and the boys and their ladies cheered her.

There were the usual big dancing numbers—one showing the evolution of the "Dancing Fools" from the Stone to the Ivory age, illustrated by such popular steppers as Leon Erroll, Carl Randall, Eddie Foy, Harry Morton, Pat Rooney, and Fred Astaire.

And a view of William S. Hart, Lionel Barrymore, Dick Barthelmess, Richard Dix, and Meighan as they acted with their camera manners on before the camera. They were filmed in a dramatic skit.

There was a scene from "Julius Caesar" with a million mob, which always gives the celebrities a chance to wear togas and shout and look impressive on the program. But the most important act of the evening was the collecting of the $42,000.

Words and Music.

The Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan have never been so generously revived as they are being this spring. The Shuberts have "The Mikado" at the 44th street theater, and across the street Lawrence Anhalt is offering "Princess Ida." Neither is a riot, but both are doing business, and the promise is that each production will be followed by others, the Shuberts doing "Ruddigore" and Anhalt "Iolanthe."

"Princess Ida" is new to this generation. As it is now revealed, with Tessa Kosta singing the titular rôle, it has a gorgeous score but not a great deal of comedy. What it has is rather dainty and nice, relating the adventure of the three young men who stormed the castle adamant and to emancipated ladies, winning them over to the usual duets, madrigals, etc.

A gentle burlesque and clever, but never hilarious and a little delicately drawn. Everybody, however, is enthused about the music. Bertram Peacock, Virginia O'Brien, Scott Welch, and Robinson Newbold are in the cast.

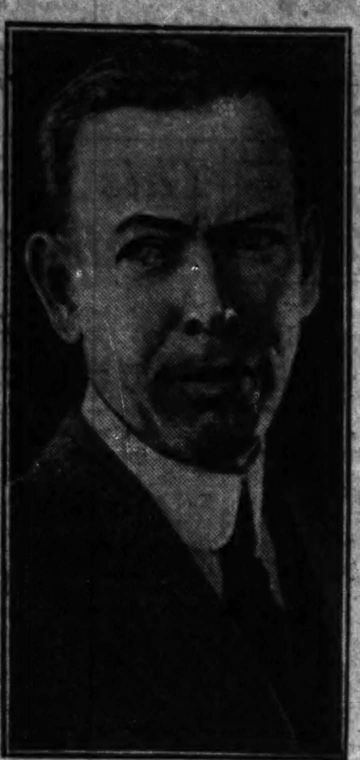
WRITES AND ACTS



FRANK CRAVEN

He hasn't played in Chicago since, late in 1922, he was in the Woods as the star of "The First Year." Mr. Craven has been an active and a well-liked figure in the theaters since, back in 1906-'07, he won attention as the chauffeur in "Man and Superman" with Robert Loraine. He was here for a personal hit in the short-lived piece named "Ticey," in 1908, and, later, for runs in "Bought and Paid For," "Too Many Cooks," "Seven Chances," and "Going Up!" . . . He returns tomorrow night in another play of his own writing, "New Brooms."

STAGE-NEWS

Miss Ruth Chatterton, whose season so far has been a good bit of a mess, is to try again this week in Washington with a comedy named "Women and Ladies," adapted by Cosmo Hamilton from a French work by Louis Verneuil. . . . Ralph Firbes, who is her husband, and Frederick Perry will be in it with her.

The idea of a stage-version of Rafael Sabatini's "The Carolinan" is something big and spectacular, like "The Whip" and other old-fashioned melodramas from London's Drury-Lane. . . . Sidney Blackmer, one of New-York's most persistent stars, is to be in it.

Al Jolson took part last Sunday night in the Lambs' public gambol in New-York, and then explained that he will not resume performing until August. . . . It is said that he is still good for at least a year in New-York with "Big Boy," when he gets back to it, although the run has twice been closed because of his throat-trouble.

The Dolly Sisters, who at least continue to dance well in unison, are going back to London to perform in one of the night-clubs. . . . The bulletin on them adds that they will return in the Autumn to perform in "a revue of their own."

Into every married woman's life there comes the disturbing conviction that she has lost those charms that once won her husband. And then Geraldy's fun, tinged with irony both sympathetic and Gallic, probes brilliantly and deftly into the foibles of husband and wife. In this field of delicious roguish comedy Miss George is always, a delight.

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

that thing, and are, therefore, prepared to laugh and applaud in the very places which the critic had marked as his own discovery. Moreover, episodes of the kind tend to cramp a critic's style, and to deny to him the privilege of again penning that fine old cliché: "Of course, the true flavor of the Shavian wit was lost on such a gathering as last night's." . . .

Mr. Gunn, the music-man of the Herald and Examiner, wrote an essay some time ago on when to applaud at opera; and something of the kind ought to be prepared for the safeguarding of the drama-critics when the plays of Shaw, W. S. Gilbert, and Oscar Wilde are exhumed. . . . One of the New-York play-reviewers has for some years served as a sort of cheer-leader at first-nights: the audience attentively watches him for reactions to the play and the acting, and behaves accordingly. At least, the critic, himself, has told me that that is so. Another of them wrote of a play shown there this season, "I laughed long and loudly"; and that admission, with his name, was carried for months as the display-line in the ads of the play. A few nights apart, some years ago a manager staged a farce and a mother-piece, and, after reading the reviews, proceeded to advertise the former as "the play that made Alan Dale laugh" and the mother-piece as "the play that made Alan Dale cry." . . .

There's really nothing in this drama thing more important than the emotional manifestations of an estimable play-reporters; and, as I have said, I think I know just how Mr. Benchley feels. His righteous resentment reminds me of two Drama League ladies who "Sssssshd!" Lady Gregory, Lennox Robinson, and me one night for laughing while the Irish Players were acting "The Workhouse Ward."

New in Manhattan.

The novelties of the week in New-York theaters are:

"Flesh," by Arthur J. Lamb, with Miss Madeline Davidson, Edwin J. Guhl, and William Balfour. . . . Mr. Lamb is the song-writer whose play named "The Amber Fluid" was among the uncalculated screams of last year in the Chicago theaters.

"The Loves of Lulu," an adaptation of Wedekind's "Erdgeist," with Miss Margot Kelly, John Davidson, Paul Doucet, and Edward Crandall.

Semi-novelties of the week there will be Ibsen's "Rosmersholm," postponed from last week, and Sheridan's "The Critic," to be staged in the Neighborhood Playhouse, a Ghetto enterprise which possesses more theater-sense than all the other "experimental" ventures in New-York.

Also, New-York is to have its third annual little-theater "tournament," consisting of the performance by amateur amateurs of three or four short plays a night from Monday until Friday, and the repetition Saturday afternoon and night of "the four plays deemed most worthy." The players regarded as giving the best performance of the four will get a cup from Mr. Belasco—who, I recall, is on record as saying that little-theatres are absurd and useless things, and an impertinence.

Five plays were taken out of New-York last night; but three of them classified as successes—"Silence," which was such a flivver in Chicago; Miss Elsie Janis' revue, "Puzzles of 1925"; and the revival by the Actors' Theater of "Candida." The two others were "Starlight," in which Miss Doris Keane has been seeking to prove that she is versatile and protean and all that sort of thing, and "The Witch-Doctor," which was the play formerly named "Cape Smoke." . . . A reason for closing Miss Janis' revue is that she is having trouble with her voice. She is going back to Paris for a time, and is said to have an offer of $2,000 a week to perform there. It is understood that her pay in the two-a-day in this country is $3,000.

Miscellany.

George S. Kaufman, in this morning's New-York Times, quotes a London newspaper as saying that Michael Arlen, in view of the box-office success of "The Green Hat" in Detroit and Chicago, "should rapidly become wealthy enough never to have to go to America again."

Miss Fannie Brice, it is said, is to pass to Mr. Belasco's management a year from now, and to perform for him in Something Higher. . . . There have been depressing indications in her two-a-day appearances that he thinks she's wasting her time in making us laugh.

And this week's issue of Variety states that the Misses Duncan, also, are to pass to Mr. Belasco, and that he is to stage a play written for them by Jack Lait. . . . I should say that, on a basis of its Chicago engagement, these young women should be able to earn a million dollars with "Topsy and Eva" in the next two years: that is, with competent management, which they do not appear to have had.

As to Miss Brice, it is told of her that she purchased a forty-nine-percent interest in "Is Zat So?" at a time when its projectors were pushed for cash, and that her doing so made possible the production of the piece. However, another tale is that she didn't hold on to all she bought, and sold part of it to the Messrs. Shubert. . . . It is said that she is an important backer of "The Brown Derby," a song-piece being made ready for the starring of Bert Wheeler, the chap who was so messy with a sandwich in the Ziegfeld Follies shown some months ago in the Illinois.

George M. Cohan is again reported as all but ready to resume activity as a producer and as a player; and the account goes on to say that he has written something named "So, This Is New-York!" and will appear in it with Bobby Watson, who was rather good as the raisonneur in the amusing piece called "The Rise of Rosie O'Riley." . . . Meanwhile, there is renewed expectancy that Mr. Cohan will soon give the signal for work to be started on the refashioning of his Chicago theater. He has been averse to undertaking so costly a chore on the basis of a lease with but eighteen years to run; and it is thought that the Hamlin estate will extend the period in view of the investment he would be called upon to make.

"The Enemy," a new play by Channing Pollock, is to be tried out next month, and then put away until the Autumn, when it will be shown in New-York. It is added that is to be staged in London in September. . . . Pollock's "The Fool," a profitable appeal to the occasional theater-goers of the land, has been sold to the movies; and it is averred that $150,000 is the price paid for the right to screen.

"One must give one's best to England; but England is a marvelous place in which to act," the Associated Press reports John Barrymore as saying on his departure from London for New-York and Hollywood. . . . And twitter of the kind makes me slightly but definitely ill!

"Blood" is the natty name of a new play by Harry Sturgis. . . . Miss Mary Hay and her dance-partner, Clifton Webb, are to take their talents to London.

Now that Miss Lenore Ulric is said to have parted forever from Mr. Belasco, expectation is that she will soon return to his management. . . . And that, I should say, would be the best of all the things she might do; not merely because he made her what she is today, but because more than any other manager he is likely to keep her that way till tomorrow and the day after. He has really made as good a job of her as he made early in the century with David Warfield.

Godfrey Tearle, who was in New-York for a few sad weeks in "The Fake" this season, is to try acting Hamlet in London.

"Spring Fever" is the name of another piece by Vincent Lawrence, who wrote "Two Fellows and a Girl," "In Love with Love," and "Kelly's Vacation."

BACK IN THE TWO-A-DAY

MISS INA CLAIRE

SHE is the week's bill-topper in the Palace, wherein some seasons before she went legitimate she gave the imitations on which her early popularity was based. Miss Claire is a favorite with Chicago audiences, whose fancy she took in 1910 in "Jumping Jupiter." She has since been here in "The Quaker Girl," as the diva of the Ziegfeld Follies, in "Polly with a Past," "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," "The Awful Truth," and "Grounds for Divorce," but not in the piece in which she was most successful in New-York, "The Gold-Diggers." . . . Her conveyance in the Palace is "Right You Are," by Townsman Gene Markey, who has long been high in the list of Miss Claire's resident adulants.

Scott Fitzgerald and His Work

By H. L. Mencken.

public were not slow to discern the fact. They praised "This Side of Paradise" as a story, as a social document, but they were almost unanimous in denouncing it as a piece of writing.

It is vastly to Fitzgerald's credit that he appears to have taken their caveats seriously, and pondered them to good effect. In "The Great Gatsby" the highly agreeable fruits of that pondering are visible. The story, for all its basic triviality, has a fine texture, a careful and brilliant finish. The obvious phrase is simply not in it. The sentences roll along smoothly, sparklingly, variously. There is evidence in every line of hard and intelligent effort. It is a quite new Fitzgerald who emerges from this little book, and the qualities that he shows are dignified and solid. "This Side of Paradise," after all, might have been merely a lucky accident. But "The Great Gatsby," a far inferior story at bottom, is plainly the product of a sound and stable talent, conjured into being by hard work.

Reversing the Order.

I make much of this improvement because it is of an order not often witnessed in American writers, and seldom, indeed, in those who start off with a popular success. The usual progression, indeed, is in the opposite direction. Every year first books of great promise are published—and every year a great deal of stale drivel is printed by the promising authors of year before last. The rewards of literary success in this country are so vast that, when they come early, they are not unnaturally somewhat demoralizing. The average author yields to them readily. Having struck the bull's-eye once, he is too proud to learn new tricks. Above all, he is too proud to tackle hard work. The result is a gradual degeneration of whatever talent he had at the beginning. He begins to imitate himself. He peters out.

There is certainly no sign of petering out in Fitzgerald. After his first experimenting he plainly sat himself down calmly to consider his deficiencies. They were many and serious. He was, first of all, too facile. He could write entertainingly without giving thought to form and organization. He was, secondly, somewhat amateurish. The materials and methods of his craft, I venture, rather puzzled him. He used them ineptly. His books showed brilliancy in conception, but they were crude and even ignorant in detail. They suggested, only too often, the improvisations of a pianist playing furiously by ear, but unable to read notes.

These are the defects that he has now got rid of. "The Great Gatsby," I seem to recall, was announced a long while ago. It was probably several years on the stocks. It shows, on every page, the results of that laborious effort. Writing it, I take it, was painful. The author wrote, tore up, rewrote, tore up again. There are pages so artfully contrived that one can no more imagine improvising them than one can imagine improvising a fugue. They are full of little delicacies, charming turns of phrase, penetrating second thoughts. In other words, they are easy and excellent reading—which is what always comes out of hard writing.

Pen of Accuracy.

Thus Fitzgerald, the stylist, arises to challenge Fitzgerald, the social historian, but I doubt that the latter ever quite succumbs to the former. The thing that chiefly interests the basic Fitzgerald is still the florid show of modern American life—and especially the devil's dance that goes on at the top. He is unconcerned about the sweatings and sufferings of the nether herd; what engrosses him is the high carnival of those who have too much money to spend, and too much time for the spending of it. Their idiotic pursuit of sensation, their almost incredible stupidity and triviality, their glittering swinishness—these are the things that go into his notebook.

In "The Great Gatsby," though he does not go below the surface, he depicts this rattle and hullabaloo with great gusto and, I believe, with sharp accuracy. The Long Island he sets before us is no fanciful Alsatia; it actually exists. More, it is worth any social historian's study, for its influence upon the rest of the country is immense and profound. What is vogue among the profiteers of Manhattan and their harlots today is imitated by the flappers of the Bible Belt country clubs weeks after next. The whole tone of American society, once so highly formalized and so suspicious of change, is now taken largely from frail ladies who were slinging hash a year ago.

Fitzgerald showed the end products of the new dispensation in "This Side of Paradise." In "The Beautiful and the Damned" he cut a bit lower. In "The Great Gatsby" he comes near the bottom. Social leader and jailbird, grand lady and kept woman, are here almost indistinguishable. We are in an atmosphere grown increasingly levantine. The Paris of the Second Empire pales to a sort of snobbish chautauqua; the New York of Ward McAllister becomes the scene of a convention of Gold Star Mothers. To find a parallel for the grossness and debauchery that now reign in New York one must go back to the Constantinople of Basil I.

New Playbills

OPENING TOMORROW NIGHT:

Frank Craven in "New Brooms" in the Blackstone.—The author-actor of "Too Many Cooks" and "The First Year" in a comedy staged by him last Summer in Milwaukee, as "Fool's Hill," and since acted in New-York. . . . SUNDAY, MAY 17:

"Just Married" in the Central.—The farce shown three years ago through a run in the La Salle in revival. . . . The management has not as yet made known the players.

Quick, Sure Relief for Tortured Feet!
New Orthopedic Invention Corrects the Cause—Brings Joy To Thousands of Sufferers
Ten Days Trial to Prove it

Orthopedic Science has at last discovered the underlying cause of the long train of "Foot Ailments" from which uncounted millions of people suffer and has evolved the "Nature-Tread" Method of correction which brings feet back to normal.

Its success is attested by many thousands in every walk of life. Foremost orthopedic surgeons, physicians, athletic authorities and chiropodists endorse the "Nature-Tread" Method as physiologically and mechanically right.

Different from Anything You Have Ever Tried

"Nature-Treads" are different from anything you have ever tried. They are so designed as to distribute the weight of the body to the natural weight-bearing surface of the foot and Nature does the rest! Instead of encouraging wrong walking or standing habits, as do arch supports, braces, elastic bands and similar clumsy devices, "Nature-Treads" bring back the strength and grace of the foot and walking becomes a pleasure.

No matter what devices you may have tried or how bitter your disappointments, just remember that the principles featured in the "Nature-Tread" Method are entirely different because they correct the underlying cause of foot troubles.

Thousands of people are nervous and unhappy, unable to concentrate on their work and regarded as chronic "grouches" because their feet hurt. "Nature-Treads" will relieve them, mentally and physically, and help them on the road to happiness and success.

Nature-Treads
The Foot Appliance That "Makes You Want to Walk"

Normal Arch
Fallen Arch

"Nature-Treads" are worn in any pump, shoe or oxford. You just slip them in and walk off, with a new sense of freedom and comfort never known before. They are changeable from one pair of shoes to another—one pair is all you need. They keep shoes shapely and heels from running over. They are so light that you will not feel an ounce of added weight. "Nature-Treads" establish proper manner of walking and standing, and restore strength to weakened foot and leg muscles. They are endorsed by the foremost medical journals.

Arch Supports Wrong.
"Arch supports in the light of my experience would seem to be both physiologically and mechanically wrong." PERCY WILLARD ROBERTS, M. D., in the Journal of The Amer. Med. Association, July 24, 1920.

From Dr. W. A. Evans of Chicago Tribune.
"The principle of directing the body's weight to the outside and turning in of the toes is correct. You will find this very well stated in a recent issue of The Bulletin of the Massachusetts State Board of Health."

Discarded Arch Supports and Bunion Pads.
"I have discarded the arch supports and bunion pads that I used to wear, and am able to walk with comfort. NATURE-TREADS are the best foot appliance I have ever used." R. F. FERGUSON, 4745 Gilpin St., Denver, Colo.

We Are on the Right Track, Says Surgeon of U. S. Army.
"You [The Nature-Tread Co.] are on the right track." MAJ. EDW. A. RICH, M. D., Supervising Orthopedic Surgeon, U. S. Army.

So Pleased She Sends 4 or 5 Friends
"Have been suffering for a long time with pains in the ball of the foot and callouses. NATURE-TREADS gave me immediate relief. I am so enthusiastic about them that I have already sent in four or five of my friends, including my doctor."
MRS. WM. JUNIUM, 4224 N. Lowell St., Chicago.

Last Month's Best Films in Review

By Mae Tinee.

"LEARNING TO LOVE" was a new Constance Talmadge picture that, from what I hear, has been making quite a hit with the fans. The lady was cast as a frivolous bobby vamp put through a course of sprouts by a stern, unsusceptible, and ghastly handsome guardian—impersonated by Mr. Antonio Moreno. Fetching little comedy drama.

"MARRIAGE IN TRANSIT"—Edmund Lowe agilely playing two rôles in a mystery picture with a spicy dash of romance.

"BEAUTY AND THE BAD MAN," the fascinating story-bookish romance of a poor girl with "a voice like an angel" and a gambler with a heart of gold, who helped her become a prima donna. Mabel Ballin and Forrest Stanley were, respectively, the beauty and the bad man.

"THE DENIAL," a picture to make stern parents think. Claire Windsor was delightful in two rôles—a graceful, gracious, wistful, silvery haired mother and that mother's eager, wistful daughter. Good supporting cast she had, too.

"SALLY," with Colleen Moore, was just darling! The picture was an adaptation of the musical comedy with Marilyn Miller, and little Miss Moore sure did herself proud in the title rôle. She acted as if she enjoyed herself every minute. Her support was good and her direction was good. A little too long, "Sally," but you didn't mind.

* *

"ADVENTURE," from the story by Jack London, was interesting. Pauline Starke and Tom Moore, supported by a peach of a cast, gave this tale of love, adventure, and roguery in the South sea isles the best that was in them—and their best is good.

"MADAME SANS GENE," Gloria Swanson's new picture, photographed in France, was picturesque and beautifully acted. The marquise should be pleased with the reception it's getting.

* *

"THE CROWDED HOUR," from the play, shows Bebe Daniels responding effectively to the need for a serious and dramatic portrayal. I liked her much as Peggy the telephone girl. The picture was well put on.

See you tomorrow!

VOICE OF THE FAN.

What Is What.

Having read "Greed," I can fully understand, why you gave it such an awful criticism as you did. The movies are supposed to portray life as it is, people as they are. Your work is to see them all, and give voice to the public opinion.

But sad to say, the movies have strayed entirely away from reality and any resemblance of naturalness, and evidently carried you away with them completely. To such an extent, that when a picture, which is real, which is the unfrilled truth, once for a wonder, comes along, it naturally jolts you out of your rut, and jolts your sweet insides topsy-turvy, because you yourself have got entirely away from what the everyday world really is. Shakes you down from your clouds, so to say.

It never seems to tire you to see one make believe millionaire gang after another, each one in more garish and over decorated settings, than the previous one. The more improbable, unnatural, and stilted the situations are, all the more you praise them. You like sweet ingénues, dressed and painted to kill, with perfectly blank faces, which never change. Were it not for the subtitles, no one would know, what is going on in their china heads.

The movies, and for that reason, your inner vision also, are full of store window dummies who suddenly have acquired the power of motion. But how many of the great multitude outside are really so slack! Because the hero in "Greed," is not a patent-leather-haired lounge lizard, you condemn him, and the whole picture besides. You even pick on their manners in the story. Certainly they are reality. Ride in any street car here during the rush hours and you'll see manners far worse than that. What of it! It's true!

You also miss your eternal cut-and-dried happy ending, and that jolts you some more. You go into raptures over Griffith's pictures. Admitted there's some good acting occasionally, but "Greed" surpasses any of Griffith's pictures, because the slushy, mushy sentimentality, in which Griffith revels, is entirely eliminated in "Greed." That also didn't agree with you at all!

Come out from your made-in-a-mold ideas and don't condemn a thing just because it is above your horizon. Yours for more bills of real every day hard life like "Greed." C. B.

[Editor's note: Sorry we haven't space to print your entire letter; but I guess the readers will get your idea. Come again.]

Two in Accord.

Dear Miss Tinée: This is unusual—the writer not being a movie fan—but I am pleased to hasten to agree with you in regard to this man Raymond Griffith. I hope they don't star and spoil him. A few years ago our movie manager dealt us a series of Taylor Holmes—and we haven't had so much fun since—until we discovered this Canadian—lieutenant-looking chap, Griffith. He's good natured looking, and that helps a lot. Slip him the word that great gobs of folk too lazy to write and say so are tickled at his work, and wish him well. Yes ma'm. R. B. L.

[Editor's Note: Yes, SIR!]

Raising the Ideals.

Dear Miss Tinée: You asked once what sort of pictures we prefer. I hope it is not too late for me to state that I like best those pictures that deal with the history of our country, especially the building up of it. Our country has had such a dramatic history during the last three centuries—there is plenty of fine material for use on the screen.

Our scenery is so worthy of being photographed, too. Plenty of outdoor scenes, and the clean living that is found among nature lovers will help raise the ideals of our movie going public. MAGNOLIA.

Music Week Asks Your Attention

By Edward Moore.

Once, a few years ago, the young artist winners in the contest promoted by the National Federation of Music Clubs were booked across the country, supposedly to appear under the auspices of the clubs of the aforesaid federation. Their appearance in Chicago before an audience which, including newspaper representatives, numbered less than eighty has been a painful memory ever since, only to be introduced as a topic of conversation through due diplomacy and great caution.

There are two main troubles with the profession of making music, one for each side of the footlights. On this side not enough persons are convinced of the advantages of becoming members of the audience. That may probably be considered as an improving condition, though the improvement has always been and always will be slow. On the other side, too many are unwarrantably convinced that they have reason to appear. In other words, there are too many mediocre artists in the land.

Superlatives Seldom Needed.

One of the phenomena to be noticed by those who make a practice of observing musical events is how few definitely bad musical performances there are in the course of a season and, on the other hand, how few definitely outstandingly good ones there are. The vast majority are neither one nor the other, carefully wrought, well studied, done up to the limit of the performer's instruction and personal equation, but, for good or evil, unmoving.

My records show that in the last several years something like 1,200 recital givers have appeared in Chicago, some for a single performance and subsequent oblivion, some who have appeared a good many times. This does not include pupils' recitals, nor does it consider large organizations. The Chicago Opera company, for instance, has its own way of doing things—this is no time to make remarks about deficits. The Chicago Symphony orchestra and the Ravinia opera are remarkable companies which without the spur of competition constantly keep themselves on an artistic peak. There are a number of local organizations, mostly choral, which are more or less completely taken care of by their personal followings. But this applies solely to recital givers.

Out of the 1,200, perhaps 100 have displayed qualities of a sufficiently outstanding nature to make one anxious to hear them again. Perhaps one out of twelve of those who go into concert music are able to make a success of it, and not always such a great financial success at that. My records do not include box office statements, consequently some of the 100 are not of the opulent. Also some of those who attracted considerable numbers have not been classified among the artistic elect. However, the figures are offered for what they are worth.

This is one of the problems for music week and the other fifty-one weeks, for the promoters of a most worthy cause and for every one else who takes interest in the cause of music. This department, having learned caution with years, is not going to try to offer a solution.

Memoirs of a Famous Band Leader

John Philip Sousa usually employs the weeks of spring and early summer which are his vacation time to preparing for another band tour. This year he has added a bit to his ordinary activities by dictating his memoirs, which, it is said, are destined to appear serially in one of our best known weekly publications.

He has plenty of material and a number of phases to look back upon and reproduce in print—violinist, conductor for musical shows, leader of the Marine band and later of his own, composer of operettas, and, by no means the least important, composer of marches. Not so long ago an item of his history reached this desk, showing that on April 17 and 18, 1891, he made his first appearance in Chicago, giving three concerts with the Marine band at the Auditorium. Marie Decca, soprano, was the soloist.

The item speaks of the half hundred men on the stage in dress uniform of dark blue trousers, scarlet coats, and liberal embellishment of silk cord, epaulets, and gilt buckles. Mr. Sousa is spoken of as a stalwart and pleasant looking gentleman with a large sword hitched in true military fashion to his belt. The program is called so brilliant that few military bands would care to attempt it. "Most of them would probably be seriously discouraged by the opening number, the 'Rienzi' overture."

F. E. Roberts has been elected president of the Apollo Musical club. At the same meeting J. G. Olen was elected vice president and Florine Schlamp reëlected secretary. L. L. Edlund and S. P. Wild will continue on the board of directors.

IN RECITAL

MARION ROBERTS.
[Steffens Photo.]

A talented figure among the younger pianists of Chicago, Miss Roberts will give a recital at Kimball hall on Tuesday night. She is also a composer, as she will demonstrate in the course of her program.

Orchestral Test for High Schools

HIGH schools of Chicago and Cook county will be represented in an orchestral contest of their students at Orchestra hall on Saturday afternoon. They have been divided into two classes—those from schools of more than 2,000 pupils and those of a smaller number. Class A will play the "Triumphal March" from Grieg's "Sigurd Jorsalfar" suite, class B Tschaikowsky's "Thorn Rose" waltz. The finalists in class A will be Lake View, Lane Technical, J. Sterling Morton, and Englewood High schools. Class B will be represented by Hibbard and Waller and two county high schools not selected at the time this is written. Frederick Stock, Morgan L. Eastman, and Karleton Hackett will be the judges.

A request comes to this department to install a question box concerning music and artists. It has never been done because there were not enough questions, but such questions are always answered, if possible, somewhere in the column.

Leo Sowerby, says a note from Eric DeLamarter, is in a fair way to become the complete jazz hound. A recent trip east has been prolonged because he met Paul Whiteman, and "Paul seduced him into trailing with that gang as far as Boston." There are certain indications that one of his next moves will be to write another piece for the Whiteman orchestra. This, says Mr. DeLamarter, is an epochal fall from the holy state of sanctification, in whose mystic beatitudes live only those owning the sky scraper frontal bone.

The Danish music week, mentioned in this column a few weeks ago, has been recalled and will not be given at the time announced.

To raise the standard of church choral music, the Chicago Church federation is sponsoring a competitive choral festival at Orchestra hall on Monday evening, May 18, in which twelve Chicago choirs will participate under the direction of Rollin Pease. Among the churches already entered and training for the prize are the Hyde Park Presbyterian, Wicker Park Lutheran, Ebenezer Lutheran, Grace Presbyterian, Austin Baptist, Austin Boulevard Christian, Ravenswood Methodist Episcopal, Hiram Thomas Memorial Congregational, Jackson Boulevard Christian, and Mayfair Methodist Episcopal. The proceeds will be used to further the work of the council of religious education of the federation.

The Musical guild will present Hugh Porter in an organ recital at Kimball hall tomorrow night, an event which is indorsed by the American guild and National Association of Organists. Mr. Porter was for a number of years a Chicago organist, but is now on the faculty of the University of New York and the organist of Calvary Episcopal church of that city. He will play works by Widor, DeLamarter, Vierne, Bach, Karg Elert, and Boellman.

Leading clubs of Rogers Park will hold a community musical and sing at the Rogers Park Woman's club on Saturday night in observance of music week. The proceeds of the event will be turned over to the Civic Music association.

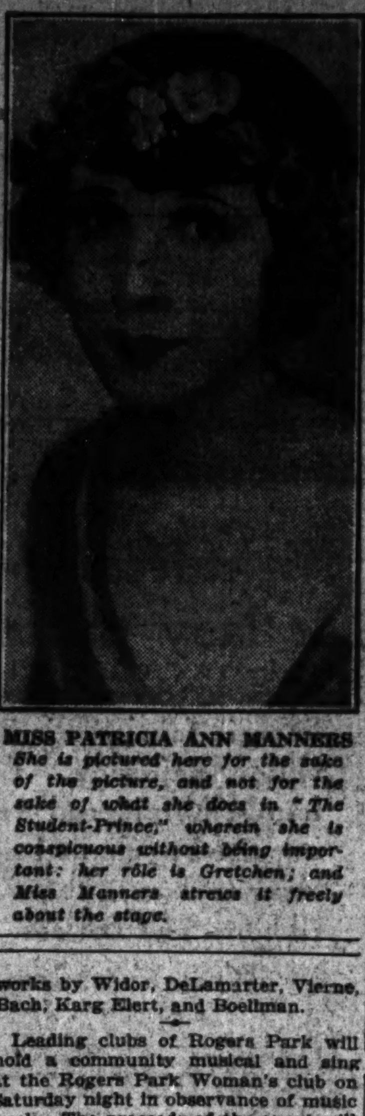
EXUBERANT



MISS PATRICIA ANN MANNERS

She is pictured here for the sake of the picture, and not for the sake of what she does in "The Student-Prince," wherein she is conspicuous without being important: her rôle is Gretchen; and Miss Manners strews it freely about the stage.

Vacation Show Opens Saturday

FROM the Bear Tooth national forest of Montana, from the Peter Pan country of the Black hills, and the hunting and fishing grounds of the north woods of Wisconsin; from other far mountain countries and the woods and little lakes of other nearby states, the outdoors is coming into the fourth annual Outdoor show, to be held in the Coliseum from May 9 to 17, inclusive. Everything that makes for a charming and satisfactory summer vacation will be exhibited at the show, which has come to be a recognized vacation mart.

Dude ranches in the western mountains will invite those who want to ride horseback and climb mountains. Trail riders will ride into the Coliseum every night, unload their pack horses, make camp, and serve a typical camp supper.

The Black hills of South Dakota will send exhibits to show that their scenery, their motor roads, and their picturesque pioneer history are bringing tourists into the country in such numbers that they promise greater profit even than the Homestake, the greatest gold mine in the world.

Many exhibits will come from the north woods of Wisconsin and northern Michigan, and from inland towns of the middle west.

Art Notes.

Miss Agnes Nixon, the modeling student who won the Bryan Lathrop scholarship prize of $800 last June in the students' exhibit at the Art institute, sailed yesterday from New York for six months' study and travel in Europe.

On the first of June the Art institute, which during the winter months has been closing at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, will resume the summer closing hour of 5:30 o'clock. This will be in force until the first of September.

The Sunday afternoon concerts by the Art institute ensemble, George Dasch, conductor, were brought to an end with the concert last Sunday afternoon in Fullerton hall. The concerts were inaugurated fifteen years ago. The next season will open in the fall.

Tomorrow afternoon in Fullerton hall, Dudley Crafts Watson will continue his lectures on home crafts, with a talk on "The Outdoor Living Room."

Elizabeth Keith, a charming English girl, has an exhibit of lovely block prints at a local gallery. The prints are in color and are well worth a visit. They deal fascinatingly with glimpses of life and country in Japan, Korea, China, and the Philippines.

Nadelman Exhibition

In the Arts club gallery at the Art institute, there opened on Friday an exhibit of sculpture by Elie Nadelman. Nadelman was born in Poland in 1882. An exquisite marble head of a woman, lent by Mrs. C. J. Blair, from his chisel, has long been one of the features of the Art institute's permanent collection of treasures. Another sculptor, Seraphin Soudbinine, has completed a splendid bust portrait of the late Senator Medill McCormick. This will be seen in the gallery of the Arts club where, also on Friday, there opened an exhibit of his work. The Soudbinine sculpture will remain on view until May 14 or 24.

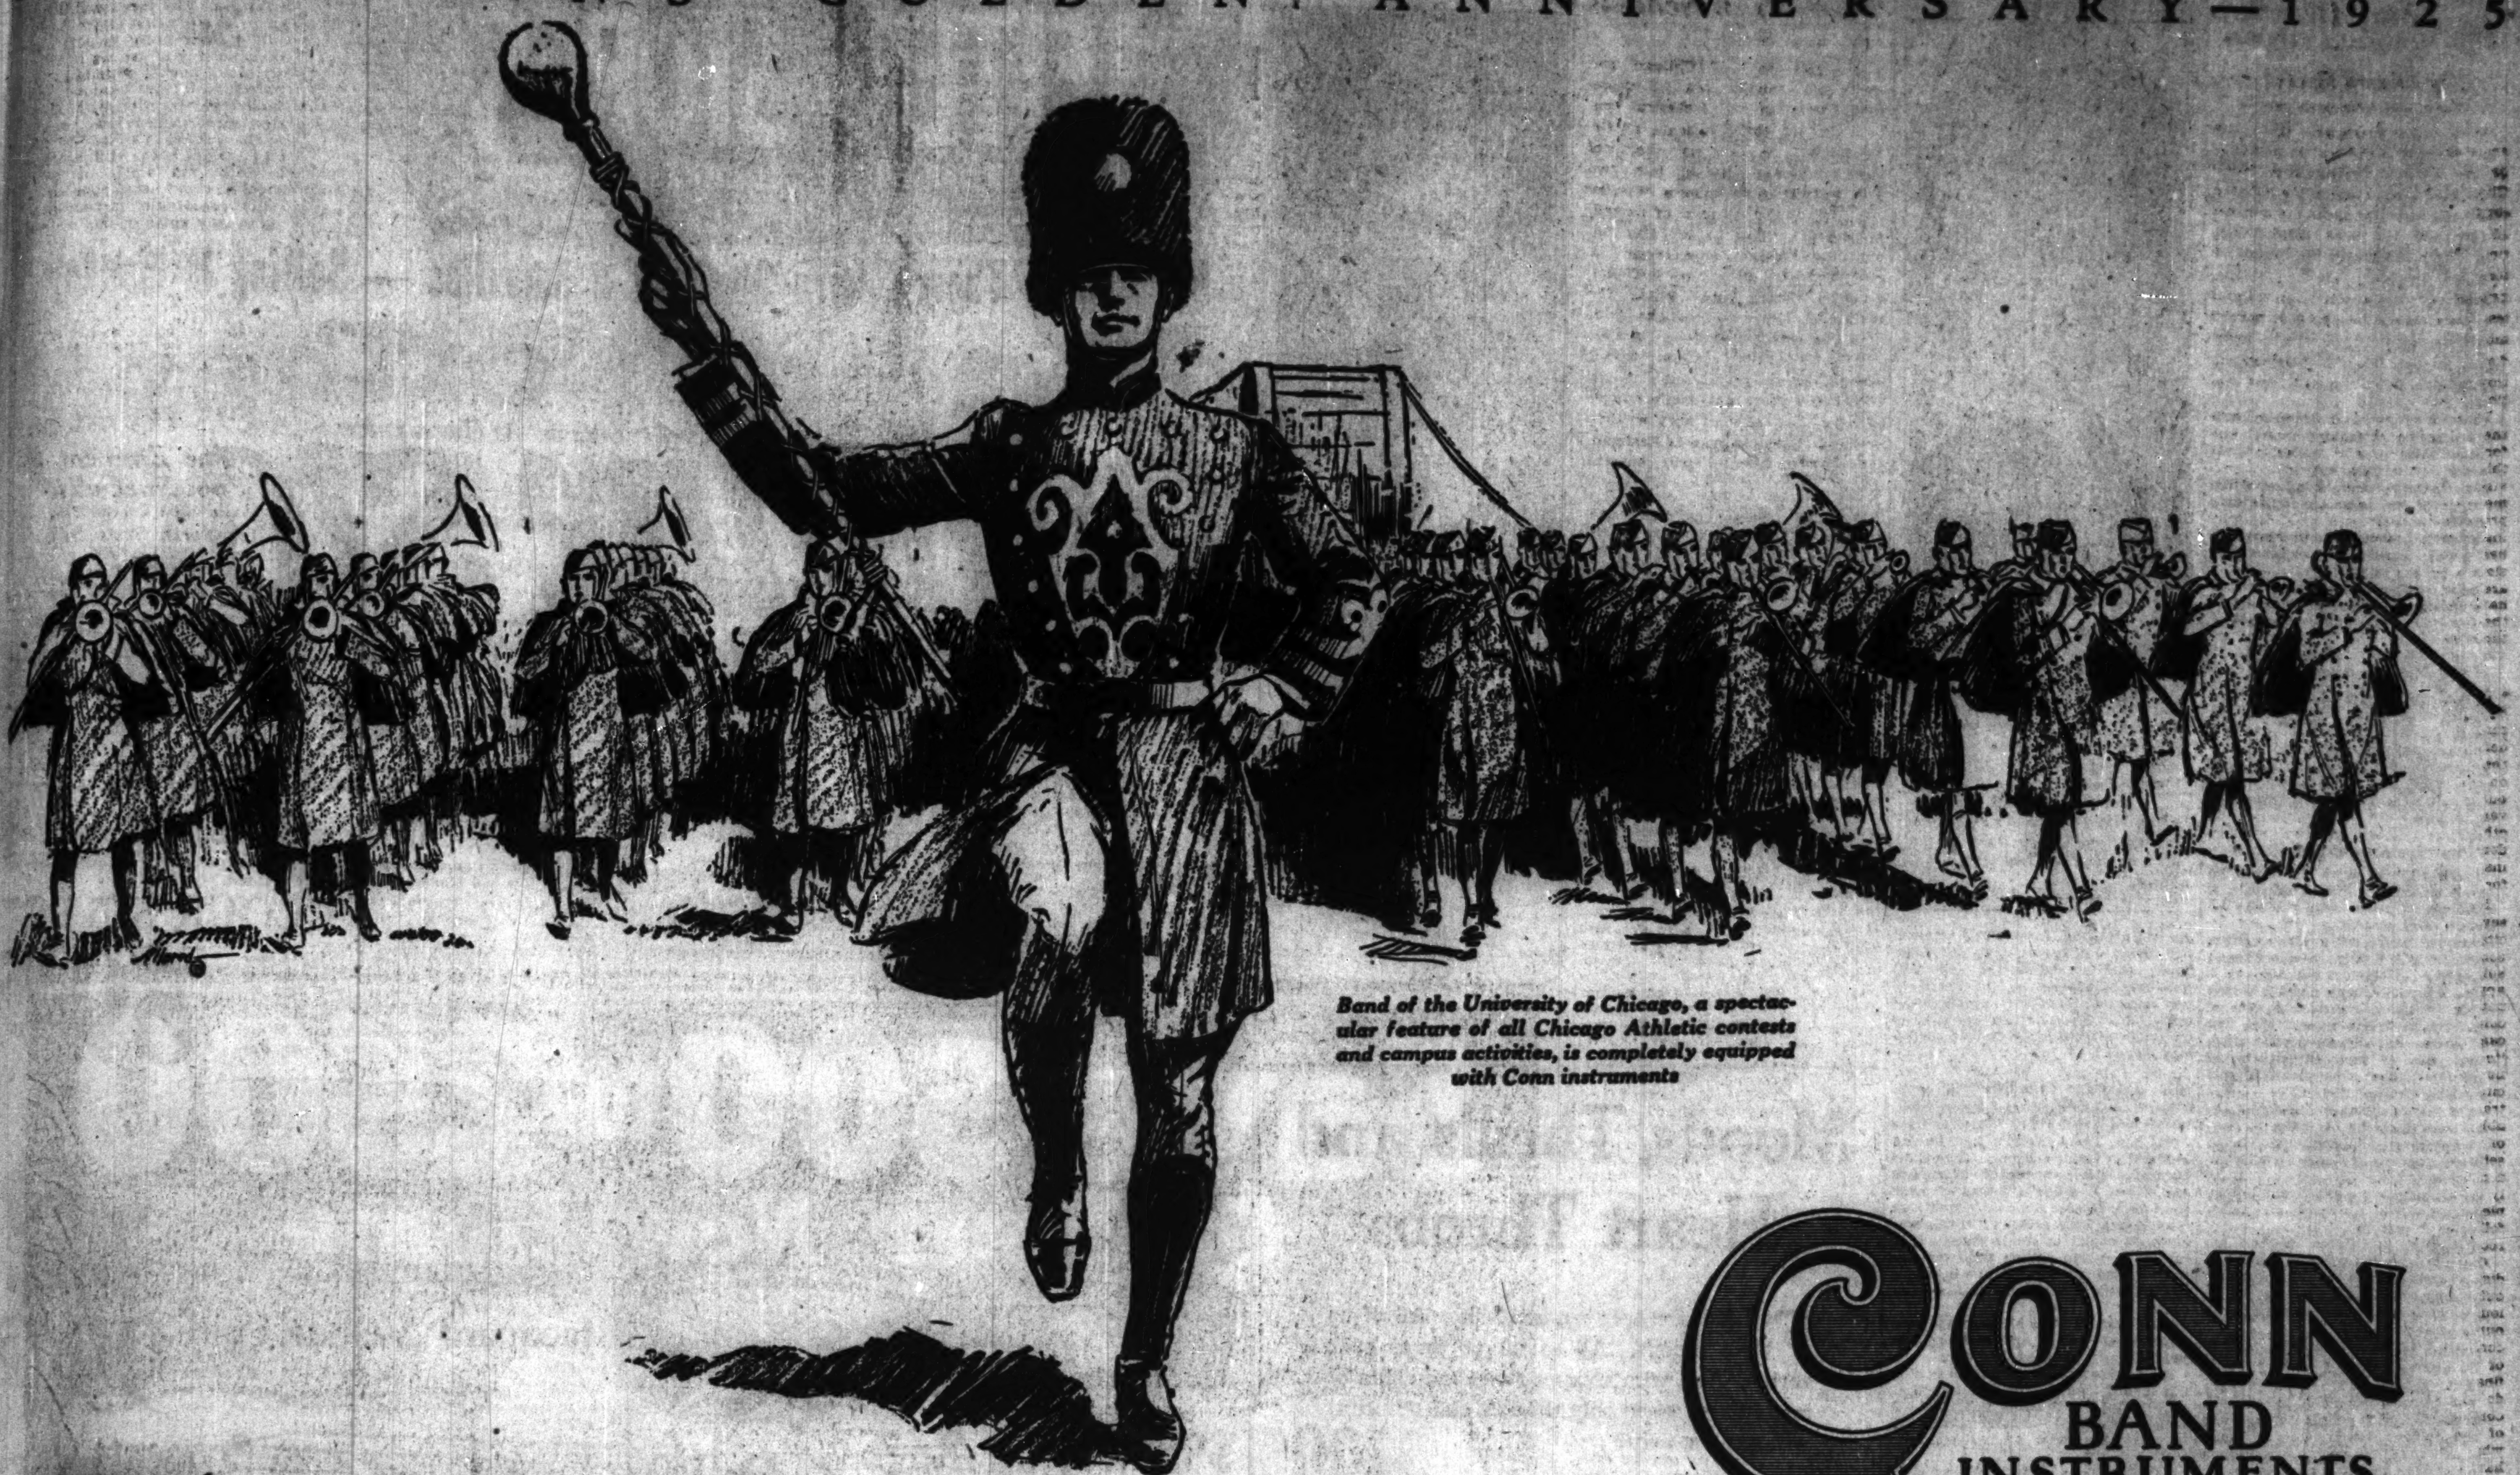
1875—CONN'S GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY—1925



Band of the University of Chicago, a spectacular feature of all Chicago Athletic contests and campus activities, is completely equipped with Conn instruments

CONN
BAND INSTRUMENTS
WORLD'S LARGEST MANUFACTURERS

When the Band Goes Marching By

Your lips pucker; a thrill chases down your spine. A gay tune with its pulsing rhythm grips you. You swing into a jaunty, whistling stride, as the band goes marching by!

Band music is popular music—everyone appreciates it, everyone enjoys it. And no achievement of our fifty years' existence is of greater significance than the fact that Conn instruments are so universally endorsed by the leaders and players of America's bands.

Famous Bands Use Conns

Foremost professional bands—those great concert organizations lead by Sousa, Conway, Kryl and others—as well as the non-professional bands in colleges, schools, Legion posts, lodges, industrial institutions and communities, join in paying tribute to the supremacy of Conn instruments.

The famous Chicago University band is pictured above with its complete set of Conn instruments. At the University of Illinois, whose concert band is one of the largest and finest of all college bands, rivaling professional organizations, Director Harding uses and endorses Conn instruments.

Summer time is band time. New bands are forming; others are reorganizing for the outdoor season. Opportunities for players are open everywhere—your opportunity for pleasure and profit. If you can whistle you can learn to play a Conn.

Remember Conn's Cost No More

There is a dealer near you who will gladly demonstrate the instrument which interests you most. Remember, Conn is the only make of every instrument used in the band. And with all their exclusive features Conn instruments cost no more. Convenient terms, if you desire. Take the road to mastery, play a Conn.

Our Band Service Department

This department will gladly advise and assist individuals or organizations interested in forming a band or orchestra. Our half century experience is at your disposal, without obligation. Write us fully.

FREE "Success in Music and How to Win It," by John Philip Sousa and other famous musicians. Helps you choose the instrument for your talent.

Gloria's Opening Brings Hollywood Out in Its Glory

By Rosalind Shaffer.

LOS ANGELES—[Special Correspondence.]—Fashions are the thing these days in Hollywood with the spring season already arrived and the stars coming back from Paris with their wardrobes all set for display. Gloria Swanson's opening on Friday night, the day of her arrival here, was a fashion display quite worthy of the queen of snappy dressers. Crowds lined the sidewalks near the Grauman Million Dollar theater for hours before the opening to gain a peep at the display of movie celebrities in their best who turned out almost to a man to attend the first performance of "Madame Sans Gene," Gloria's latest picture. Among those noted were the following:

Alma Rubens, in flesh color chiffon, wore white ermine as a wrap, with a white fox collar.

Margaret Livingston wore black lace over cloth of gold and an ermine wrap with a sable collar.

Trixie Friganza chose white lace and chiffon for her gown and white ermine for her wrap, which was trimmed in white georgette. A headdress of silver and white set off her snowy hair.

Shirley Mason appeared in flesh colored chiffon and lace over biege, with a black velvet wrap trimmed in ermine.

Lillyan Tashman selected black chiffon for her gown, and with it a white ermine wrap.

Nita Naldi accented her dark beauty with a petunia shaded gown with a wrap to match, trimmed in American beauty ostrich.

Treats for the Eye.

Norma Shearer wore green chiffon heavily trimmed with crystal beads. A flame colored velvet wrap made an arresting effect with it.

Pauline Starke, in a silver gown, complemented it with a silver wrap brocaded in pastel colored flowers.

Mrs. Jack Holt was a treat to the eye in white georgette embroidered with crystal beads over which she wore a rose and silver brocaded wrap.

Betty Bronson bloomed forth in red crêpe de Chine and a black coat trimmed with black fox.

Alice Joyce further accented the popular red note by her gown of scarlet with sandal slippers to match. A white ermine wrap made an effective foil for the red.

Ruth Roland wore yellow chiffon and diamonds with a wrap of yellow trimmed in ostrich.

Mrs. Ronald Colman framed her auburn beauty in a gown of white and silver and a wrap of white ermine with long silk fringe. A band of silver and orchid ribbon confined a fluffy bobbed coiffeur.

Claire Windsor looked flower like in a flesh colored gown with a turquoise blue and gold brocaded coat.

Mrs. Cecil DeMille strove for an elegant simplicity in her gown of indigo blue chiffon with a wrap of the same color trimmed in two toned ostrich feathers, American beauty and blue.

Greta Nissen showed considerable individuality in the gown of green and gold brocaded on white. A wrap of ermine completed her costume.

Gloria herself wore a French gown of silver cloth with a braid of silver cord diagonally across the bodice. A heavy silver coat, woven to give the appearance of dazzling white satin, was cut mandarin fashion, with large, loose sleeves with enormous cuffs, and was lined with purple chiffon. Purple satin pumps carried out the color scheme. Closely bobbed hair, slicked away back boy fashion, framed a tired white face as she stood on the bench

ROLLS THE R

EUGENE POWERS

He's Major-General Sir Maurice Harpenden (Baronet) in "The Green Hat"; and there isn't the slightest danger of your not knowing it when he has lines to speak. He just loves to speak 'em, and makes you feel that he's sorry there are not more lines to his part. . . . Mr. Powers' is the big, spacious, take-your-time sort of acting that makes one think of the old tragedian in "Trelawny of the Wells."

placed in the aisle for her and received the applause of the enthusiastic Angelenos. She swayed as she stood and was only supported by the hands of her husband. Emotion nearly overcame her. No star in the history of Hollywood has ever received such a welcome as did Gloria.

Talmadge Trio Effective.

Another opening earlier in the week, of Marion Davies in "Zander the Great," at the Criterion, had an imposing film fashion display. The three Talmadge sisters appeared—Norma in one of her new Paris gowns of white satin embroidered in pearls, with an ermine wrap the collar of which was made of choux of white satin; Constance in white chiffon with crystals and an ermine wrap; Natalie in orchid chiffon with rhinestones and a sable coat.

Jetta Goudal wore hand painted emerald green velvet and had her hair slicked back, showing her ears.

Myrtle Stedman was gowned in chiffon shaded from poudre blue to orchid, with a tight bodice and full skirt. A wrap of cream panne hand painted velvet was lined with a vivid shade of gold satin.

Lillian Rich was an arresting sight in her gown of flesh satin decorated with ropes of pearls from a natural waist line to hem, and ropes of pearls depending from her shoulders. A silver fox cape was trimmed with a gray fox collar.

Madge Bellamy inclined to the ever popular white satin with pearls and a pearl headdress. Her white ermine wrap was banded with chinchilla.

Mrs. Rudolph Valentino dressed her classic beauty in white, also having a white chiffon gown and a wrap of white velvet embroidered in jet. It was worn as the old fashioned mantle, with one end thrown over the shoulder weighted with an enormous jet tassel.

Novel Idea, Yes.

Fashions being near the heart of all the fair, the day following the Marion Davies' opening found Mrs. Winifred Westover Hart slowly recovering from her nervous breakdown, all agog for fashion notes. As she has not gone out at all socially since some time preceding the birth of young Bill, nearly three years ago, her evening wardrobe has received no attention. Since the verdict was given that she may return to picture work which she left to marry Hart, she is bestirring herself to get a wardrobe; but as the expenses of her trial and her sickness have eaten pretty well into her yearly allowance, she has evolved a clever idea to obtain funds.

Seems that big hearted Bill is offering a bounty of $45 for every mountain lion slain in these wild regions, and Winifred plans to take the two guns Bill gave her and sally forth to slay the varmints in their lair and drag them to the door of husband Bill a couple of blocks away and claim the bounty. Novel idea for getting money from the irate husband, what?

Erte in Filmland.

Erte is handing 'em thrills out at Goldwyn's these days. Rumor has it that not long ago one of his exotic creations was given character by a line of circles running down the side of the gown in question. As these circles were cut out and exposed the lovely subject wearing the gown rather liberally, some one protested that it was too European for American consumption. At which M. Erte registered disgust; if style and art is not to reveal and enhance beauty, we ask you, what is it for? Nothing, says M. Erte.

Lunch at the studio became an interesting meal one day this week due to the versatile and artistic gentleman; a combination salad was the dish ordered. A perfectly excruciating color scheme of bright red tomato, lowly onion, green pepper and all the rest of the whatnots of mystery that chefs are wont to pour into their recipe for combination salad, was thrust right under the sensitive and trembling nose of the horrified exotic.

PROM

MISS JOSEPHINE LA VIGNE.

[Koehne Photo.]

Miss Josephine La Vigne is in charge of the ticket committee for the senior prom of Rosary High school, to be held next Friday evening at the Furniture Mart, 666 Lake Shore drive.

Rebellion seethed in the soul of the artist.

"Take it away," he entreated and then, overcome with pity for the man who could create such a color monstrosity, Erte entered the lowly kitchen of the studio hash house and gave the chef some lessons in art.

A series of Sunday afternoon at homes will be held by him in his home in Hollywoodland, a delightful canyon location in the Hollywood foothills, beginning on May 15. This will give the famous artist an opportunity to become acquainted with Hollywood folk.

Moods, Thrills and Heart Throbs

FOLKS are pretty much alike. All of us have moods. All of us at times seek thrills. And who escapes those moments of mellowness when only the soft and beautiful will quite satisfy?

Meet your moods and satisfy them. You'll lead a fuller, happier life.

One purpose of the Brunswick Radiola is to meet moods. You'll never realize how amazingly it does so until you start to "play with one."

Turn a lever, and here is a thrill—the superlative thrill of radio's greatest achievement to tumble all the wonderful world before you.

Another turn, and here are the old songs—or the new—that you love; softly enticing melodies to fit your mellower moods . . . your favorite records played as only a Brunswick can play them.

Combined by the leader in radio, The Radio Corporation of America, with Brunswick, leader in music, as a scientific unit, the world offers no comparable instrument to the Brunswick Radiola—musically, educationally, mechanically, or in simplicity of operation.

It combines the beauty of Brunswick Cabinet design and tonal quality with super-sensitive radio reception, assuring amazing distance, tone clarity and selectivity. All apparatus is concealed—half the space, no wet batteries, no outside wires, no exposed horn.

Come, see it. Prices start at $170. Which is very little. Terms of payment are uniquely liberal.

Vaudeville Wit

Murray and Gerrish:

"What are you so mad at me for? I ain't done nothing. What are you so mad at me for? Don't you love me any more, Isabelle?"

"Yes, I'm mad."

"Why?"

"That booby brother of yours made a bluff at kissing me last night and then quit."

"Yes, but he says you scratched his face, blackened his eye, and stabbed him with a hatpin."

"Well, a gal has to put up a little maidenly resistance."

"I don't see how you can love my brother. He ain't got no sense. He ain't got no nothing."

"Well, you ain't got no nothing, either."

"If you'd give me your love I'd spend all my money on you. See, I have ten cents now."

"Ten cents! Why, man, ten cents wouldn't pay for my face rouge."

"Isabelle, you don't know what you're missing when you don't love me. If you'd marry me I'd get you everything—I'd get you a a good steady job, too."

"Get me a job! What's the matter with you working? Are you a cripple? Have you got paralytic suspenders?"

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

On a Diet.

She weighed so much she had to visit a physician. The young doctor gave her a list of the few things she could include in her diet, and told her to return in three weeks.

At the end of that period she reappeared—only this time she could barely clear the door jamb.

"Good heavens, madam!" exclaimed the medic, disbelieving his eyes, "do you mean to tell me you've been following that diet I gave you?"

"Absolutely," she assured him.

"That and nothing else?" he persisted.

"Nothing but my regular meals," she volunteered. E. D. B.

No Use for Them.

Slow Pay (to tailor)—Look here, Snip, you haven't put any pockets in these trousers.

Snip—No, Mr. Slowpay. I judge from your account here that you never have anything to put in them. R. Z.

His Answer Ready.

An American guest tells this story about a quick witted compatriot. Poor Smith doesn't cut a distinguished figure in his evening clothes.

In a fashionable restaurant the other night, as Smith stood near the door waiting for his wife, a tall, pompous Englishman came up and asked: "I say, my man, you the head waitah?"

"No," replied Smith quick as a flash, "but I heard him tell a young fellow this afternoon that he wasn't taking on any more help." L. F.

How He Found Out.

"My boss fired me because I took his car out last night."

"How did he know you took it out?"

"I ran over him!" A. T.

Revenge Is Sweet.

"I see we're sending cross word puzzles to China now."

"Yes, getting even for the mah jongg sets." J. A. S.

Ungallant.

She—I don't care about men. In fact, I've said "No" to at least four of them.

He—What were they selling? M. H.

Reasons Enough.

"Why did you break off your engagement?"

"O, my dear, Jack became simply impossible. He criticised the way I dressed and objected to my friends, and always wanted me at his beck and call. Then, on top of all that, he suddenly went off and married another girl, so I made up my mind to have nothing more to do with him." E. B.

That Explains It.

Teacher—James, why is the English language called the mother tongue?

Movie Notes from Hollywood.

Tuesday night at the Ambassador was a lively night. Mabel Normand in yellow and silver brocade with crystal fringing on the skirt, a silver turban, and silver slippers and stockings, was having supper with Paul Bern. Blanche Sweet, in a simply made, straight, sleeveless gown of petunia satin, was dining and dancing with her husband, Marshall Neilan. Raymond Griffith and Alice Joyce, Alice in a gray and navy blue crêpe with panels, occupied a table near the wall; Frank Borzage and J. D. Williams were noted dancing. Shirley Mason wore a lovely scarlet crêpe dress, cut low in the back, hung with rhinestone strings. Lew Cody and May Ayres were dancing; we noticed Bob Leonard, looking not too depressed over Mae Murray's desertion, and Bobby Agnew.

Saturday at the Montmartre was enlivened by Nita Naldi in a vivid purple ensemble. A hat to match with the crown in sections which were piped in a petunia shade accompanied the gown and wrap which was worn with a chiffon scarf of petunia. May Allison, Pauline Garon, Charlotte Merriam, Mrs. Jack Mulhall, Mrs. Clarence Brown, Buster Collier, and Raoul Walsh, Wallace Beery, Syd Chaplin, Neal Burns, Adolphe Menjou, Ricardo Cortez, and Robert Fraser were lunching and dancing.

The Sixty club ball at the Biltmore last Saturday contributes a little story about some film celebs. Nita Naldi, dancing with Hobart Henley, was bumped by Ethel Shannon and John Flynn.

Nita became a trifle miffed and with a bit of tartness remarked: "O, don't mind us; we just work here."

"You look it," meowed Ethel.

Notes of the Theaters

"Boodle," in which Jack Buchanan has been performing in London, is a song-show version of a farce named "The New Clown," acted unsuccessfully in this country many years ago by the late Jameson Lee Finney. . . . The late Dan Daly, then about all through as a box-office attraction, later tried to do something with the piece, and didn't.

Miss Billie Burke, who returned to the stage this season in a costly venture named "Annie Dear," is named as among the somebodies who will entertain in the two-a-day.

"The Fall of Eve" is a new title for a piece previously mentioned in THE TRIBUNE as "Aren't Men Brutes?" It is by John Emerson, head of the actors' union, and Miss Anita Loos [Mrs. Emerson]: theirs was the American version of a German farce shown here last season as "The Whole Town's Talking." . . . Miss Ruth Gordon, Reginald Mason, and Claude King are to be in the new piece.

New-York is to have a venture named the Russian Chamber Theater, it is said: the actors named are the disjecta membra of the Moscow Art Theater; and their idea of a play to start with is one made from Dickens' "The Cricket on the Hearth"!

"The Family Upstairs" is the name of a new play by Harry Delf, who used to be an actor in the varieties. . . . Miss Ruth Chatterton, who has lately had a bad season of it, is about to try out something new in Washington.

BROADCASTING TO GO; NEXT, "RADIO PRESENTATION"

New Art to Have Its Sphere Like Movie.

BY WILSON WETHERBEE.

Radio broadcasting, which since its inception almost five years ago, has been considered the child of the arts and sciences, is beginning to show signs of becoming of age. Already there is to be detected an effort to depart from the manner in which programs have been given to the public, a movement toward a finer development in the art of radio entertainment. The old order of announcing has gone its way and there is every indication that early forms of broadcast programs will soon follow.

Ready for New Step.

Broadcasting, apparently, is ready now for another step in its advancement, the radio presentation. Since the earliest beginnings of radio, programs have been interesting and diversified after the fashion of a news reel, but they have lacked a certain "flair" which would serve to establish them as a kind of entertainment entirely different from that which might be found in the theater or concert hall. In other words, the radio technique has yet to be discovered. It is in the present efforts of station directors to inject new ideas into programs that the seeking after this technique becomes the obvious business of broadcasters. Radio entertainment must continue, of course, to be highly interesting and diversified, but there must be found a method of staging to the best advantage the component parts of programs in order that they may have the continuity necessary to successful broadcast production.

Sound the One Vehicle.

Station directors must face now the problems which confronted motion picture producers in the early stages of that profession. The limitations of radio must be recognized as were the physical restrictions of the movie. It is obvious, of course, that the radio impressario has sound as the only vehicle of expression. Whatever effects he may develop, whatever ideas he may wish to convey, must necessarily find their means of communication in sound. There are difficulties too numerous to mention which must be overcome before radio presentation will reach anything like a state of artistic perfection. Altogether it means the building up of a new technique in broadcasting and the development of a new appreciation on the part of the listener. The radio fan must accustom himself to visualizing by sound just as he had to learn to receive a complete picture from the movie screen without the aid of the voice.

Will Have Own Technique.

Then will come the radio drama, and the radio musical comedy, and they may be termed "radio" by virtue of more than the fact they were produced by a broadcasting station. These broadcast productions of the future will have their own technique, their own methods of communicating ideas. Of course, these things are for the future, but not for the distant future. Already directors are writing and producing plays for experimental purposes. The work of perfecting radio technique has started. It will be a long road, at the best, but it is the only one which eventually will place radio broadcasting among the truly artistic achievements of the times.

RADIO AIDS IN EDUCATION OF FOREIGN BORN

San Francisco, Cal., May 2.—[Special.]—An interesting phase of radio is the part it is doing to educate the foreign born residents of this and other cities to things American. Dr. Albertine Richards Nash, the psychologist, who speaks on the educational program from KGO Monday nights, was formerly director of the psychological clinic at the State Teachers' college, San Francisco.

One of her chief problems in dealing with children who failed to adjust themselves in their school relations was that of children of foreign born parents. The parents, unable to speak English, or speaking very little of it, do not naturally "mix" with Americans, while their children do. This often brings conflict in the home when the children try to adopt American ways.

Dr. Nash's talks at KGO cover this difficult phase of Americanization in a very comprehensive way. She has, in fact, given radio possibilities for our foreign born careful attention.

"Radio is forcing many foreign born residents, said Dr. Nash today in reviewing her courses at KGO, "to become better acquainted with English and to listen to innumerable speeches on American institutions such as they never could have heard without radio. The effect of this in helping this country to assimilate its foreigners can hardly be estimated.

CHICAGO SIGNALS REACH GLASGOW IN EXPERIMENT

The experimental station 9XN, testing out for distance on short wave lengths for use in the forthcoming MacMillan arctic expedition, has a letter under date of April 19 from J. Gordon Hitchie, Glasgow, Scotland, stating that between 6 and 6:10 p. m. that day he logged a message from 9XN. He says in the letter the signals were clear and distinct. He had 9XN on approximately 20 meters. There was brilliant sunshine at Glasgow at the time.

A. P.'S NEW RADIO BROADCAST RULE BRINGS PRAISE

Engineer Congratulates Press on Stand.

The action taken recently by the Associated Press at it convention in New York, permitting its members to broadcast news of unusual importance, is striking evidence of the growing feeling of mutuality between radio and the newspapers, according to William H. Priess, president of the Priess Radio corporation.

"From the beginning the newspapers have given encouragement to radio, or wireless, as they used to call it," he said. "As the art developed this encouragement developed into support and now, by this latest concerted step, the newspapers are enlisting radio as a means of circulating news.

Completes the Cycle.

"In many instances this will mean the completion of the cycle, for much of the important news today is received in the newspaper offices via radio and it will be retransmitted to the public by the same method.

"The fact that radio has grown to such an efficient state that the newspapers will use it as a medium of circulating information is an apt example of how an infant art or science can be developed to a genuine utility. As an engineer who remembers radio when it was an extremely meagre and discouraging pursuit.

Coöperation Bears Fruit.

"I am also bound to remember the whole-hearted coöperation which the newspapers have always given. It gives one an unbounded degree of satisfaction to know that this coöperation has borne fruit and that radio now serves the newspaper as richly as it always has been served by the newspaper.

"The two are interdependent. They will always stand shoulder to shoulder in lighting the way of knowledge."

FAVORS GREATER USE

The American Newspaper Publishers association is inclined to favor a more extensive use of radio broadcasting by newspapers. This follows the action of the Associated Press which recently went on record as favoring the limited broadcasting of Associated Press news of unusual importance.

"If the belief is correct that people like to read the details of events with which they are already partly familiar," the American Newspaper Publishers report holds, "the broadcasting of news bulletins should help rather than retard the sale of newspapers."

The A. N. P. A. report brought out the fact that among the 500 odd broadcasting stations, 31 are owned by newspapers. This represents a shrinkage of about 20 newspapers during the past year. But there are at least 50 other newspapers, which either own studios connected with broadcasting stations which they do not own, or which put on or sponsor programs.

RADIO MONOPOLY HEARING TO BE LONG DRAWN OUT

It is predicted that the federal trade commission hearings of the alleged radio monopoly scheduled to begin in New York Monday, May 18, may last a month. It is said that some of the sessions are likely to be held in Washington.

The respondents are the United Fruit company, the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric company, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, the International Radio Telegraph company and the Wireless Specialty Apparatus company.

Janet Halperin, Russian Pianist, Again to Play

Newark, N. J., May 2.—Janet Halperin, one of the younger Russian pianists, whose radio recitals from WOR have occasioned considerable favorable comment, will again be heard in two groups of numbers from the New Jersey station as a feature of the Monday afternoon program. A second group of numbers, which includes "Carneval," by Grieg, and "Rondo," by Beethoven, will be broadcast at 3:30 o'clock.

RABBI KRASS WILL ADDRESS SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Clifford W. Barnes, president of the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall, who has been absent from the meetings since the first of March while on a visit to his mother in California, will resume his talks on "Pilgrim's Progress" at the 7 o'clock meeting to-"Doubt Not Thy Father's Care," by when Rabbi Nathan Krass will speak on "Pigeonholing Religion."

Both addresses and the music program will be broadcast by KYW.

Rabbi Krass is one of the leaders of Jewish religious thought in America. A native of Odessa, Russia, he is now pastor of Temple Emanu-El, New York City, a post which he reached after serving in many important positions in this country. He was one of the most effective workers during the Liberty loan drives, touring the country on a speaking campaign for three years, and is described as "a liberal thinker and an interesting and forceful speaker."

The music program will include a solo by Mabel Sharp Herdien, "The Lord Is My Light," by Speaks, and anthems by the Choir of 100, including "Doubt Not Thy Father's Care" by Elgar, to be given by the women's voices. Louis Kreidler will also be heard in solo parts.

Noble B. Judah, a trustee of the club, will have a part in the program.

THIS TRAIN HAS EAR PHONES FOR EACH PASSENGER

St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—The Great Northern railway's plan for radio reception on its transcontinental train, the Oriental limited, involves the elimination of the loud speaker and the dissemination of radio broadcasting only to passengers who may be interested, without disturbance to other patrons. Under this plan individual head sets will be attached to each chair of the observation parlor and supplied to each compartment.

The road is just completing a test of radio possibilities over its system, during which an Oriental limited type of steel compartment observation car was equipped with all accessories and with two types of receiving equipment, one a superheterodyne with interior loop and the other a commercial set of the type used by seacoast broadcasting stations to pick up SOS signals right under the guns of their own high powered stations. This set is equipped with outside antenna.

The test among other things is for the purpose of determining the most effective receiving set under conditions existing along the Great Northern railway.

RADIO TO KEEP FISHERMEN IN TOUCH WITH HOME

Tacoma, Wash., May 2.—[Special.]—The value of amateur radio communication to those whose business takes them into the far off corners of the earth is being demonstrated this year as the Alaskan fishing fleet gets under way from ports of the Pacific north west. Members of the American Radio Relay league are among the first men to be sent north. They take with them receiving and transmitting apparatus by which the fleet and canneries maintain touch with the home ports through the medium of other amateur stations along the air line.

In cases where the ship or cannery facilities do not permit the installation of transmitting apparatus, arrangements have been made to broadcast code messages at stated intervals. Thus the home stations will keep men in the fleet abreast of the news from home and furnish relief from the monotony of looking at nothing much but fish and each other.

Crowd's Clamor at English Derby Will Be Broadcast

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—The English derby will be broadcast May 27. Microphones will be placed at various points along the course, including the historic Tattenham corner and at the winning post. Only the clamor of the crowd will be sent into space. Owing to a clause in the British Broadcasting company's contract the final result of the race cannot be sent through the microphone. It is believed that shouts of spectators near the microphone will indicate the winner.

CAL'S VOICE ON SAME FILM WITH MOTION PICTURE

Speech Heard Later with Screen View.

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—No longer must a person stand near a microphone to broadcast. Recently the radio audience tuned to the wave length of WJY and heard President Coolidge address a group of newspaper men gathered at the Friars club. The speech was prepared and delivered by President Coolidge more than a week before before the radio audience listened to it. He spoke at the south portico of the White House, and as a motion picture was made of him, his voice was recorded on the same film. The guests in New York the following week saw the President in action delivering the speech to them and heard his voice at the same time. It was also broadcast.

It Is the Phonofilm.

The apparatus that registered the voice and picture is known as the phonofilm, invented by Dr. Lee De Forest. The phonofilm, as its name implies, is the combination on the same film of picture with voice or music photographically recorded. Standard cinematograph film is used. The sound record occupies a very narrow strip of film, about 3-32 inch wide on a margin, and does not materially reduce the width of the picture.

An especially designed gas filled lamp, called the "photion light," is inserted in the camera a short distance away from the usual objective lens for recording. The light from the photion tube passes through a narrow slit and falls directly upon one margin of the film. This margin is screened from the picture itself so that only the light from the photion falls upon it. The film is driven continuously with an even speed, in front of this narrow slit, but with the usual intermittent step-by-step motion in front of the picture aperture.

How It Is Done.

The light in the photion tube is generated by the electric current which is passing through the gas inclosed therein. The intensity of the light depends on the intensity of the electric current. Therefore, if a powerful telephonic current is passed through the photion the light emitted varies exactly in accordance with the strength of the telephonic current at any instant. This light, therefore, fluctuates in brightness hundreds or thousands of times a second in perfect rythm with the telephonic current pulses, and varies in strength with the current.

GOVERNMENT AIR COMMUNICATION MORE EXTENSIVE

Washington, D. C., May 2.—The treasury department is the latest government agency to turn to radio for transmission of emergency, nonconfidential communication to its field forces. Following a six weeks' test, in which instructions were sent through the air to internal revenue officers in a dozen cities, official approval has been given to use of that medium wherever receiving stations are available. Use will be made by the treasury of army and navy stations both in this country and abroad in handling such business except for secret messages.

Several other government agencies for some time have been using air communications to a limited extent, but it was said today that the practicability of more general communication for government use had been demonstrated by the tests of the internal revenue bureau.

The coast guard has been employing radio in a large volume of its communication, and it is now under instructions to go ahead on a broader scale in the work of enforcing liquor and smuggling laws as well as in aiding distressed ships. Officials of the customs service for some time have been in almost daily communication by radio with San Juan, Porto Rico; Juneau, Alaska; Honolulu, Paris, and London.

SURPRISE DUE IN AIRPLANE SETS OF SHORT WAVE

It is predicted the sensation of the summer will be the further development of the short wave airplane sets. As has been reported, on a 20 meter wave length signals from a plane were heard fairly well up to 60 miles but after that were lost.

Navy officials at Washington thought this was the end of it until they began receiving letters and telegrams saying that the signals had been distinctly heard in Florida and Minnesota. The question they are now figuring out is, "What caused the one to two thousand mile jump, and why was it not heard at points between?"

Dr. A. H. Taylor and his associates at the United States Naval Research laboratory, Bellevue, D. C., are attracting worldwide attention by the progress they are making on the development of high frequency short wave radio equipment for use of airplanes in flight.

Y. M. C. A. Starts "Family Altar" Radio Service

A. with the coöperation of the church federation in furnishing speakers. The Rev. Richard Vandenberg of the Second Reformed church of Englewood conducted these devotional services during the last week, aided by John L. Meredith, Christian service secretary at Central "Y."

President's Address to Jews to Be Broadcast

The occasion will be the laying of the corner stone of the new Jewish community center in Washington. The address will be broadcast by WCAP and other stations at 4 p. m., eastern standard time.

CHICAGO STATION DIRECTORS FORM ORGANIZATION

At a meeting of representatives of leading Chicago broadcasting stations last week it was decided to form a permanent organization to be known as the "Chicago Broadcasters association." Robert B. Boniel, director of WEBH, was elected president, Wilson J. Weatherbee, director of KYW, vice president, and Miss Judith C. Waller, director of WMAQ, was elected secretary-treasurer.

A tentative organization formed last winter has been absorbed by the "Chicago Broadcasters association," and the committee named in the winter to administer a fund of $4,391.79 for charitable purposes remains as previously constituted—Miss Waller, chairman; Mr. Weatherbee and Edgar L. Bill.

All applications for membership will be passed upon by a committee composed of Jack Nelson, director of WJJD, chairman; George D. Hay of WLS, and D. D. Richards of WEBH.

STATION WILL REDUCE POWER.

The air mail radio station WWO, Cleveland, O., will reduce its power by less than half in an effort to minimize interference.

W-G-N NOTES

Station W-G-N is coöperating with twenty-eight other radio stations in broadcasting to the eight balloons competing in the national elimination balloon race which started on Friday from St. Joseph, Mo. Three times each day W-G-N will broadcast bulletins on the weather and meteorological conditions and locations of the balloons until all are reported down.

The big league baseball scores are now broadcast daily from W-G-N at 6 o'clock following the evening time signals.

Engineer Paul G. Neal of W-G-N returned yesterday from Indianapolis and Louisville, where he has completed all mechanical arrangements for the broadcasting of the Kentucky Derby on Saturday, May 16, and the Indianapolis Speedway races on Memorial day, May 30, the latter broadcasting to be under the auspices of the Prestolite company.

An unusual concert to be given entirely by children under 12 years of age will be put on the air between 8:30 and 9:30 next Tuesday evening by W-G-N.

TOWERS OUT OF CITY, SO WHT ON AIR MONDAYS

Radio station WHT will continue with the precedent established by other stations with studios in Chicago and transmission towers outside the city and broadcast Monday nights, according to an announcement made by George E. Carlson, general manager.

"By going on the air seven nights a week we will not in any way break faith regarding the Monday silent night arranged in Chicago," said Mr. Carlson. "The agreement is between and affects the stations with transmission towers within the city limits.

"WHT's towers are at Deerfield, 25 miles from Chicago. We spent about $40,000 to locate them there, so that we would not interfere with Chicago stations or fans on any night. Extensive tests have shown us that we tune in exceptionally sharp, and we are on a low wave length. These three factors convince us that we will not in the least interfere with any DX work by Chicago fans."

All other stations with Chicago studios and towers outside the city limits are broadcasting on Monday night.

7 Reasons the Whole World Uses Berry Brothers' Varnishes, Enamels and Stains

Liquid Granite

Here is the foremost varnish for use where the wear is severe. It is especially recommended for floors, linoleum and woodwork. Liquid Granite is mar-proof and waterproof—the famous million-step test varnish.

Luxeberry Enamel

The highest grade long-oil enamel manufactured. It is sold in pure white and six harmonizing tints. Luxeberry Enamel produces a subdued luster—not a cheap glare—and is very rich in tone. For furniture and woodwork it is unequalled.

Berryspar Varnish

A quick-drying spar varnish especially intended for boats, doors, floors and exposed surfaces. It is absolutely waterproof and will not turn white. Being very light in color it will not darken light-colored linoleum.

Berrycraft Enamel

For interior use on woodwork, furniture, walls, cabinets, baby cabs, beds, etc. Eight colors from which to select.

Berrycraft Varnish Stain

Stains and varnishes in one operation. The highest quality stain finish that 67 years of experience has been able to produce. Available in eight colors and an undercoat.

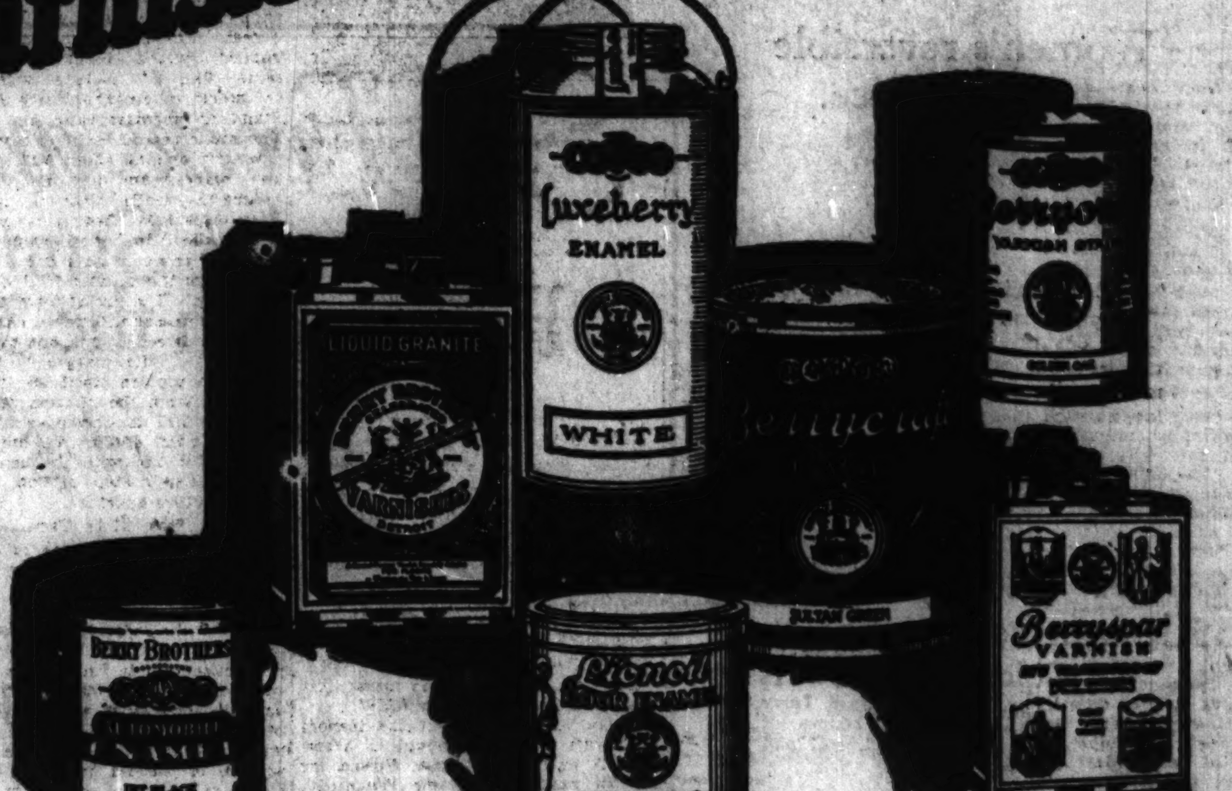
Automobile Enamel

The finest motor cars built in Europe are finished with Berry Brothers' Automobile Enamels imported from America. With these high grade enamels, made in ten different colors, anyone can produce a marvelous finish. Easy to apply, quick to dry and exceptionally durable.

Lionoil Floor Enamel

The second largest seller in the Berry line—a wonderful enamel for porches, floors, decks, and outdoor furniture—a wood preservative and special rust preventive made in six colors and sold at prices only slightly above that of ordinary floor paint.

Save the surface and you save all



HERE are varnishes and enamels so high in quality and unrivalled in wear-resisting durability that they are known, recommended and used throughout the length and breadth of America and in nearly every important European city.

Think of a varnish so good that England, France, Spain, Italy, Germany and a dozen other countries import it year after year. Such a varnish is Liquid Granite—the original and only "million-step test" varnish—suited alike for floors and woodwork and especially recommended for use wherever the wear is severe.

And then comes Berry Brothers' Automobile Enamel—again a product of such outstanding quality that almost every fine car built in Europe is finished with it.

Luxeberry Enamel—the most nearly pure white of all enamels manufactured—produces a mellow-toned effect that resembles a hand-rubbed finish instead of a harsh, jazzy glare. Lionoil Floor Enamel, remarkable for its exceptional hiding qualities, gives you an unequalled finish for porches, floors, linoleums, decks and outdoor furniture at a price only slightly greater than ordinary floor paint.

Here is quality—quality that gives enduring satisfaction and saves you money by cutting refinishing costs in half.

Don't make the mistake of using cheap varnishes and enamels. Use products that "stand up". And for the fullest measure of satisfaction and the biggest dollar's worth of surface-saving varnish or enamel you ever used—accept nothing short of Berry Brothers' quality.

Sprightly Spring Tempts the Smart Set Suburbanward

By Mme. X.

WAS there ever such a young and lovely spring as this has been up to the date of this writing, which is several days ahead of publication? Of course, May may be white with snow, but wiseacres say otherwise. There is prophecy of an early and warmish summer. It is based on the fact that last winter was an uncommonly mild one, a season when the earth stored up less frost than usual and the lake digested less ice than ordinarily it does, both of which facts make for less cold to be combated and more warmth to be enjoyed by dwellers in this particular nook of the land. So here's hoping!

This p. p. p. has moved with extra celerity out to the Compound, a delectable garden within a stone's throw of the center of Lake Forest, a garden in whose confines live in summertime Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Aldis, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis, Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon and Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson, while all the year round dwellers are Mr. and Mrs. George Dickson. This coming summer, however, will see the young Clarence Mitchells in the McCutcheon house and sharing the swimming pool and tennis courts that are a feature of the garden.

Already established in this cheerful suburb, Lake Forest, are the William P. Martins, the Robert G. McGanns, and the Samuel T. Chases; while George A. McKinlock has anticipated the coming return of his wife and Miss Muriel McCormick to the extent of making the Onwentsia club his headquarters, while his country house in West Deerpath avenue is being set in order for its summer season. He has gone east to meet Mrs. McKinlock and Miss McCormick, who sailed from Miami last week for either Boston or New York, he did not seem quite sure which. It is a pleasant voyage northward from that part of Florida, in good weather taking two days, instead of the thirty-six hours that a train trip means.

Guests of Note.

Chicago's gay world has been enjoying a more than usually festive week for the time of year. The brief visit of M. Emile Daeschner, the new French ambassador, and his family, who spent two days with Edward T. Blair, and the advent of Ivan Mestrovic, the Michael Angelo of Yugo-Slavia, were made the occasion of a round of cheerful parties. Chicagoites love to give parties, especially if it can be done in the name of some visiting celebrity or interesting guest.

The Casino was the setting for several of the entertainments for the Serb celebrity, also for a luncheon which Mrs. Howard Linn gave for the wife of the French ambassador and the two daughters. The Arts club gave a tea in his honor last Tuesday afternoon, and Mr. Blair was host at a dinner for the Daeschners on the evening of the same day. The Alliance Française and the French consul, M. Antonin Barthelemy, united in a reception for the distinguished Gallic visitors on Wednesday afternoon in the gold room of the Blackstone hotel.

In appearance neither M. nor Mme. Daeschner is what we know as typically French. He is tall, of a build both lank and lean, with rather a drooping mustache, a finely domed head, and a quiet, agreeable manner. He is more English than anything else in outward effect. Mme. Daeschner, too, is tall and noticeably thin, resembling more a Scotchwoman than a daughter of France. In manner she is quiet, but exceedingly well bred and agreeable. The two daughters are plump and have more the traditionally French air than either of their parents.

All the family speak excellent English. Altogether, they seem exceptionally well fitted to represent the other great democracy in this birthplace of democracies. If our American diplomats and consuls were as a rule, as well fitted, linguistically, to represent this country, we would make a more impressive appearance in foreign lands.

The Daeschners have served France in many countries, M. Daeschner having been in various posts for many years. It is customary always to address an ambassador as "Mr. Ambassador," when speaking to him, just as it is etiquette to say Mr. President, Mr. Chief Justice, Mr. Senator, when addressing the head of the nation, the presiding officer of our Supreme court, or a member of the senate.

Mr. Daeschner's un-Gallic appearance may come from the fact that his family is Alsatian and, therefore, of less Latin strain than the French of central, southern, or western France. In Alsace and Lorraine and the other Rhineland provinces the Nordic and Latin races met and united to make a sturdy stock with many of the good qualities of both the parent strains. For centuries these provinces were under German domination. It was not until Napoleon Bonaparte changed the map of Europe that they came under French rule and became so valiantly Gallic.

Mestrovic and His Work.

The other celebrity who landed on our shores this week, Ivan Mestrovic, is a most interesting and definite personality. In appearance he is short, squarely built, rather bald, with a fine, broad, forehead, a rather thin face made more pointed by a tapering, rather sparse beard. His eyes are deepset, brown in color, and alert. His voice is low and of a sweet, rich quality. In manner he is quiet, simple, and quite at his ease. He has a distinctly eastern European air, a something Slavic and unlike us long heads, as Nordics are classified.

He was originally a Dalmatian peasant, living in the mountains. When

MISS DOROTHY JANE MAGIE.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

Two brides of the immediate future are Miss Dorothy Jane Magie and Miss Gwendolyn Pritchard, who are to be married in June; and one whose marriage will probably be an event of the fall is Miss Harriet Lowden, whose engagement to Albert F. Madlener Jr. was announced last week.

Miss Magie is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Ogden Magie of 450 Oakdale avenue, and her wedding to Robert Bradley Whittlesey of New Haven, Conn., is to be an event of June 20. The service will be read by the Rev. Norman Hutton of St. Chrysostom's church at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon and will be followed by a reception at the Fortnightly.

Miss Lowden is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs Frank O. Lowden of Chicago and Sinissippi farm at Oregon, Ill., and Mr. Madlener the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Sr. of 4 West Burton place. Both were attendants at the wedding of Miss Frances Lowden and John B. Drake Jr. on Feb. 8.

Miss Pritchard is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Roche of Wilmette, Ill., and she is to marry Ralph S. Tilden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Tilden of Canton, O., on June 3 at the Roche residence, after which they will depart on a wedding trip in the east.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

He was a boy of ten or twelve he first began to manifest his genius by carving figures in wood. At fifteen years, with the aid of a Serbian of education and perspicacity, he studied sculpture until he attained his present eminence. He met his first and greatest recognition in England some ten years ago, although already at that time Rodin, the French sculptor, had acclaimed his genius.

In the National gallery of London there are many fine examples of his work. In this country he has had a definite, though not remarkable, success in the few months that he has been here. The art museums of Brooklyn, Detroit, Buffalo, and Cleveland have all bought of his sculpture. Several private citizens of New York and one of the Mrs. Crokers of San Francisco also have his handiwork in their collections. His inexperience with our surnames prevented the writer from getting the names of these lucky individual purchasers.

This p. p. p. is in no position to make suggestions to Chicago's highly expert and sapient art collectors, but it ventures to express the hope that our Art institute should have some example of Mestrovic's art. It even goes so far as to ask why the guardians and disbursers of that remarkable endowment known as the Ferguson fund should not take this opportunity of erecting on the streets of Chicago a piece of sculpture from the chisel of this justly famous Serbian?

A Million for Statues.

This fund is one of the curious fruits of Chicago's hold on some of its citizens. In 1905 a man named Benjamin Franklin Ferguson, a lumber man, left a bequest of a million dollars to be used to adorn our parks and boulevards with statues commemorating the men, women, and events that had contributed to the greatness of Chicago. He appointed the Northern Trust company custodian of the bequest, and the trustees of the Art institute administrators of the income from this fund. At that time this amounted to about $40,000 a year. The bequest rather stunned the trustees, as none of them knew the testator either by sight or name.

Up to today it cannot truthfully be said that the fund has produced any striking piece of sculpture on our boulevards or in our parks. In fact, so lacking in distinction have been the fruits of this fund that one of the trustees, a man of artistic aims and impulses, suggested, in view of this, that henceforth only sculpture already created, the ready made kind, should be purchased by this fund for the beautification of our public places. We have in the presence here of one of the generally accredited greatest artists of this or any age, together with an exhibit of his works, an opportunity to select and secure something that might be a source of lasting inspiration and pride. It seems too bad to miss the chance.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Teich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Teich of 999 Lake Shore drive, to Arnold Lettie, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Lettie of 1065 Hollywood avenue, took place at 8:30 o'clock last evening at St. Paul's church, and was followed by a reception at the Lake Shore Drive hotel.

It is one of the most laudable things in the world to encourage and foster home talent, but this estimable intent can be carried too far. Chicago has some excellent sculptors, but as yet no one has dawned on our horizon who seems likely to mount to the altitudes of Praxiteles, Michael Angelo, St. Gaudens, and Rodin. A marble, stone, or bronze monument in a public place has a deathless, indestructible quality to it that is almost terrifying, and which makes it a matter of vital importance not to make a mistake in selecting such civic adornments. That such errors of the head, though not of the heart, have been made is indisputable. There are some Chicagoans who never pass that monument to Gen. Sheridan up at the junction of Sheridan road and the Lake Shore drive without a shiver of pain. It troubles all the canons of art with the prancing steed lashing its huge tail (done up in a dust bag, say some), and the superactivity of the entire group. Sculpture is not meant to express action. Its metier is force or grace or mood in repose. There are several pieces of sculpture in Lincoln park, portrait statues and symbolic ones, which make the beholder hope for a beneficent, well directed, and strictly localized earthquake. There is there, also, on the other hand, the greatest portrait statue of modern times—Augustus St. Gaudens' statue of Abraham Lincoln. Both in design and setting it is without peer in any city today, commanding as it does Dearborn avenue, and standing as it does in that wide, classic circle. No one can pass that reposeful, pondering, curiously gentle bronze figure without feeling a sort of benediction from the mere sight of it.

Gift with Imagination.

It is somewhat the mode nowadays to discourse on the lack of consideration, public spirit, kindness, and other deficiencies of the main part of the well to do world, not, of course, overlooking the far spreading, magnificent form of our great philanthropies which are so generously supported by the wealthy members of the community. Certainly there does not seem to be as much personal and thoughtful charity practiced as in the good old days when children were taught self-denial so that they might have something to give to their less fortunate companions along life's highway; when the mother of a happy household would steal out at dusk either carrying on her arm a big market basketful of good food to a nearby hungry family or when the father of the same would try personally to cure a drunkard of his folly and make of him a good citizen.

Philanthropy is more standardized, more scientific, the material used is better applied, but in this improvement some of the personal equation is inevitably lost.

Therefore, when someone thinks out anything that has a genuinely personal quality, something that shows thought, understanding, imagination on the part of the donor, it touches the heart. Such a person was an anonymous philanthropist who, through Mrs. Eric Gerstenberg of the box committee of the Friends of Opera, bought a season box of the Chicago Civic opera for the coming winter with the proviso that it should be devoted entirely to blind people.

Think what this will mean to hundreds of people who live in darkness! There are twelve weeks of opera with at least six performances a week for subscribers. A box holds six people. This means that at least 432 sightless folk can have the supreme pleasure of listening to the world's greatest operatic musical compositions as presented by famous artists. One woman's sympathy and imagination thus illuminates the infinite night of some of our otherwise unfortunate neighbors.

Opera Box Activity.

The opera box committee, of which Stanley Field is chairman this year, is working vigorously to make this season's sale surpass anything that has gone before, and there isn't a better, more successful or more devoted worker in this cause than Mrs. Gerstenberg. Mrs. Arthur Meeker, president of the association, is another ardent supporter of Chicago's grand opera, and gives to its needs much of her time and strength. It is such steady, tireless, year in and year out work that tells. It is one thing to toil like mad to get up something that is over in a day or a week, and quite another to go patiently ahead from season to season building up and developing an organization whose object is to support something—my boss to the contrary notwithstanding—so well worth while, so high class, so essential to our budding culture, as the Chicago Civic opera company. And this has been Mrs. Meeker's contribution to her native city for several years now.

MRS. JOHN G. SEARLE.

The marriage of Miss Frances Crow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Crow of Evanston, to John Gideon Searle, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Howard Searle, also of Evanston, was an event of Saturday, April 25. The service was read at Christ church, Winnetka, and was followed by a reception at the Skokie Country club.

Perhaps the men who are so ably directing the destinies of our grand opera, had they been left to their own devices and efforts, would have sold as many boxes and aroused as much interest in it and its future as have Mrs. Meeker and the members of the Friends of Opera, but it does not, at this moment, seem likely.

At the annual meeting of the Friends of Opera on Friday the year's accomplishments were reviewed, and plans for further co-operation to promote our opera were undertaken. Samuel Insull, the company's incomparable director, made a short speech explaining the intricacies of presenting grand opera and thanking the members of the F. O. O. for their assistance and support. It is hard to measure the value of such an organization, but besides its work on the box selling committee, its educational work has been of a kind not to be overlooked. Maestro Polacco's musically illustrated lectures on certain operas and their composers are some of the most delightful and instructive events of the winter. It is to be hoped that there will be more of them next winter.

With the Travelers.

Never in pre-war days was there such an increasing tide of travel as sets in each year from this country eastward across the usually impatient Atlantic. Chicago's quota threatens to be larger than ever this year. So popular is Europe that it affects summer rentals in the nearby suburbs, and many a householder between Evanston and Lake Bluff, who makes his winter expenses by renting his comfortable mansion or bungalow to well to do urbanites seeking country air for a few months, is left high and dry this season with his house and family on his hands and no harvest in sight to pay for next winter's coal and provender.

Some of the winter and spring wanderers are returning, however, which helps towards a gay spring season. The James Ward Thornes arrived here last Monday after a delightful tour of southern Europe. The Clive Runnells are up from the south. The James M. Walkers roosted here last week for a few days between a winter sojourn in Santa Barbara and going to their Berkshire home in Stockbridge, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers left here yesterday preparatory to sailing for England on the Berengaria on Wednesday. They are going to be in England until the end of June or the middle of July, when they expect to go up to bonnie Scotland for a few weeks, this being the source of Mr. Chalmers' family, he being of Scotch origin. Few so born never forget it. Whether you be from Edinburgh or Glasgow, from the highlands or the lowlands, to be Scotch is to be one of the sturdiest, proudest, most capable races that this ancient little globe of ours has ever evolved from the protozoa of primeval ooze.

The Chalmers are to meet their son-in-law, Norman Williams, and their two grandchildren, Miss Joan Williams and Norman Williams III., in London. They will be together, a lively family group, at the Hyde Park hotel during London's gay season.

Mrs. Charles Edward Brown and her daughter, Miss Betty Brown, and Mrs. Kenneth Sawyer Goodman and her two youngsters are joining forces and sailing to France on May [illegible], to spend June and a part of July in that old and delightful stronghold of classic French tradition and speech, the town of Tours, where the entire outfit is to devote itself to acquiring the most beautiful spoken language in the world. Each language has its special shrine of pure speech. In England it is Oxford. In Germany it is Hanover. In Spain it is Andalusia. In Italy it is Tuscany, though the saying is "Lingua Toscana in bocca Romana," meaning "a Tuscan tongue in a Roman mouth." In our country the best American-English is spoken in and about Cambridge, Mass. Even the crossing policeman there speaks better than the average Personal attraction is self-made! That is, beauty lies within yourself, ofttimes unrevealed. Why not acknowledge this fact, letting some authorized specialist direct you?

A boyish figure, a truly fashionable silhouette—these can be yours if you immediately apply CHARLIE WHITE'S formulas for health and feminine charm.

"Let me make you Beautiful!" Charlie White

Have you tried innumerable Beauty Systems without avail? Do not give way to despair. If you are a woman you can be beautiful! Without drugs, starvation diet or any gymnasium apparatus you can regain a graceful figure, reducing or developing neck, bust, waist, hips, ankles or thighs. Many women, seeking renewed youth and vigor, are willing to try every advertised method or so-called "cure." They are willing to spend much time and money attaining their desire. Yet often these systems are harmful, employing drugs or heavy gymnasium exercise. Do not place yourself in the hands of an unskilled practitioner; it is in your own keeping whether or not Beauty shall be attained or utterly destroyed forever.

The Muscle Sense System

There is one man in Chicago who understands and applies nature's law, in its relation to physique. This man is CHARLIE WHITE. He but recently retired from a career in which he had gained world-wide renown in order to devote all his time to the business of making women beautiful. His course is exclusively for women, and every patient is given personal attention by him. He applies his skill by hand, rebuilding every tissue in the body, strengthening the muscles and driving out poisons from the system. He then turns the patient over to a woman attendant, who gives proper care, bath and scientific massage. One treatment will convince you. Write, phone or call.

Woman's Club of Wilmette Has an Enviable Record

By Kate Webber.

THE achievements of the Woman's club of Wilmette give it a place of importance not only locally, but in clubdom generally. As the season closes the members have rather an enviable record to offer along the several lines of activity in which the departments have been engaged.

The club owns its building, which is free from incumbrances, has a membership of six hundred women, with a waiting list of more than fifty.

There are five departments, which have had programs of high order during the last season. These departments, with their chairman, are the art and literature, under Mrs. Sumner Mason; the child and home, under Mrs. Lafayette Cozzens; the civics and legislation, under Mrs. H. C. West; the civics and philanthropy, under Mrs. Arthur J. Dixon; and the music, under Mrs. Herbert Mulford.

During the last season the philanthropy department has made more than 1,800 garments, and has sewed for the St. Francis juvenile home, the Cook county hospital, the Infant Welfare society, the Lake Bluff orphanage, the Marh B. homes, the Little Wanderers day nursery, and the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial lodging house.

This department also has sponsored the economy shop, which is maintained at Greenleaf avenue and East Railroad. Here all sorts of donated articles are sold, and all money obtained is divided among the various charities.

Mrs. John Boddie is editor of the club bulletin which is printed four times during the club year.

The civics department, in charge of Mrs. J. G. Wray, organized during the last year the Wilmette branch of the Illinois League of Women Voters, which is considered one of the most active children of this organization.

New officers, elected at last week's annual meeting, are: Mrs. Nathan P. Colwell, president; Mrs. Hayes McKinney and Mrs. G. W. Kibby, vice presidents; Mrs. J. W. Fisher Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. Ralph Huff, corresponding secretary; Mrs. David Anderson, treasurer.

Mrs. Curtis L. Sleeper is president of the Woodlawn Study club, which has closed its active season. Principal subjects of interest in the club's calendar are famous authors and parliamentary law.

The Dorothy Kahn club for crippled children, of which Mrs. Murray Miller is president, will hold its annual spring card party on May 17 at the Drake, the proceeds to be used toward a fund to establish a convalescent home for crippled children. Mrs. Harry A. Stine is chairman of the party.

Mrs. R. E. Pattison Kline is the retiring president of the Wilmette Woman's club, which has made great strides under her leadership. Mrs. Kline also is secretary of the Conference of Club Presidents and program chairman of Chicago.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

THE state officer was chuckling to herself when she came to the club lunch table.

"Share it," invited the ex-president.

"I just met a member who seriously informed me that the interest in women's clubs was on the wane," complied the state officer. "I told her I'd visited hundreds of clubs during the last few years and, as far as I could see, the attendance was never greater; that the membership in the individual club was growing larger all the time, and that there are more clubs now than ever before. I added that I'd been at a north side club yesterday where out of 300 members 250 were present, and that the day before I spoke before a meeting of at least 400—the full membership was 500—and that last week I attended a luncheon where over a thousand club women were present."

"What did the Calamity Jane say to that?" asked the committee chairman.

"She remembered an important engagement to which she had to hurry."

"The scope of the woman's club has been so greatly enlarged that a woman must be indeed limited in her interests if she can't find one that appeals to her," voiced the ex-president.

"I was struck by that fact when I was looking over some federation directories, recently," stated the secretary. "Besides the usual cultural, and social, and philanthropic clubs, there are professional women's clubs. I noted even a dental women's club, nature lovers' clubs, travel, civic, political, patriotic, social service, domestic science clubs, and conference groups. I can't conceive of a woman so dumb that she wouldn't find some point of contact among them."

The club rhymester rolled her eyes to the ceiling and recited:

Breathes there the dame with soul so dead
Who never to herself hath said,
This is my own, my woman's club!

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

MRS. PETER JOHN MADSEN. [Daguerre Photo.] MRS. ALBERT A. ANDERSON. [Daguerre Photo.]

The marriage of Miss Estelle Sauter to Peter John Madsen of Park Ridge and of Miss Florence Sauter to Albert A. Anderson took place on April 15 and was followed by a reception at the Cooper-Carlton hotel. Mrs. Madsen and Mrs. Anderson are daughters of Leonard J. Sauter of 5916 Normal boulevard.

cultivated Chicagoite. Matthew Arnold is reported to have said, on his tour of this country in the late eighties of the last century, that in and around Cambridge, Mass. they spoke better English than anywhere in England. But then he was making himself agreeable and receiving, in consequence, an enormous amount of hospitality.

The week has been of a decidedly French tinge. It was only a coincidence, however, that made Mrs. William C. Hubbard give her delightful little musical last Tuesday afternoon when the folk songs of France, the old melodies of Provence and Brittany, were the main part of the program. Miss Minna Hager, the Symphony orchestra string quartette and Mrs. Hubbard herself at the piano provided the music. It was a real musical treat, one of the choice musical hours that come occasionally even in this bustling, clamorous not overcultivated community of ours.

About sixty guests were present, among them such recognized lovers and connoisseurs of music as Mrs. Mason Bross, Mrs. Parmelee McFadden, Mrs. James W. Morrisson, Mrs. John E. May and Mrs. Arthur Small. If I should mention the rest of the guests as if they were of a different class, it would be doing them a slight injustice, so I will not commit this error.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent, either of the bride or the bridegroom. Announcements should reach the society editor not later than the Wednesday morning preceding the Sunday they are to be published.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Callaghan of Wilmette announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth Marie, to Archibald Richard Houle, son of James P. Houle of Chicago.

The marriage is announced of Miss Helen L. Kane, daughter of Mrs. Edward Eaton Kane, to John Cyril Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Peters of Exeter, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Peters will reside at 2750 Logan boulevard.

Miss Florence Lenore Ruh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Ruh, was married on April 17 to Charles E. Kehm, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Kehm of Lake View.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Cassell Richards of 5907 Winthrop avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Katherine Irene, to Cecil James Duff Stevens, which took place on April 18. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens will reside at 535 Michigan avenue, Evanston.

Mr. and Mrs. George Abbott Kinney of 7710 Marquette avenue announce the marriage on last Monday of their daughter, Anne Abbott, to Albert Robert Hauser. Mr. and Mrs. Hauser will reside after May 15 at 7654 Marquette avenue.

ALMCO Plated Lamps

SINCE their introduction a few months ago, Almco Plated Lamps have become the most important fashion of many seasons. These new plated effects are completely superseding other types of finish. They are unusually attractive in their reproductions of antique and bright gold, silver, French bronze, English brass and Swedish iron.

Each lamp is designed as a single unit, with the shade harmonizing in line and coloring with the dainty, slender all-metal base. Prices for these new and exclusive styles are so moderate that it will pay you to secure several from our present showing.

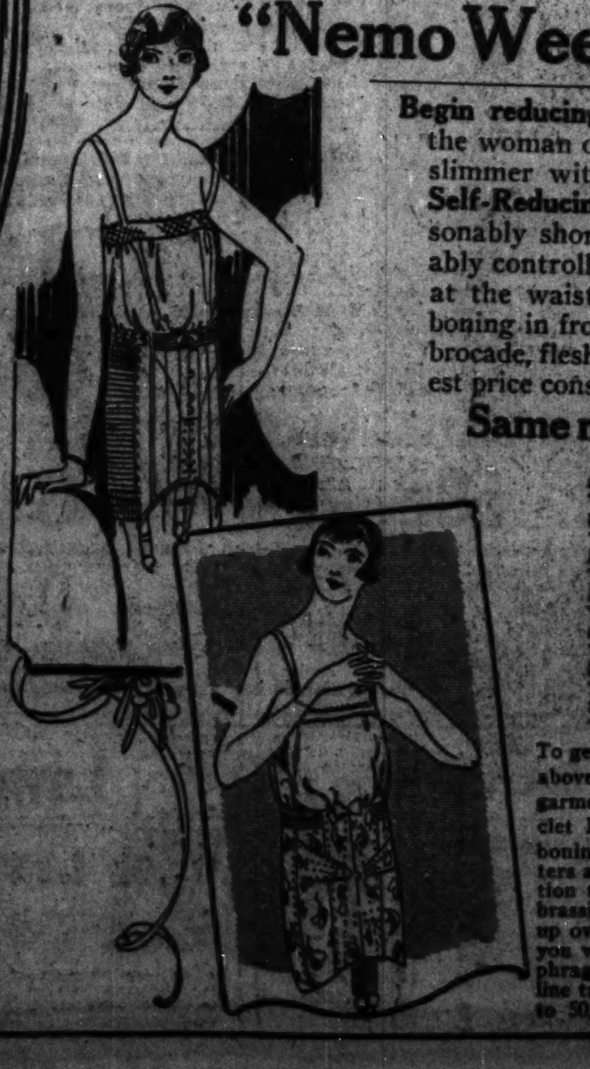
"Nemo Week" and the Anniversary Sale

—Third Floor—Dearborn Street—



Begin reducing by wearing a Nemo-Flex. Model 656 is just the corset for the woman of medium figure who wishes to look slimmer and to become slimmer without the aid of exercise and diet. It has the famous Nemo Self-Reducing Straps, which help rid the figure of excess flesh in a reasonably short time, and in it the figure is gracefully moulded and comfortably controlled; its low top and elastic inserts allow comfort at the waist-line; lightly boned throughout and clustered boning in front to control the diaphragm; the material is firm brocade, flesh color, as illustrated; in sizes to 38, at a very modest price considering quality, at.......................... 6.50

Same model as above made of firm coutil, at 5.00

Nemo-Flex, Model 1019, closed back style; it is marvelous what a straight line it gives in the back; made with the famous vario-elastic that gives more at the top and bottom than in the center, holding the hips and abdomen firmly, but very flexible at top and bottom; this corset gives no control above the waistline. Sizes to 38, as illustrated......... $10

To get the much wanted straightline effect above the waist, most women require a garment that controls and remoulds—Circlet No. 2524 is such a model; note the boning over the diaphragm and the garters at the side that give an added reduction to the diaphragm and also keep the brassiere from slipping up over top of corset; if you want a reduced diaphragm and neat waistline try this model; sizes to 50, at 2.50

Nemo-Flex Style 10-350, as illustrated, is a wonderful slenderizer, to be worn with tub frocks. They beautify and mould the figure. Their special feature is the way they control and slenderize the abdomen; wide section of elastic at side, reinforced across lower back and other places where there is danger of stretching; sizes, bust measure, 34 to 48, special at...... 3.50

ART AND ARTISTS

Water Colors at Institute Rival Spring's Gay Hues

By Eleanor Jewett.

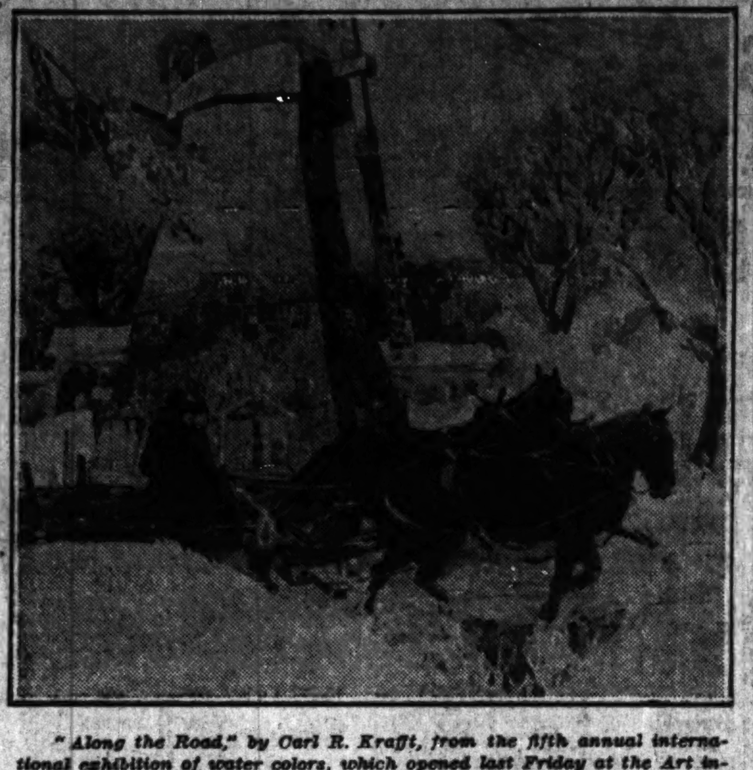
SPRING calls. A flood of color sweeps the world. Meadows and orchards, hills and valleys, tree, shrub and weed hear the call, and while they yet turn in their long winter sleep, the flood is upon them, drowning them, warming them, reviving them, and tossing them—newly born—out upon earth's broad bosom to decorate her kindled spirit with their fresh beauty. Spring waves a magic wand. From its tip run saucy flowers and swelling buds; from its shaft echo the songs of mating birds; from its sun golden handle sparkle and glimmer the sweet tears of gentle showers and the rainbow smiles of shy young summer.

Color floods the world. Color floods, too, the pictures which, row on row and room on room, just at present make gay the east wing galleries of the Art institute, where, on Friday, there opened the Fifth Annual International Exhibition of Water Colors. There are five hundred and thirty-five water colors—to be for a moment mathematically prosaic—in the exhibit. They have been drawn together from numerous sources. England is represented by fourteen pictures from such artists as Muirhead Bone, Frank Brangwyn, R. J. Enright Moony, and C. R. MacIntosh.

From Germany have been sent about thirty water colors, and several of the artists represented are familiar names to us because of having enjoyed their work in previous exhibitions. Among them may be counted Claus Bergen, the well known painter of marines; Raoul Frank, Adolf Munzer, Tony Binder, Josef Ebers, and Hugo Koeselitz. There are groups of notable paintings from Norway and Sweden, Scotland and Hungary.

Our own artists have contributed generously to the excellence of the exhibit. The best among our water colorists are represented. Frank W. Benson has five pictures, George Elmer Browne eight, John F. Carlson two, John E. Costigan two, Helena Stevens five, Randall Davey five, Arthur B. Davies shows a fascinating group of twenty-seven paintings, done chiefly in the Chateau district of France and Switzerland. Edith Emerson, the daughter of Prof. Alfred E. Emerson, formerly of the Art institute staff, has sent two water colors from her home in Philadelhpia. George Pearse Ennis is represented by eleven interesting scenes from the Atlantic coast.

So it goes. One could catalogue the various offerings indefinitely. Mention should be made of the ballet girls by Louis Kronberg. Something of Degas and Manet flickers in their diaphanous skirts and lights even their regrettable avoirdupois.



"Along the Road," by Carl R. Krafft, from the fifth annual international exhibition of water colors, which opened last Friday at the Art institute. The exhibit is hung in the east wing galleries, and is a gay and joyous affair. It will remain on view until June 4.

There are three marines by Hayley Lever and two by Phillip Little. Edward H. Potthast has a gorgeous bathing scene with luscious lavender lights in his sea, a scene that recalls, though it differs from, his painting of children playing on the beach, that, in its print form, has proved itself a great delight upon nursery walls. Anna Lynch is represented by a colorful Paris scene. Frederick V. Poole of the Art institute school faculty, shows four paintings of great pictorial value.

Among the other artists that may be mentioned in this more or less categorical summing up of the water color exhibition are Felicia Waldo Howell, Joseph Pennell, Bertha Merzler Peyton, Maurice Prendergast—and, by the way, these water colors of Mr. Prendergast threw a much more entrancing light upon his talent than did his oil paintings in the recent one man show of his work held at the Art institute in honor of his memory. Those appeared old fashioned and rather like tawdry tapestries; the water colors are fresh and gay and original—Chauncey F. Ryder, Flora Schoenfeld, Salcia Bahne, Ben Silbert, William Starkweather, Thomas E. Tallmadge, Edward Buk Ulreich, Dudley Crafts Watson, Rudolph Weisenborn, Mahouri Young, J. Scott Williams, Alice Schille, and Charles H. Richert.

There also opened last Friday at the Art institute an exhibit of sculpture by the Jugo-Slav sculptor Mestrovic. He has been heralded as one of the greatest contemporary artists. Rodin, to quote but one famous opinion concerning him, wrote, in description of him, the phrase "The greatest phenomenon among the sculptors of the world." From his achieved position in the world of art, a serious study of his work is almost a necessity.

The sculpture by Mestrovic and the exhibition of water colors will remain on view at the Art institute until June 4.

The Tenth Annual Art exhibit opened on Friday at the Chicago College club. Ralph Clarkson, one of Chicago's most prominent painters of portraits, opened the exhibit, and Anita Willetts Burnham, a painter of charming sketches and pictures centering chiefly about children, spoke on her trip abroad where she went, attended, as her title implied, by "A Paint Box and a Family of Six." The exhibit will be open a week.

The Annual Exhibition of the School of the Art institute will be held from Friday, June 12, to Wednesday, July 8, inclusive. During this same period, the Annual Art Students' league exhibition will be held at the institute.

The Art Students' league of the school of the Art institute voted recently to use the proceeds of the Thirtieth Annual Mardi Gras ball, held last Feb. 11, to complete a fully endowed annual tuition scholarship to be known as the "Art Students' League scholarship."

The work of the Saturday classes of the junior department in the School of the Art institute has been placed on exhibit in the children's room, in gallery 1, on the main floor of the museum building, and will continue there through May. Miss Matilda Vanderpoel is in charge.

Miss Vanderpoel will sail from Montreal in June for a summer in Europe. Two weeks in Oxford and the Shakespeare country will be followed by ten days in Holland, her native country. From there her journey will take her to Belgium, France, Switzerland, and Italy. Miss Frances Badger will accompany Miss Vanderpoel.

The afternoon of May 11, at 2:30 o'clock, in Fullerton hall, Mr. Watson will have for his subject, "The Garden and Its Furniture"; on May 18 the topic will be "Summer Fashions and the Human Figure," and on May 25 he will lecture on the delightful theme of "Summer Recreation."

Three prizes are being awarded in the current exhibition of water colors at the Art institute: the Brown and Bigelow purchase prize of $500, the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan prize of $200, and the William H. Tuthill prize of $100.

"The Art of Etching," by E. S. Lumsden, published by J. B. Lippincott company, is the new volume in their "New Art Library." It is a splendid guide to the vigorous art of etching. From an account of the process, the author goes on to deal with the great etchers of the world, from the earliest to the men contemporary today. He gives his history in an interesting as well as instructive way. There are over two hundred illustrations to amplify the text. It is a book no student or lover of prints should be without.

or other conditions which endanger life. Put your system into shape to combat disease. Bring your vitality up to a standard which means longer life, greater enjoyment in living and ability to forge ahead to greater success. You owe it to yourself to feel fit and look your best at all times.

is not a laxative or beverage, but a pleasant tasting natural spring water from California, and is so richly impregnated with alkaline minerals that it is taken only in small doses of a wineglassful at a time. It acts by neutralizing the acid poisons in the blood, and thus removes the cause of High Blood Pressure.

For Example: One user writes us "I feel thirty years younger since taking Witter Water; am working as hard and making more money than at 50 years of age. I am 70 years old." This man's blood pressure was reduced from 205 in March of 1922 to 136 in Oct. 1922, and it has remained right around that point since.

THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE - - - Edited by Prof. J. Arthur Thomson

THE BRAIN CELLS.

THE brain, the organ of mind itself, is composed of cells. The cells of the brain and spinal cord undergo, perhaps, the most remarkable development of all. Originally in the embryo they are of simple and rounded form, and like other cells they develop outgrowths, usually two in number, which often grow to great lengths and may branch repeatedly. Of the finest terminal branches, some come into contact with the cells of the muscles and glands, others with the cells of sense organs like the eye and ear or the touch spots in the skin, others with similar outgrowth of other nerve cells. In this way every organ in the body is linked up with every other, through the mediation of a living telephone system formed by chains of nerve cells and their outgrowths. The usual motor nerve cell (i. e., a nerve cell concerned in sending messages to muscles and glands) has a short outgrowth within the spinal cord, whose branches connect with the branches of several other nerve cells of different sorts, but the characteristic feature is a very long nerve fiber leading to the muscle concerned. This, in the case of the nerve supplying the muscle of the foot, may be several feet in length. The most extraordinary cells in the body are probably those in the fore brain, or main part of the fore brain, in the layer which is the seat of the process of thought.

Finally, the act of reproduction itself is carried out by special cells which are formed in the reproduction organs and set free when mature. In early stages both types of reproductive cells have the same rounded form and large nucleus. But, while the female cell or ovum remains rounded, and increases enormously in size by the accumulation within itself of yolk grains as reserve food material, the male cells remain small and finally become transformed into spermatozoa. The nucleus condenses and elongates to form the so-called head, and the rest of the cell is pulled out to form a long, actively vibrating tail, by means of which the sperm propels itself and eventually, it may be, reaches the ovum.

Body a Huge Cell State.

Cells are for the most part quite microscopic in size. Human red blood corpuscles, for instance, are so tiny that, in the volume of blood equal to a cube one millimetre each way (about 1-15,000 of a cubic inch), some five millions of them are floating—roughly, the population of London. As the amount of blood in an average man amounts to about seven pounds by weight, this figure must be multiplied about three million times to give the total number of red corpuscles in the body; a similar figure would be found for other sorts of cells.

The body is thus, in one sense, a huge cell state, with a cell population thousands of times larger than the total human population of the world. A single act of thought involves the coöperation of a vast multitude of brain cells; a single movement of a limb implies the contraction of thousands of muscle cells, a single beat of the heart sends billions of blood cells whirling down the dark pipes that we call blood vessels. Each of these cells is a unit of life, comparable in some respects to a single free living cell, such as an amœba or a slipper animalcule. The enforcement of harmony and coöperation among such a vast multitude of units is the greatest achievement of evolving life. How necessary such enforcement is, and yet how difficult, is shown by the effects of cell insubordination, as in cancer and malignant growths. In cancer a few cells embark upon a career of unchecked growth and multiplication at the expense of the rest, and by so doing involve themselves and the rest of the cell community in the common ruin of death.

Reproduction.

One of the fundamental attributes of living matter—perhaps the most fundamental of all—is its capacity for assimilation, for building up into its own complex likeness the simpler chemical compounds by which it is surrounded. What is more, in all primitive forms of life, assimilation is more rapid than its converse—new living molecules are constructed and put into place in the organism faster than the old ones are used up; the result is growth.

But to increase in size is to increase volume faster than surface, and this is, metaphorically speaking, to increase your population faster than you increase your import and export facilities.

The difficulties inherent in large size are felt by life in all its forms; as a matter of fact, the evolution of higher from lower forms abounds in devices for overcoming these difficulties.

The lowest forms of life, however, have never seriously faced the problem. As soon as the inconveniences of growth are felt, they are surmounted by the simple process of division into two halves, or, as it is technically called, of binary fission. Bacteria, unicellular animals and plants, and the cells of which the bodies of higher, multicellular organisms are built multiply almost without exception by this method.

It will be seen that sex does not enter into this simplest and most obvious method of reproduction; furthermore, no substance is lost in the process; the one whole simply divides into halves, which then are reorganized into two new wholes.

However, as soon as multicellular animals and plants had been evolved the sexual process inevitably became associated with reproduction. The sexual process implies the union of two single cells into one, and thus to effect it two cells must be detached from the multicellular animals to which they belong, and the cell produced by their union must multiply and grow into a new many celled individual.

A sexual process, however, does occur in many unicellular animals. In such as the Slipper Animalcule, for instance, the asexual reproduction by fission will take place once or twice a day, and may continue for a great number of generations through weeks or months or even years. At intervals however, this cycle or unlimited multiplication is broken by what is called conjugation. Individuals come together, mouth to mouth, in pairs; their fluid internal substance comes in contact through their mouths; a complicated division of their nuclei (which, as we have seen in a previous chapter, are the bearers of hereditary qualities) occurs; and finally one nucleus from either member of the pair travels across and unites with a stationary nucleus in the other member. Thereafter the two separate, and embark upon a new sexual cycle of fission.

A similar process occurs in most, perhaps in all, unicellular animals and plants; only in the bacteria, which can hardly be styled cells, does it seem to be universally absent.

Conjugation is the simplest form in which we find the sexual process. Two facts merit remark. First, we see that sexual fusion need not involve difference of sex; the two gametes, as the cells are called which unite during the process, may be alike. Secondly, we see that sex is primitively not associated with reproduction.

In multicellular animals, however, the gametes are always of two different sorts, the male gametes or spermatozoa, and the female gametes or ova. The former are almost always very small, intensely active, and consist almost entirely of a head which contains the condensed nucleus, and a tail, by whose movements they swim. The latter are large, often very large, cells, and have sacrificed their motility in favor of the storing up of reserve

THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

Edited by Prof. J. Arthur Thomson

material for the use of the embryo which is to grow out of them.

When multicellular animals have reached a considerable size and length of life they can produce the microscopic gametes in enormous quantities and for long periods; a female sea urchin produces annually about as many eggs as there are human beings in London; and the number of sperms produced by any of the higher animals during its lifetime is considerably greater, not only than the whole present population of the world but than the total number of human beings that can have existed since man first appeared upon the earth. In such animals, therefore, the only form of reproduction is sexual.

In smaller and shorter lived multicellular animals, however, sexual reproduction is still attended by certain drawbacks; only a few eggs can be produced at a time by a small female; and if the necessity for fathers could be done away with, twice as many individuals could be engaged in producing offspring. When, therefore, animals are too complex for fission or budding, and too small for the full advantages of sexual reproduction to be felt, still another form of propagation, known as parthenogenesis, is often to be found.

Mothers but No Fathers.

Parthenogenesis consists in this, that an egg develops without uniting with a sperm. In order to make sure of the fusion of nuclei which is the essential of sexual reproduction, eggs are usually rendered incapable of developing without some stimulus afforded by the sperm's entry. Parthenogenetic eggs need no stimulus and start to develop as soon as mature; so that once more, but in another form, we find reproduction as a special case of unlimited growth. Parthenogenesis is found in such creatures as plant lice [Aphides] and a good many other insects, water fleas, and wheel animalcules, which all reproduce by its means throughout the summer and only produce males in the autumn; and as we shall see later it can be artificially provoked in many other forms of life. A drone bee, too, develops from an unfertilized egg; it has a mother, but no father; whereas the queens and workers arise from fertilized eggs.

To sum up, we may say that reproduction is always the result of growth, and always must be the separation of one part of an organism from the rest. As life evolves, the part separated, at first equal to the rest of the organism, becomes proportionately smaller and smaller; and the sexual process, at first antagonistic to reproduction, becomes associated with it, at first in part and finally altogether.

Regeneration.

The power of unlimited growth is at the bottom not only of ordinary reproduction but of regeneration as well.

If we take a single cell animal and cut it into two or into many parts, each part, providing it is above a certain minimum size and contains the whole or part of the nucleus, will readjust itself until it is once more in a state of equilibrium—in other words, until it is of the normal shape and structure of the species. Furthermore, the miniature animals thus produced, unlike the miniature drop of mercury, are capable of growth; so that in these simple forms regeneration is the necessary outcome of the two faculties of reorganization and growth.

Even in many multicellular animals, a similar unlimited power of regeneration is to be found. Any piece of the stem of a polyp, any fragment of a Planarian flat worm, will in almost all cases reorganize itself into a new whole.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS · WORLD

has a property valued at $60,000 and expects soon to build a new church building. Only one other Congregational church in the United States, it is said, exceeded the growth of the North Shore church during the fifteen years of Dr. Ainslie's pastorate.

The Fourth Congregational church, Talman avenue, near Logan boulevard, the Rev. Frederick E. Stillwell, pastor, is in a campaign to raise money for a $75,000 church, to take the place of one recently destroyed by fire. The intention is to build a much better church than the one destroyed, with facilities for a gymnasium and for religious education. The campaign began Friday and will extend over next Sunday.

The Lutheran A Cappela choir of Augustana college and the Tri-Cities of Davenport, Rock Island and Moline will give a concert next Friday evening at Orchestra hall, under auspices of the woman's missionary society of the Augustana synod. Numbers from Bach, Haydn and Handel will be sung.

Clifford W. Barnes, president of the Sunday Evening club, has returned after a two months' absence, and will speak this evening at 7 o'clock on "Pilgrim's Progress." At 8 o'clock, Rabbi Nathan Krass of New York City will speak on "Pigeonholing Religion."

The corner stone of the chapel of the House of the Good Shepherd will be laid this afternoon. The Illinois Club of Catholic Women has devoted itself to raising funds for this cause.

The Rev. Leon Arpee was installed last Wednesday evening as pastor of Marquette Park Presbyterian church, 65th street and California avenue.

Construction of the Episcopal chapel of St. John the Divine at the University of Illinois will begin May 24, when ground will be broken. Bishop Anderson of Chicago will make the principal address. The chapel will be the first unit in a $400,000 church plant. A. F. Hope of Messiah is the new president of the Episcopal Church club of Chicago.

An interesting scene took place at the Thoburn Methodist Episcopal church following the opening address by United States Senator Charles S. Deneen and a sermon by Bishop Edwin H. Hughes on the subject, "Honor Thy Father and Mother," when the senator's son, Charles Asley Deneen, cashier of the West Englewood National bank, and his wife, united with the church. Dr. J. H. DeLacy, the pastor, was in general charge.

Services today at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. will be held in a tribute to fathers at the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 6359 South Marshfield avenue. The Rev. Clinton C. Cox will speak. The Ogden Lodge and Ogden Boy Builders will be guests.

The Rev. Philip W. MacDonald will be installed today as rector of St. Martin's Episcopal church, Waller avenue and Midway park, as successor of the Rev. Harry More Babin.

The church advertising department of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World will be held in Houston, Tex., May 9-12. Among the speakers from Chicago will be W. Frank McClure, Congregational church, and the Rev. J. T. B. Smith, secular press publicity, world service, Methodist Episcopal church.

A training course under the auspices of the Baptist Young People's union will begin today at 3 p. m. at North Shore Baptist church, Lakewood and Berwyn avenues, and continue evenings through next Sunday. T. C. Gardner, state secretary of Texas, will speak today. A class in Baptist principles will be taught by Dr. Herbert W. Virgin, pastor of the church.

The thirty-fourth annual convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America will be held at Indianapolis July 8 to 12.

Lieut. Col. Fletcher Agnew and Mrs. Agnew of the Salvation Army were given a farewell reception last Wednesday evening at the New England Congregational church. They go to New York City, and Col. John Bond of Melbourne, Australia, comes to Chicago to take Lieut. Col. Agnew's place.

W. R. Mee, executive secretary of the Chicago Church Federation, reports that the additions to the churches of the federation at Easter totaled 51,596. Of these, 60 per cent came into the church on profession of faith. The Lutherans received the largest number and the Methodists the second largest total.

"Madam, you are being slowly poisoned by your bedspring!"

DOCTORS now definitely recognize that there is a poison of fatigue—a poison just as insidious in its effects as a germ poison or a chemical poison—and it works the same way. Many of the ills that drag women down, and men too, are due to nothing but improper, restless, distorted sleep, that slowly adds to the poisons of fatigue.

For improper sleep clogs the system with this poison. Sagging bedsprings distort the bodily organs and keep them from clearing the system of these poisons each night as nature intended.

How different each day becomes—how much more vim and energy one can feel, when each night is filled with deep, restful, health-restoring sleep, on a genuine Rome Quality De Luxe, The Bedspring Luxurious. No more distorted spines or tortured nerves, when you sleep on the Rome De Luxe! No more cramped muscles and compressed bodily organs. The Rome De Luxe Bedspring is scientifically designed to support every part of the body, accurately—in such a way that the spine is straight, the muscles relaxed, and deep, wholesome sleep is the blessed result.

You can well afford to discard all your old, sagging bedsprings—just as you would rid your home of any other source of poison—and replace them with genuine Rome Quality De Luxe Bedsprings. These bedsprings are so honestly and substantially built that they keep their resilience for a lifetime. You will find them most economical to buy—sold and endorsed by good dealers everywhere.

SALESMAN—

A large manufacturer of nationally known felt base linoleum type floor covering with branch office and warehouse in Chicago can use four of the higher type of salesmen in rearranging and redistricting its Iowa, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Illinois territory.

They are particularly interested in the kind of man who shows possibilities of developing into a branch or district manager after possibly a year's successful experience on the road, and will consider only applicants who can show a successful sales record in small towns, as this company solicits business from every general merchandise, hardware and furniture dealer, regardless of the size of the city, town, village or hamlet in which he may be located.

While experience in floor coverings will be considered an advantage, it is not essential, as each candidate is given a thorough training in sales procedure before being sent out with the District Sales Manager, who will show him for several days on the territory to which he will be assigned that the earning possibilities for a real producer are larger in this field than in the majority of merchandising propositions.

Each candidate is paid a stipulated amount at the end of his first week's training period on the road to cover his expenses, whether he is kept on or not. Thereafter, he receives weekly, full commissions on his personal sales, and once a month full commissions on mail orders.

Don't apply unless you own an automobile, preferably of the smaller coupe type, and feel confident that your sales record will bear the closest scrutiny and entitles you to consideration.

The Vice President of this company will arrive in Chicago Saturday morning, May 2d, and will interview applicants for a few days. Call Lafayette 6944 for appointment.

The territory now open is capable of yielding from $6,000 to $15,000 annually. The successful candidate will be paid the same commission on renewal of existing contracts in that territory as on new business and will naturally be required to travel.

These lots have been taken out of a beautiful natural park, a portion of which has been retained and will be shared by the property owners in this addition.

Owing to the great activity in this property, the present low prices cannot be maintained much longer. Beautiful 50 ft. lots are still available at $400, and terms can be arranged.

The lots are within the city limits of Geneva, on the river, and above the city. Aurora and Elgin electric runs thru the addition, and affords excellent transportation to Chicago with 17c fare. Good schools and churches are at hand. A home on a lot like these would be a joy to you. Let us take you out or come out yourself today, or by appointment.

Take the Geneva car to Dodson-st., or, by auto, take Roosevelt-rd. to Geneva, turn north along the east side of river, and go 3 blocks to the subdivision.

FRANKLIN

Remember!

A Car's Value Involves How It Is Built and What It Will Do

A Franklin Roadster built in 1910 and driven continuously for 15 years has just come into our possession. It still operates smoothly and quietly, gives the same easy riding characteristic only of the Franklin, and even today is better from a mechanical standpoint than many new water cooled 1925 four and six cylinder cars offered the public. A car's value involves how it is built and what it will do! Consider the Franklin before you buy any car. Match its performance, easy riding and roadability with any you have been considering and then come down here prepared to get the best automobile value in the world.

Here's a custom built Town Limousine that words canont describe. It is very near new—in fact, we doubt if you could distinguish it from new. Color combination is Brewster Green and Black. Interior and mechanism flawless. With its custom built body cost in excess of $9,500. See this smart looking car at once. REALTY MEN IN PART OF STATE CALLED PIRATES

Joseph K. Brittain Raps Unethical Brokers.

BY AL CHASE.

Characterizing a certain class of real estate brokers operating in a county of Illinois as pirates who are a discredit to the legitimate real estate brokerage business and who will bear watching, Joseph K. Brittain, secretary of the Real Estate Brokers' License committee of Illinois, paid his respects to crooked realty men in general in a speech delivered before the realty class of the Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce, conducted by the Chicago Real Estate board.

"In that part of the state we find that the public has lost confidence in the real estate brokers," said Mr. Brittain. "Real estate brokers are having uphill work to make a living. They have poor standing in the community; they are quarreling among themselves largely because they are unethical.

Good Will a Valuable Asset.

"Now suppose, on the other hand, they were honest both with the seller and the purchaser, thereby enjoying the confidence of the public and their fellow brokers, you readily can see that their volume of business would be much greater and that their good will would be a valuable asset, and that the broker would soon accumulate sufficient capital to enable him to deal in property himself and purchase in the market at prices which, when he was ready to sell, would entitle him to a profit.

"On the other hand, where these brokers are following the practice of milking a customer, they never get beyond a bare living, with little opportunity of accumulating real estate or building up prestige.

Licenses Revoked.

"In other words, they are looked upon as pirates and are a discredit to the legitimate real estate brokerage business and will bear watching. The real estate committee on quite a number of cases of this kind has recommended that licenses be revoked.

"Retaining earnest money held by the broker in escrow for the purpose of forcing a settlement of a commission is a practice which frequently brings a broker before the real estate brokers' license committee and unfortunately hurts his credit and involves him in a very disagreeable controversy. During the last year, to the knowledge of the department of registration and education, escrow money settlements have been made to the amount of approximately $100,000.

Unable to Make Accounting.

"There have been a number of cases where brokers have spent the earnest money held by them in escrow and they have been unable to make an accounting. There have been a number of these cases tried before the committee and the brokers' licenses have been revoked.

"Taking commissions from both purchaser and seller or taking commissions from the seller when in fact employed by the purchaser are unethical practices. Under the real estate brokers' act 'acting for more than one party in a transaction without knowledge of all parties for whom he acts' is unlawful."

Mr. Brittain concluded his address with this bit of good advice to the realty man: "No broker should find himself in a position wherein there'll be any question as to his conduct morally, provided he hopes to hold the confidence of the public."

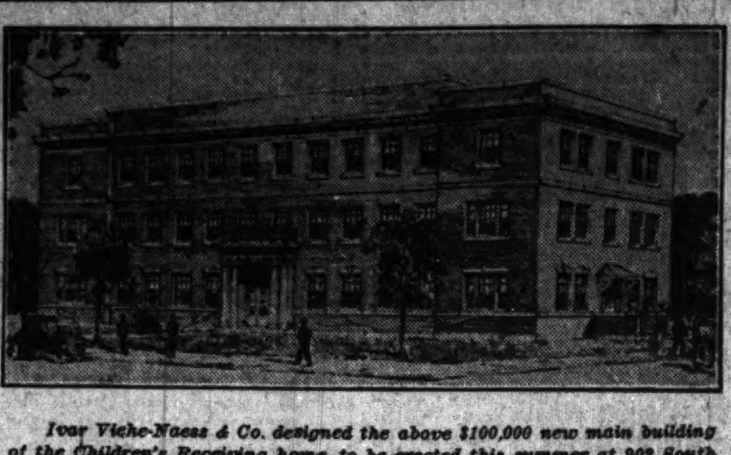
WEST SIDE LEASES.

The DeLaval Separator company has leased the entire eighth floor of the Otis Elevator building, Jefferson and Jackson, containing 13,000 sq. ft., for ten years from May 1, at a term rental reported by Robert White & Co., who negotiated the deal, to be $170,000.

DEARBORN STREET LEASE.

M. Berliner has leased the store at 8 North Dearborn, in the Grant hotel building, from Leonard Hicks, for a term of years at $6,000 annually, through the Brownlee Realty company. The lease will operate a men's furnishing shop.

Lutheran Children's Home, Maywood



Ivar Viehe-Naess & Co. designed the above $100,000 new main building of the Children's Receiving home, to be erected this summer at 902 South 8th avenue, Maywood. This is the first unit of a group of three buildings to cover an entire block. It will be 110x48 and will contain a reception room, dining room, kitchen, boys' workshop, girls' sewing room, playroom, kindergarten, study rooms, small dormitories for two children each, and larger dormitories for six youngsters. The building will accommodate between sixty and seventy children.

The institution is sponsored and directed by the Lutheran Woman's league of Chicago and vicinity, an organization of the United Lutheran Church of America. The home is for the shelter and maintenance of dependent children. Mrs. Edwin J. Mosser is president of the league.

Invest According to Your Individual Needs.

Each individual investor should have in mind his own particular needs before purchasing a security. Some securities which are entirely suitable for one person may be unsuited to the needs and circumstances of another.

A person who is solely dependent for a living on the income from his or her investments requires a very high degree of safety, whereas a business man, or one who is earning an income independently of his investments, may be justified in putting his surplus funds into something that is not quite so safe, but which offers a larger rate of return.

In choosing a security suited to his individual requirements, one should determine just what those requirements are. It frequently happens that an investor pays a larger price than necessary or accepts a lower rate of return because he is purchasing a security with qualities that he does not need.

The three principal qualities usually looked for in a security are safety, marketability, and tax exemption. Of these, safety is the most important, and is required, to a fairly high degree at least, by all investors.

Some investors are so situated that they may need to convert their holdings into cash on short notice. It is necessary, therefore, that they have securities with a ready marketability. A great many investors, on the other hand, buy securities to hold until maturity and have no desire to sell them earlier. These people do not need a readily marketable security, and as one pays a higher price for such securities (the element of safety being equal) than for those which have not a ready market, they are paying extra for something which is of no use to them.

Tax exemption is also a quality that is of great importance to some individuals and of little or no importance to others. The man who has a large taxable income may find that tax exempt securities yielding 4 or 4½ per cent will net him more than taxable securities yielding 6 per cent or more. The individual whose taxable income is small, however, may derive no benefit from tax exempt securities, or at least the benefit may not be at all commensurate with the sacrifice in yield he must undergo in purchasing such securities. One pays for tax exemption by high price and low yield, and it is wasting money to do this if one does not need it.

One should consider these things before investing and determine just what he needs and what he does not, so that he will not be paying extra for elements which are of no use to him.

On Wednesday at noon the first meeting of the Architects' club was held in the clubhouse. John J. Glessner, who has agreed to give his residence at the southwest corner of Prairie and 18th, to the architects, was a guest of honor and was elected an honorary member of the club, of which Mr. Fox is president.

All the regular meetings of the Illinois society, the Chicago chapter, and the Architects' club will be held in the clubhouse.

PLAN $1,000,000 PLAYHOUSE ON SHERIDAN ROAD

Aschers Buy Mission Tea Room Property.

Plans are being drawn by Architect J. E. O. Pridmore for a $1,000,000 theater and store building to be erected on the west side of Sheridan road, 400 feet north of Irving Park boulevard by Ascher Brothers.

This will be on the site of the old Mission Tearoom at 4048 Sheridan road and will occupy ground fronting 128 feet on the boulevard with a depth of 194 feet to the alley. The new playhouse, as yet unnamed, will seat 2,880, so it is claimed.

Mr. Cormack of Ready, Cormack & Strauss, who negotiated the purchase by the Aschers, recently bought the site for $128,000 from the Frank J. Kelly estate and resold it to the present owners at a reported $143,000.

The building will have six stores, with offices on the second floor. The theater will have a completely equipped stage and the Aschers will give a program of pictures and vaudeville. It will open about Jan. 1.

DESIGNS CHURCH TO REPLACE ONE PLANNED BY DAD

John N. Tilton, the Son, Is Architect.

It isn't often a son gets a chance to design a church to replace one designed for the same congregation by his father several decades before. The late John N. Tilton was architect for Emmanuel church of La Grange. It was built at the southwest corner of Elm and Kensington avenues many years ago. It was considered one of the most attractive religious edifices in the state.

Last December it burned. Now Mr. Tilton's son, who bears the same name, John N. Tilton, associated with Marshall & Fox, has designed a new Emmanuel church, as shown in a nearby column.

Work will start as soon as the wreckage of the old church can be cleared away, probably in about two weeks. The new church will seat 450. Dr. Irvine Goddard is rector. F. M. Sayre of La Grange is chairman of the building committee and is senior warden of the parish.

Arrow Mill Company Plans $400,000 West Side Plant

The Arrow Mill company, makers of storage battery separators, have had plans drawn by Sidney Minchin for a $400,000 plant, the first unit of which will cost $200,000, on 26th near Kostner avenue.

JULIA KING CANDY SHOP AND CAFE TO REPLACE AUTOMAT

Another eating place for the Rialto is promised as a result of Julia King leasing the entire ground floor of 116-22 North Dearborn, now occupied by an Automat. She will pay a rental of $192,916 for the seven year term, according to W. H. Ames and A. I. Stone of Willis & Frankenstein, who represented Julia King. Dibblee & Manierre also were brokers. The Kesner Realty Trust represented the Automat company.

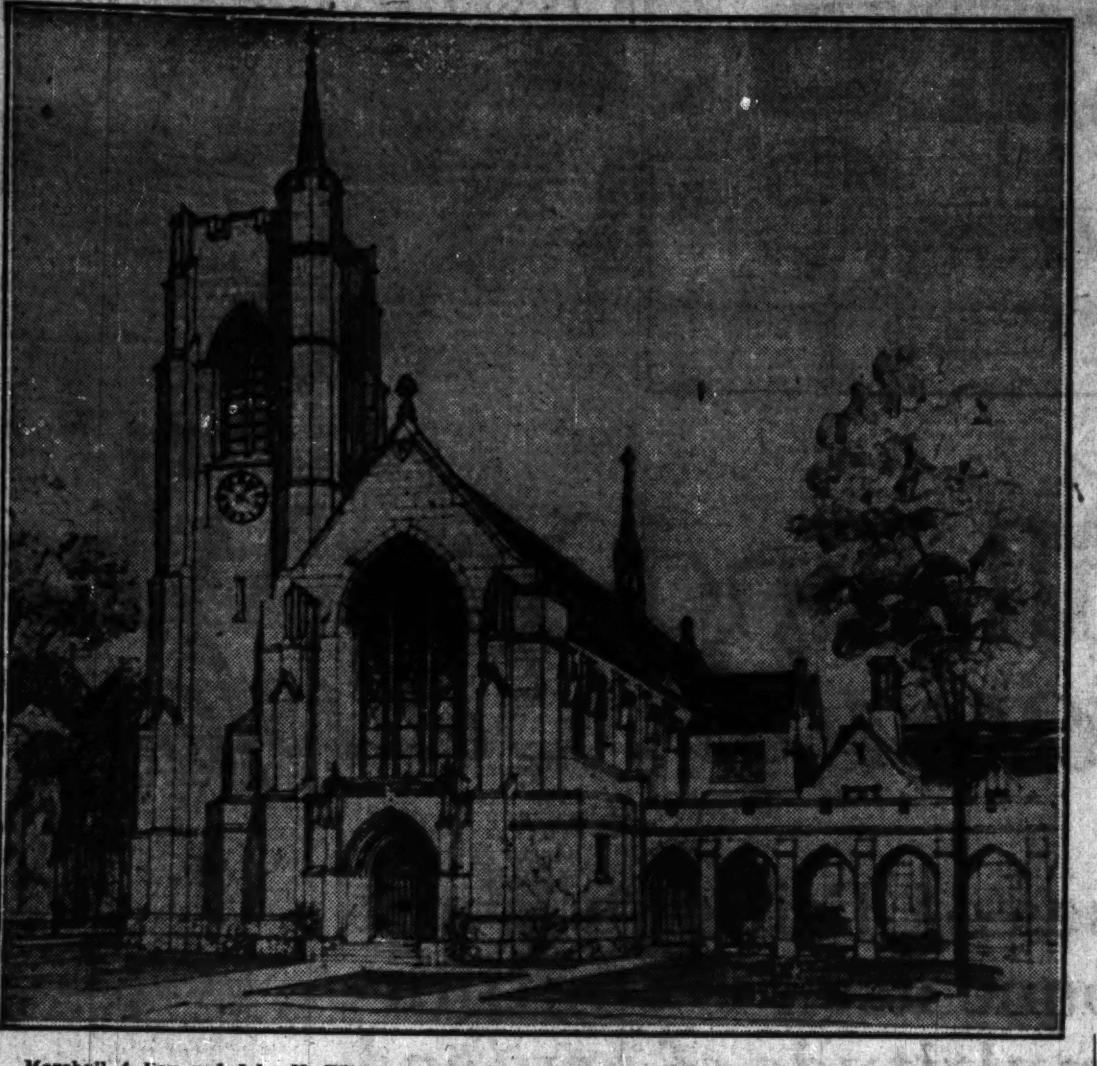
The 68x80 first floor will be made into what is claimed will be one of the largest and finest tearooms and confectionery establishments in the theater district.

Julia King, a sister of Charles King, founder of the old King's restaurant, started in the candy business a little over four years ago. She now operates four candy shops and a tearoom and fountain lunch on Washington street. She recently leased the candy department of the former Spoehr shop at 172 West Adams from E. L. Stenger.

New Emmanuel Church at La Grange



Marshall & Fox and John N. Tilton are associate architects, with the Bertram-Grosvenor-Goodhue associates of New York City consulting architects, of the above new Emmanuel Episcopal church, La Grange, to be erected on the site of the edifice which burned Dec. 1, 1924. More is told of this in a nearby column.

Tribune Want Ads Will Find You What You Want....Quickly, Reasonably, Satisfactorily...

MANY are the uses of Tribune Want Ads! The Tribune itself is continually surprised by the multitude of new and strange uses that are being found for the familiar little Want Ad.

For instance, one month ago a 17-year-old girl won an airplane in a lottery here in Chicago. She had no use for the plane and desired to sell it. The market for airplanes is necessarily a very limited one, being bounded by those who can fly and those who can afford to underwrite the adventure. But her Tribune Want Ad sought out a prospect from among the city's three million people, and a deal was consummated at a price reasonably close to what the plane was worth.

Extraordinary as it may seem, it is a true story. So, therefore, when you need a salesman extraordinary, employ a Tribune Want Ad. When you want to dispose of any article quickly, surely, without loss of time or money, or when you want to lease, hire or trade, remember, a Tribune Want Ad is your one best bet for a quick transaction! 38 PERISH BEFORE EYES OF HUNDREDS—The entire crew of the Japanese freighter Raifuku Maru was lost when the ship foundered in the raging Atlantic off Halifax, while passengers and crew of the liner Homeric looked on helplessly at the tragedy. This was the spectacle photographed just before the final plunge by a camera man aboard the Homeric, which had answered the S O S of the doomed vessel but was kept from rescue by the heavy seas.

'TWIXT LIFE AND DEATH lay Lady Jean Douglas-Hamilton, victim of this spill in the ladies' nomination race at Sonning, England. Her mount fell in the last jump; she was pinned beneath his plunging body; another rider nearly ran her down; but almost miraculously she escaped with slight injury.

CHIEF WIRELESS OFFICER TOMLINSON and CAPTAIN ROBERTS of the White Star Homeric. The Japanese consul general at New York announces that the British admiralty probably will be asked to investigate Captain Roberts' failure to rescue the crew of the Raifuku Maru. His course, however, is approved by Atlantic commanders, who hold that closer approach to the sinking freighter would have endangered the liner and the passengers aboard.

TREASURES OF ANTIQUITY were dug up by Count Byron Kuhn de Prorok and his party of excavators in this important Punic sarcophagus, with the present population of Utica and long nosed swine on the cliff above for an audience. ANOTHER COOLIDGE LANDSLIDE—With the President on hand to lend inspiration, the world's champion Washington Senators opened the home season with a 10 to 1 rout of the New York Yankees, thereby sending 35,000 fans into transports of joy. That is because St. Andrews fabrics are all fine, beautiful, soft materials, woven especially for combination sport and town wear. The suit consists of 4 pieces—coat, vest, knicker, and long trouser.

St. Andrews sport fabrics are all-wool, long-wearing cheviots, homespuns, tweeds, and flannels—in many different patterns including plain colors, mixtures, plaids, checks, and stripes.

They come in many beautiful shades of grey, brown, tan, blue, blue-grey, lavender-grey, mode, fawn, and heather mixtures.

In every city and town in the United States there is a good clothing store that carries St. Andrews Sport Suits.

Comfort-
despite raw winds and damp, chill days

NOW—when heat is welcome many mornings and evenings—is an ideal time to install a Hart Oil Burner.

Its automatic heat regulator will start a fire in your heating plant whenever necessary to maintain a temperature of 68 or 70 degrees or what you choose. No fire to build, no coal to shovel, no ashes to remove. When the fire isn't needed, the Hart Oil Burner automatically stops.

Economical in cold and in variable weather

Records of many hundreds of installations show that without including the cost of the labor of caring for a coal heating plant, without including the cost of extra cleaning caused by coal dust and ashes in the house, the Hart Oil Burner shows a great saving over coal.

Now is the time to install

Have a Hart Oil Burner installed in your home now—while you can still test it before the warm weather. Your own good judgment will convince you that you have made a good investment in comfort—and a saving in the cost of comfortable heat.

Send for complimentary copy of a pamphlet giving complete description—and name of nearest dealer.

"SOUVENIR!" That historic appeal from French gamin to Yank is to be the request of governors of various states to the secretary of war. A wilderness of trophies, stored at Newark, N. Here is a part of the artillery, captured in battle from Belleau Wood to the Argonne. (Photograph from International)

GUGLIELMO MARCONI IS TO WED this 18 year old English girl, Elizabeth Paynter, daughter of an army officer, according to reports from London. The matter of age is an interesting aspect of the romance, for the wireless inventor, divorced last year, is 51. (Photograph from Wide World)

ONE OF FOUR women returned to the British parliament in the last election, Mrs. Hilton Philipson sheds luster on her sex in the House of Commons. Her antecedents make her political rise unique, perhaps, in the English-speaking world, for she is the former Mabel Russell, star of the London stage, and is mother of two charming children. DEATH MAY ENRICH HIM—The Marquis of Hartington is heir to the Duke of Devonshire, Britain's richest peer, who is seriously ill from a stroke of apoplexy. In the event of Devonshire's death the marquis would come into possession of the title, to say nothing of 186,000 acres of mineral land and a dozen castles in England and Ireland. (Photograph from Fotograms)

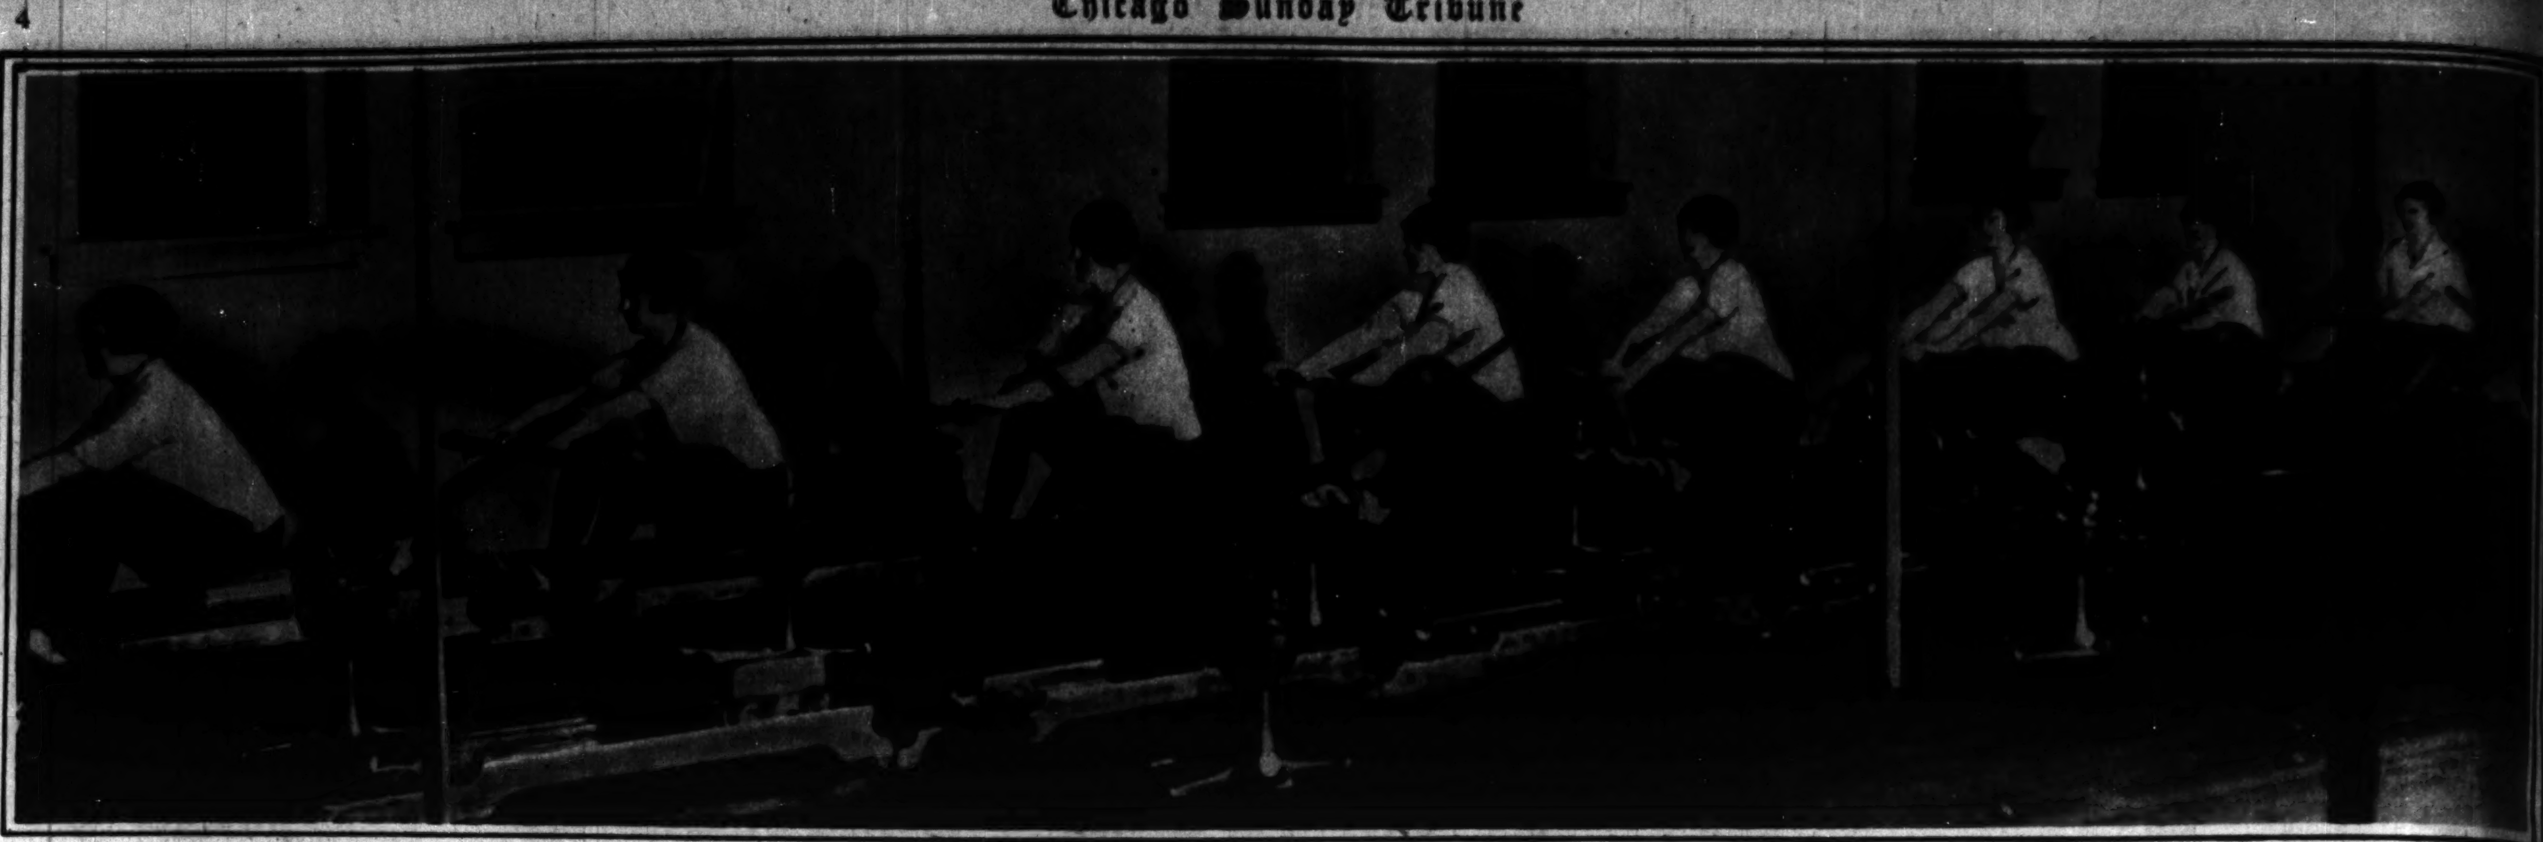
A NEW AMBITION—Gertrude Ederle, the 17 year old aquatic champion, is planning an attempt to swim the English channel. They call her "the world's greatest swimming wonder," and she's gifted with almost incredible strength and stamina; but she's in diligent training, nevertheless, for a feat accomplished only by few. Hence the photographer found her here a living statue of action and grace. (Photograph from Wide World)



PULL FOR THE SHORE, GIRLS, PULL—And right well do these senior co-eds at Cornell university pull, for they have held the class championship for two years. A campus photographer found them busy at the rowing machine in preparation for the crew races at Ithaca on May 29. On that day Cornell will hold its annual women's athletic field day. Preserves Teeth by Destroying Germs

Precious Tooth Enamel—this Dental Cream Protects It

By Ira Davis Joel, B. S., M. S., Department of Bacteriology

In a paper read before the Stuyvesant Medical Society, a famous dental surgeon gave this advice to those who would avoid abscesses in their teeth:

Protect the enamel and you protect the life of the nerve; a tooth with a live nerve is a healthy tooth.

You brush your teeth faithfully. You brush them carefully. Yet when you visit your dentist you are often surprised at the number of cavities his instruments reveal.

You feel baffled. Others seemingly no more careful than yourself enjoy the blessing of sound teeth. What is the trouble?

The trouble is that your teeth require a certain kind of protection which you are failing to give them—the protection they need is adequate dental care and the daily use of a germ-killing dentifrice.

THE protection they need is the germicidal protection of Kolynos Dental Cream. Kolynos not only keeps your teeth white and glistening, but its main properties are highly antiseptic—extremely important properties if you are to have sound teeth, teeth free from dangerous, offensive, and painful cavities.

Kills germs—washes them away

Did you ever watch snowflakes collect upon a window-pane? That is the way germs collect upon your teeth. The first few find it hard to cling, but soon they build up rapidly. First, Bacilli Acidophili lodge on the enamel. They are tiny, short threads of germs. In your saliva is a sticky substance called mucin. Little flakes of this adhere to the teeth. Thus a close, sticky, web-like film spreads across the enamel, a film of malignant germs that cause decay.

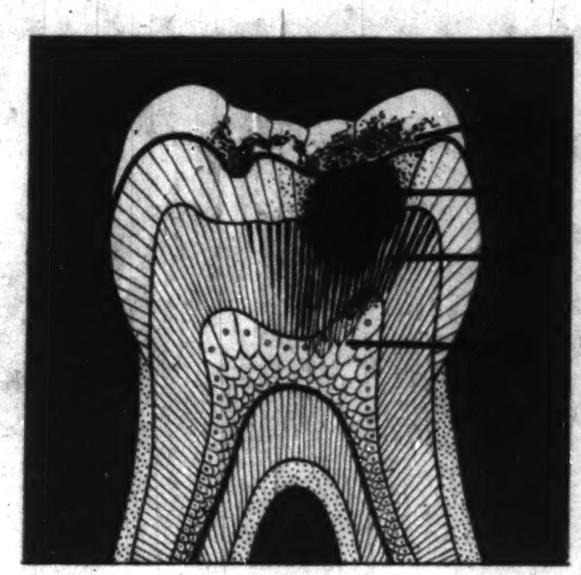
These germs multiply with amazing rapidity. Each produces tiny quantities of harmful acid. The film holds this acid against the teeth while it gradually eats into the enamel.

Kolynos checks this. To begin with, it kills germs. It breaks up the film. It washes away the film, with its multitude of germs. It leaves comparatively few germs in your mouth; hours pass before there are again enough to be dangerous to your teeth. And even then, so thoroughly polished are your teeth that it is very much harder for the germs and the mucin to cling to the glossy enamel surface.

Less danger from tartar

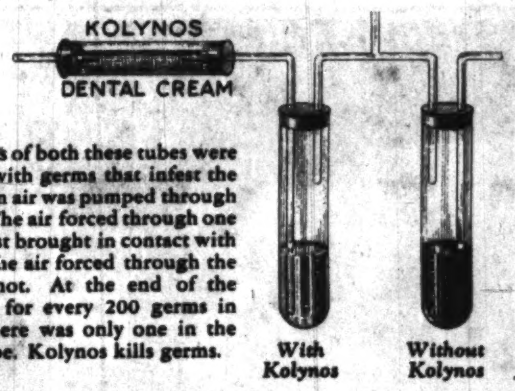
The accumulation of tartar on the teeth is greatly retarded by the use of Kolynos. How important this is! Consider the ugly aspect that tartar gives your teeth and the pyorrhea which it so often causes. Your teeth stay beautiful. They glisten. Their full natural lustre shows in your smile. Then, too, Kolynos is delicious in taste. It leaves your mouth with a clean, fresh, wholesome feeling. It counteracts the acidity in your mouth caused by the fermentation of food particles and the excretions of germs.

You can understand better how valuable all these qualities of Kolynos really are when we tell you that 51,000 dentists and 89,000 physicians, after trying this dental cream, asked us for samples of it to distribute to their patients. You can appreciate why the use of Kolynos has spread to the people of seventy-seven nations in all parts of the world.



Section of a Molar

A—The sticky, web-like film of germs, mucin and food particles begins to form. B—Acid then begins to eat into the enamel rods and separate them, before it finally destroys the rods themselves. C—Germs swarm in through the break in the enamel and attack the dentine under it. D—When the decay reaches the pulp, which surrounds the nerve, toothache follows.



The contents of both these tubes were inoculated with germs that infest the mouth. Then air was pumped through the tubes. The air forced through one tube was first brought in contact with Kolynos. The air forced through the other was not. At the end of the experiment, for every 200 germs in this tube there was only one in the Kolynos tube. Kolynos kills germs.

Orange Magic that changes to BLUSH ROSE

EITHER after you have tried all the other lipsticks, or sooner, you are going to discover Tangee is the only one that is orange in the stick and—

Changes to just that shade of blush rose that is warm, young and natural.

You'll discover further that Tangee is permanent—waterproof—proof against the friction of a napkin—a handkerchief—kiss-proof.

And Tangee is absolutely harmless. Instead of the usual grease base, it contains cold cream that is softening and soothing to the lips. Yet, because Tangee is firm in its consistency, and because one application lasts all day, Tangee lasts about five times as long as the usual stick.

It costs but one dollar to try this lovely new beauty, and economy... Get it today.

For a Tangee Complexion

Tangee Rouge is Tangee Lipstick's best friend. Crême Rouge for dry skins—Rouge Compact for the average skin. Goes on easily—changes instantly—blends perfectly—stays put. What price magic? Lipstick, $1. Crême Rouge, $1. Rouge Compact, $.75

STRENUOUS MOMENTS and grotesque poses mark tennis as played by the fair sex. WELCOMING THE KING'S OWN back to Madrid after its hectic stay in Morocco was a serious business for the youthful Prince of Asturias, heir to the throne of Spain. He is shown here in the workmanlike uniform of the Regimento del Rey, which he will command upon accession to the uneasy crown. He is accompanied by the Count del Grove, left, and the lieutenant colonel of the regiment.

BIG GAME is what Philip G. McFadden and his wife went to Africa for, and herewith is the evidence that they got what they sought. It's a white rhino, too, and the white ones are mighty rare. Mr. and Mrs. McFadden are socially prominent in New York City.

FLYING HORSES are with us, one would think from this camera record of the Irish Guards challenge cup race at Hawthorne Hill, in England. It's a dangerously high hedge this leaper is taking, apparently far over the heads of the little group of spectators in the background. Steeplechasing is a daring sport at its safest, and this particular jump is one of the worst in England.

FLYING MEN lend spectacular interest to the big track and field meets these days. Look at Capt. Merwin Graham of Kansas, soaring to victory in the broad jump of the great relay games staged recently at Lawrence by the University of Kansas. When Graham came to earth after his imitation of the bird he had covered 23 feet 6¼ inches. He was a member of America's last Olympic team.

"AS A HUMANITARIAN, and as a physician for twenty-two years, I unhesitatingly recommend that persons suffering from deficient digestion give Fleischmann's Yeast a test. I suffered from a bad stomach for nearly twenty years. Abandoned hope of receiving permanent relief. . . . Since taking Fleischmann's Yeast cakes, which I began last June, I sleep approximately one and a half hours more and can eat 'a man's dinner' without distress."
Dr. William Nealon, Philadelphia, Pa.

"IN FEBRUARY OF THIS YEAR (1924) my third baby was born. Three months later found me with constipation, headaches and just dragging around—and three small children. I decided something had to be done. I started taking Fleischmann's Yeast, a cake morning and night. In a few weeks I was able to stop the use of cathartics; headaches and backaches were gone; and I had plenty of energy. I felt like a different woman."
Mrs. Marie T. Gardner, Glencarlyn, Va.

"AS A TRAVELING salesman I found myself suffering from chronic constipation and general stomach disorders induced by irregular meals. My head ached continuously. I lacked 'pep.' My record fell off alarmingly. . . . I tried Fleischmann's Yeast. In a few weeks my tendency to be constipated had practically disappeared and with it my headaches. I have broken all my previous sales records. I feel that Fleischmann's Yeast has materially helped me up the ladder toward success."
Fred Corrington, Litchfield, Ill.

THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—banishes constipation—stomach troubles—skin disorders.

Eat two or three cakes a day before meals: on crackers—in fruit juices or milk—or just plain. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) night and morning.

You know such people

Full of a new zest and joy in living —read their remarkable tributes to this simple fresh food

Not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today! Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days.

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. 688, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington St., New York.

"I HAD DEVELOPED acne of the face, which became chronic in spite of medical care and hygiene. Serums, ointments, washes, diets, lotions, made me wretched without improving the unsightly condition. Then I consulted our family doctor, who strongly advised trying one cake of Fleischmann's Yeast before meals. I took it regularly for six months . . . My face cleared, I lost that thin, pale look, and was able to continue with my work at college."
Miss Rose Cooperman, Brooklyn, N. Y.

LIGHT and SLENDER ways of wearing less under the summer frock

Combinations that smoothly unite girdle and brassiere

Brassieres with the new uplifting lines

Girdles that hold the figure with chic and easy grace

RECENTLY fashion-wise designers of the newer, more enlightened corsetry have struck a high note of success. They've given women what they've long been waiting for — the combination of girdle and brassiere.

Many women took to it instantly for year 'round wear. Even those with heavier figures, still impressed with the need of corseting firmly during the formal months, conceded it to be the perfect garment for summer. As for the woman whose lines are those of youth, she slid into the combination, exclaiming, "At last, I've come into my own!"

Now the House of Nemo has designed, expressly for the summer girl of 1925, a whole group of lovely combinations. Cool, free, slenderizing, they accomplish what no others have yet quite successfully done. A Nemo-flex model has been carefully designed for the proportions of every type of figure.

If your waist is slender and your hips generous; if your curves go just the other way; if you are boyishly flat above but have developed a little too much weight in the diaphragm, a Nemo-flex model will fit your special needs.

Pink tulips are not more attractive, yet how gently firm these Nemo-flex combinations are about reminding your figure to take its loveliest lines! And every one is light and washable.

SO many new conveniences, too! Adjustable elastic shoulder straps; easy fastenings; devices for diaphragm control; elastic varying according to the part of the figure it controls.

Nemo has also made back-lacing corsets and girdles with generous panels of elastic which achieve that desirable paradox — the uncorseted look, while corseting quite firmly.

The Wonderlift corset, redesigned to conform with the mode, still retains the famous device for holding weakened muscles in their proper place. Finally, Nemolastik silk-covered rubber-reducing girdles and brassieres, lined with a soft fabric that absorbs the perspiration perfectly, appear in lovely brocaded designs.

In every first-class store you may see these lovely Nemo-flex foundation garments, reasonably priced and all affording the light and slender ways every woman seeks today of wearing less under the summer frock. Nemo, the House of Complete Corsetry, 120 East Sixteenth Street, New York.

Nemo Week Begins Tomorrow!

Visit your store during Nemo Week and see all these lovely garments — Nemo-flex Brassieres, Girdles, Corsets, Combinations, and Nemolastik rubber-reducing girdles and brassieres—new models, new fabrics for spring and summer.

THE HIPS are held firmly and the bust left free in the Nemo-flex combination on Figure 3. Three vertical bones over the abdomen, two in back, and side gores of elastic. Broche, combined with a soft knitted fabric, $10.00

THE NEMO-FLEX combination on Figure 4 is designed for full hips and slender waist. Broches, with five small transverse bones across the abdomen, and elastic side godets, $3.00 to $15.00

FIGURE 5 shows a Nemo-flex garter brassiere which fastens so firmly down over the girdle-top that a break in the line at the waist is quite impossible. Broche combined with suede, $3.50

FIGURE 6 shows a tiny Nemo-flex silk girdle which Paris decreed for the summer dance. Although boneless, it persuades hips and thighs to flatness, $10.00 and $15.00. Lace and silk brassiere with new uplifting lines, $1.00

ON FIGURE 7, ribbon-bound Nemo-flex elastic step-in girdle, lacing part way up the front to adjust better and wear longer. In three lengths, 10, 12 and 14 inches, $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00

THE LIGHTLY BONED back-lacing Nemo-flex corset with inserts of elastic on Figure 8 gives the soft uncorseted look to the full figure. Various fabrics, $5.00 to $10.00. Nemo-flex lace and ribbon brassiere, $6.50

A CLASP-ON Nemo-flex girdle with generous panels of elastic on Figure 10 is made of dainty fabrics, $5.00 to $12.50. And a Nemo-flex silk jersey bandeau brassiere has lines which hold curves in place, $1.00

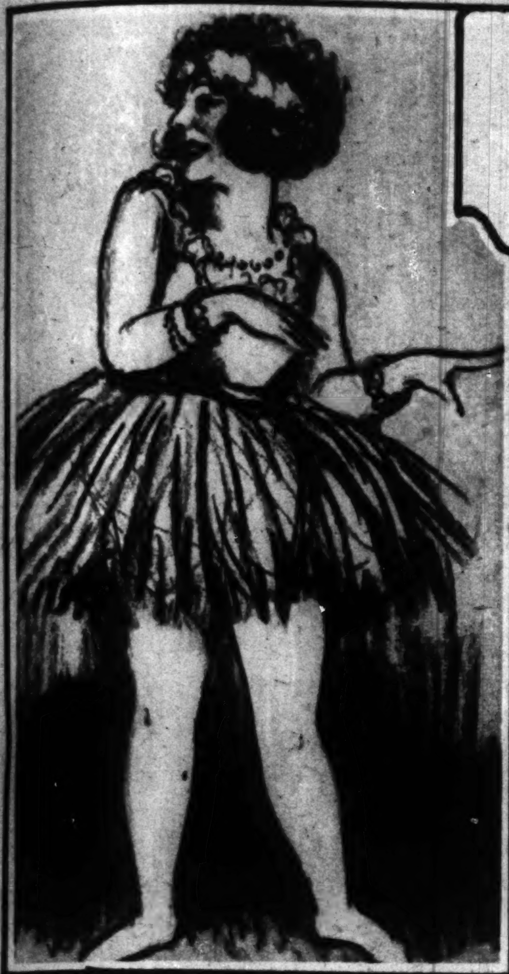
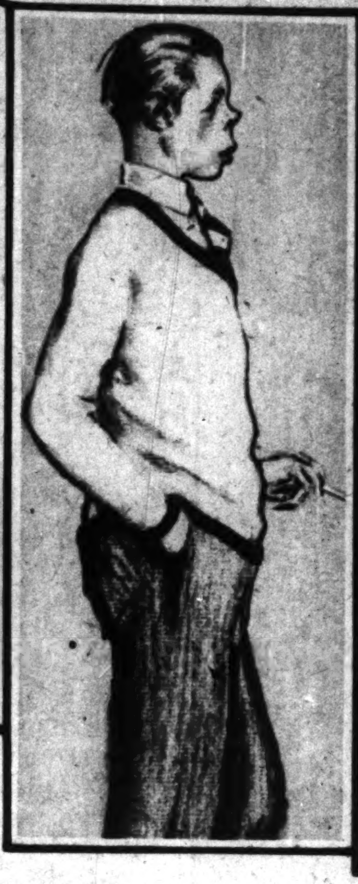
The Jazz Babies

By W. E. HILL

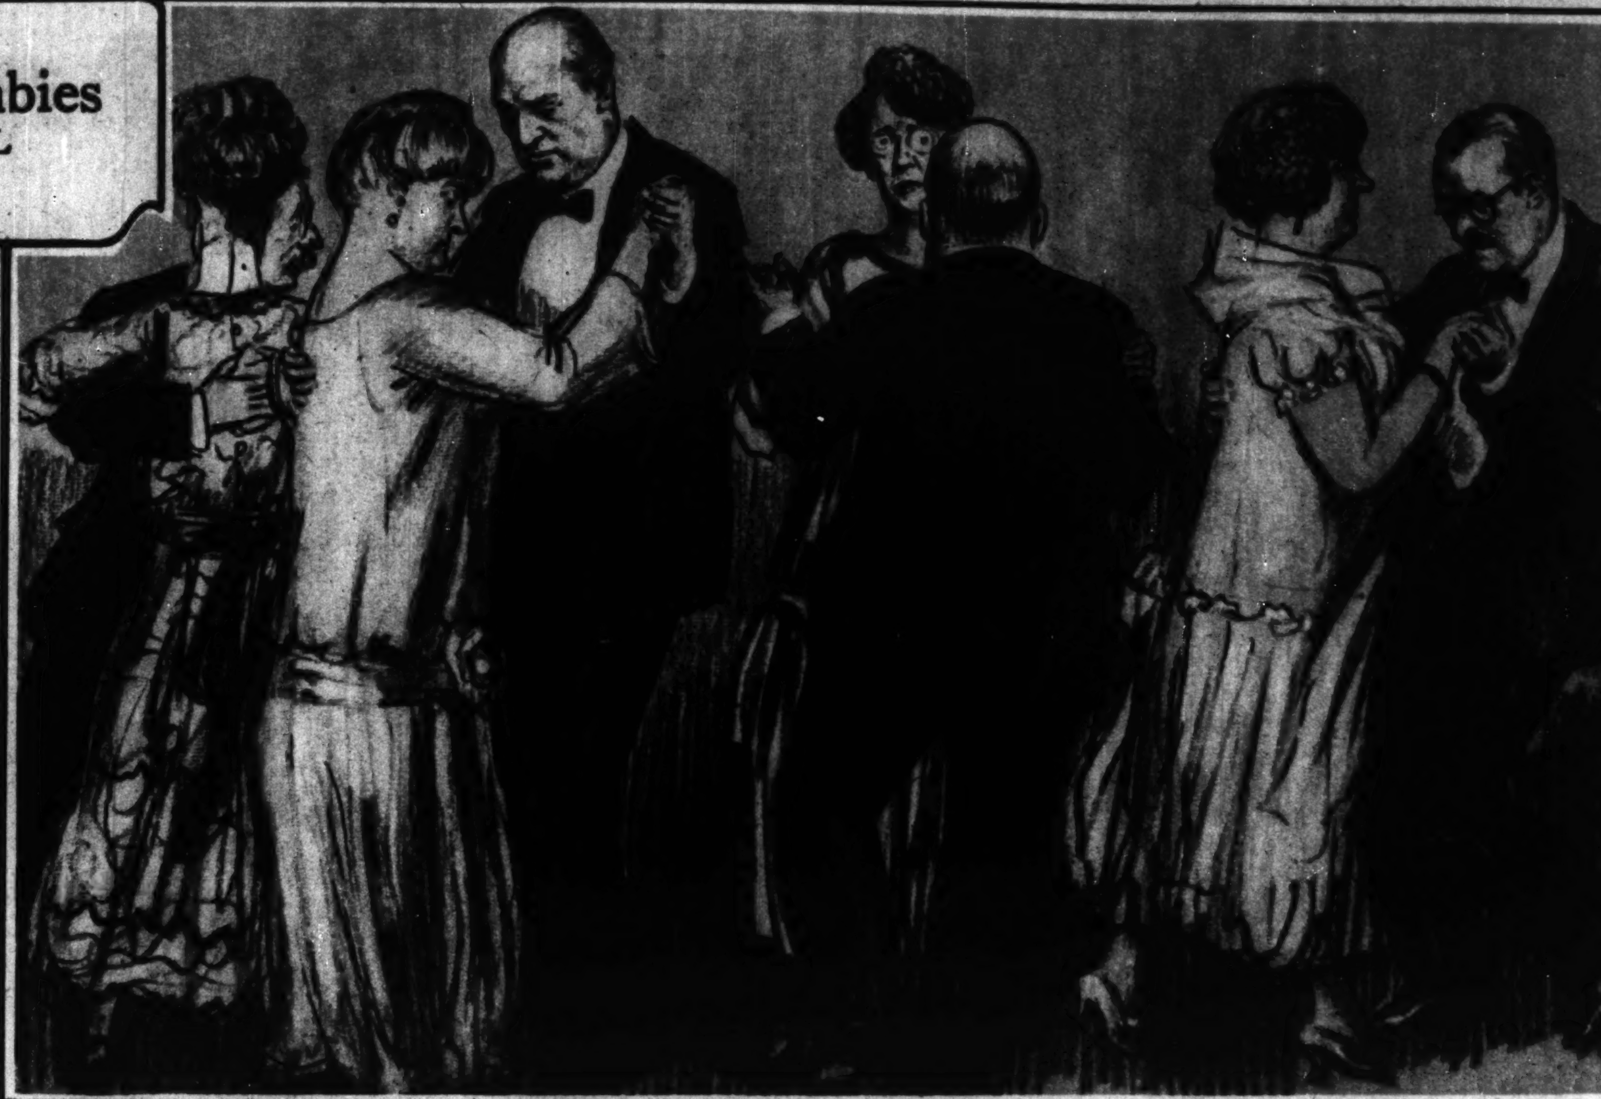


The Hula dancer (nee Miss Sarah Edelman) about to hurl her jazzy personality at the public.

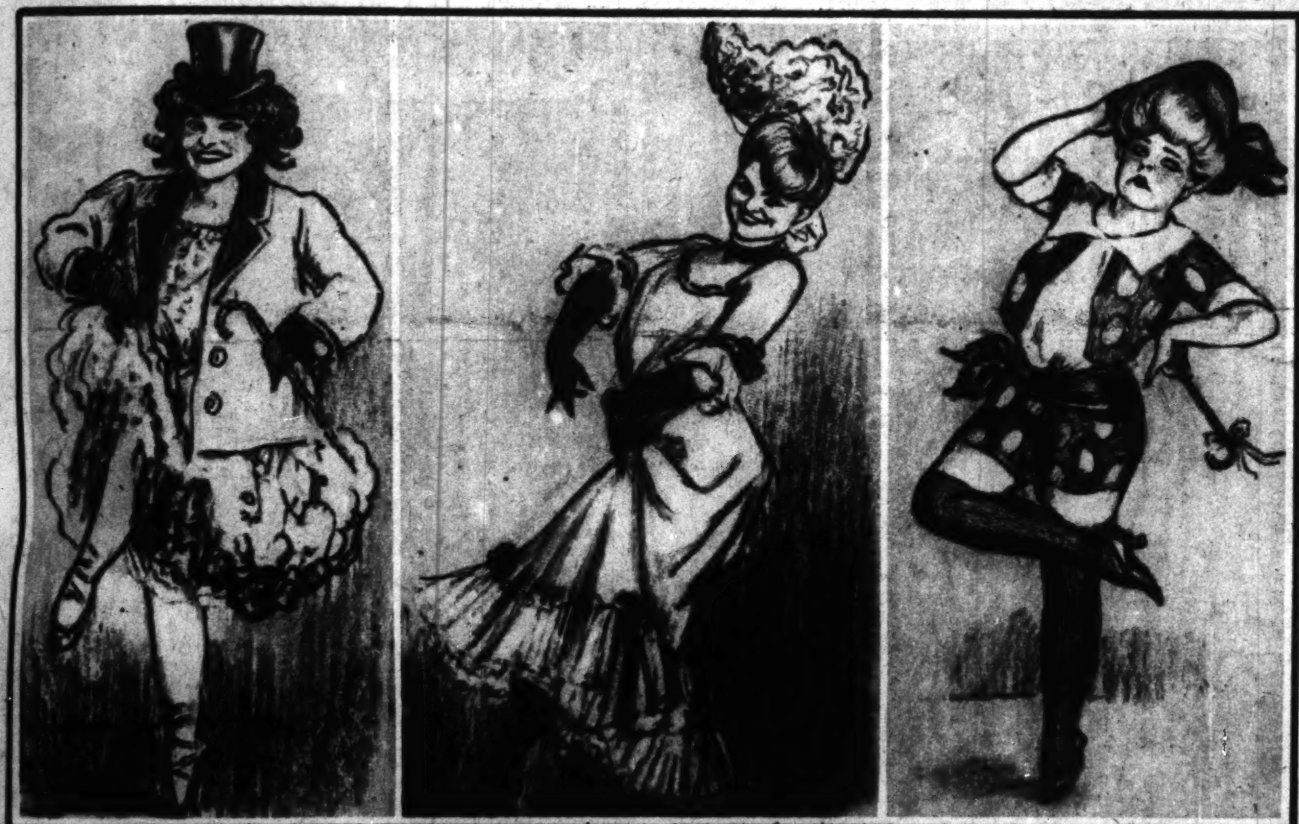
Copyright: 1925: By the Chicago Tribune.



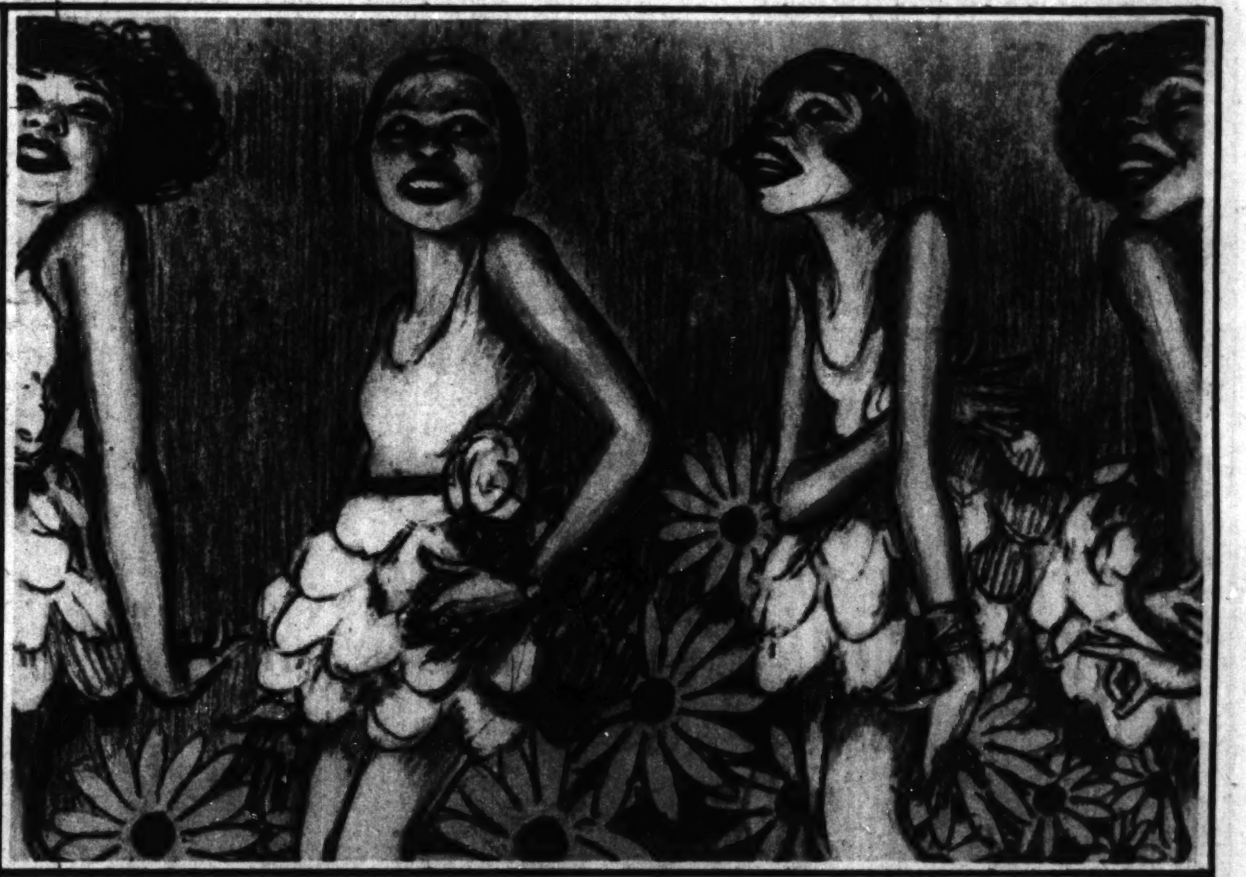
The collegiate jazz baby with the jazzy clothes.



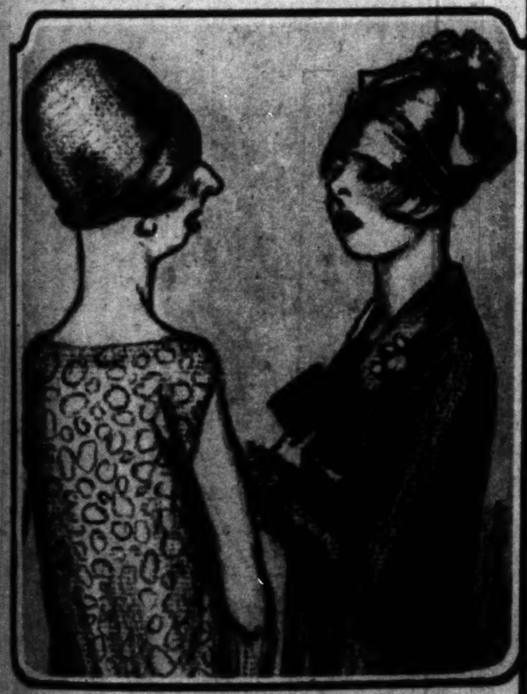
The older jazz babies take their jazz pretty seriously—some of them never do get used to it. (This is a representative section of the Friday evening dancing class, composed for the most part of the people who haven't danced since the two-step went out of vogue. "It does seem," Mrs. Adele Pixley is saying to Mr. Walter Waters, "as if there were no more pretty tunes nowadays like 'Hiawatha' and 'Nancy Brown.'")



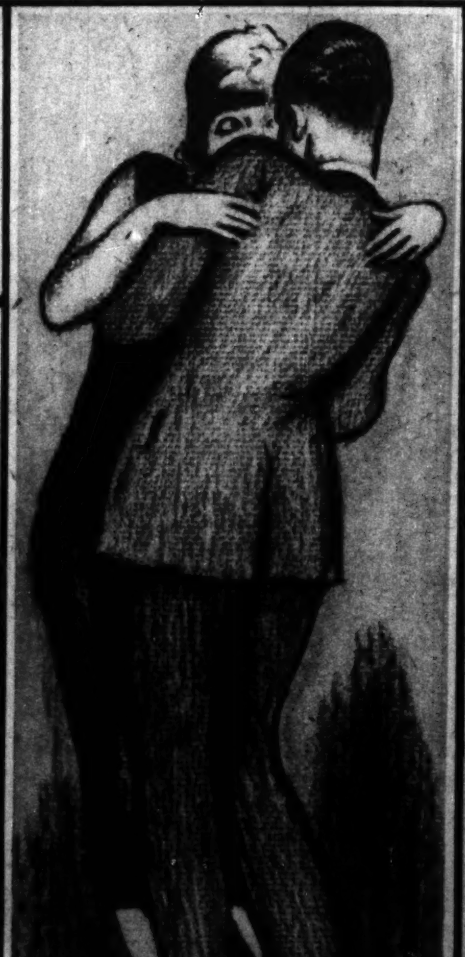
The forerunners of the jazz baby. 'Way back in prehistoric days these three ladies were considered the berries in syncopated circles. "Dinah," "If You Ain't Got No Money" and the cakewalk were all the rage.



Here they are, the original jazz babies—the "Bamville Brownies"—straight from the all-colored revue. Jazz is the maiden name of each of these red hot mammas.



The jazz age. "My dear, I know just how that girl who killed off her family because they wouldn't let her go to a party, felt! Mamma's been acting perfectly terrible to me because I didn't get in till 6 the other morning." "You said it. Families are simply terrible to get on with, these days."



Two jazz babies improving the shining hours to the strains of "Me and My Boy Friend."

The vaudeville headliner and her jazz boys, who, we learn from our program, are none other than Mr. Pete Paloma and his Club Montenegro orchestra. The headliner is introducing a new South Sea shake.

VON HINDENBURG

THE RECENT GERMAN ELECTION centered about the presidential candidacy of Paul von Hindenburg, field marshal of the German army during the great war. He was backed personally, the Republicans claimed, by the former kaiser. Foes of the kaiserists feared the election of Von Hindenburg as president would merely pave the way for the return of Hohenzollern rule in Germany. Von Hindenburg was on the army's retired list when the world war began. He was called back to service after the Germans had suffered terrific reverses on the Russian front, and his success against the Russians won him command of the whole German army. He is now 78 years old. Scenes from the field marshal's picturesque life are presented on this page.

JUST A CITIZEN of Germany. Von Hindenburg at Schierke, the famous resort in the Harz mountains, during the summer of 1920.

AT THE HEIGHT OF HIS POWER—This is a reproduction of Von Hindenburg's favorite war picture. He posed for it after he was made field marshal by the kaiser, following his rout of the Russians on the eastern front in the early stages of the great war.

(Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)

AS A PRUSSIAN CADET at Wahlstatt, in 1860.

AN ARMY DANDY was this Von Hindenburg in 1870-71, when he was lieutenant and adjutant of the Third Regimental Foot Guard. These post-card pictures of Hindenburg at various ages were popular in Germany in the early days of this century. The postals were labeled "Unser Hindenburg."

AGAIN THE WAR LORD, Von Hindenburg is shown here reviewing the German Republican army in 1923. This review, held near Berlin, was Germany's first great military turnout after the war. The civilian with the general is Otto Gessler, minister of finance.

(Photograph from Kadel & Herbert.)

THE WAR LORD OF 1917. Von Hindenburg with his chief of staff, Gen. Von Ludendorff, pictured at the German imperial headquarters. At that stage these two men practically ruled Germany. Hindenburg was supreme in military matters, Ludendorff was directing all the civil forces of the empire, with every energy bent to win the war.

"Yoo-hoo, Daddy"

You wouldn't let a hair of her head be harmed, and yet—

AND yet in thousands of homes there is an insidious danger to the precious health of children, which countless fathers and mothers have never suspected.

In the very room that has more to do with guarding health than any other — the bathroom — this danger exists. Here you almost always find an old toilet seat, perhaps of oak or mahogany, with the finish worn off through years of service.

Despite the care given it, the bare wood, being porous, quickly absorbs liquids and odors. The bathroom is usually warm. Moisture and warmth are ideal conditions for germs and bacteria. They thrive and multiply. Quite unsuspected by anyone, such toilet seats become a menace to health.

Children use the bathroom oftener than adults. They breathe close to the toilet seat. It is especially dangerous for them.

Now Science offers a new seat that cannot become contaminated

IT IS a simple matter to remove this danger. Sanitary science has produced a seat which is sheathed in an immaculately white seamless, ivory-like covering. It cannot become contaminated. It is non-porous and will not absorb moisture or odors. It won't crack or discolor or wear off. With soap and water you can wash it as easily as you wash a porcelain dish and keep it sweet and clean. This seat offers no opportunity for germs to breed. It is safe, sanitary, and a guardian of health. Its durability has been proved by years of use in thousands of homes, hospitals and famous hotels.

Fits any bowl—easy to put on

CHURCH Seats fit any toilet bowl. You can put one on with a pair of pliers in a few minutes. You don't have to call in a plumber unless you prefer. If you live in a rented home or apartment, you can take the seat with you when you move.

You can buy a Church Seat at any plumbers. It is a handsome fixture and will add to the beauty of your bathroom. Guests always appreciate sanitary toilet fixtures.

Send for this free sample

NO ONE can be sure what germs an old toilet seat may harbor. Instead of taking a chance, it is better to get rid of the danger.

4501 Easton Ave., St. Louis, Mo., October 19, 1924.

Dear Sir:

I was bald since the World's War. I tried H........., K........., L.....T........, P........., and others without results. In February, 1924, I started using Van Ess daily, by April, after finishing my third bottle, I had a good crop of hair showing.

Thinking my baldness conquered, I became neglectful using Van Ess about twice a week, my new proud possession began to disappear. I quickly resumed the daily use of Van Ess, now my hair is getting thicker and longer with new hair appearing daily.

I have impressed on my mind that Van Ess once a day makes the hair stay.

How Famous Movie Stars Keep their Hair Beautiful

Try this quick and simple method which thousands, WHO MAKE BEAUTY A STUDY, now use. See the difference it makes in the appearance of YOUR HAIR.

Note how it gives new life and lustre; how it brings out all the wave and color.

See how soft and silky, bright and glossy your hair will look.

THE attractiveness of even the most beautiful women depends upon the loveliness of their hair.

The hair is a frame or setting upon which the most beautiful, as well as the plainest woman, must depend.

Fortunately, beautiful hair is no longer a matter of luck.

You, too, can have beautiful hair if you shampoo it properly.

Proper shampooing is what makes it soft and silky. It brings out all the real life and lustre, all the natural wave and color and leaves it fresh-looking, glossy and bright.

When your hair is dry, dull and heavy, lifeless, stiff and gummy, and the strands cling together, and it feels harsh and disagreeable to the touch, it is because your hair has not been shampooed properly.

While your hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why leading motion picture stars and thousands of discriminating women, everywhere, now use Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greaseless product brings out all the real beauty of the hair and cannot possibly injure. It does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

If you want to see how really beautiful you can make your hair look, just follow this simple method.

A Simple, Easy Method

FIRST, wet the hair and scalp in clear, warm water. Then apply a little Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo.

Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather. This should be rubbed in thoroughly and briskly with the finger tips, so as to loosen the dandruff and small particles of dust and dirt that stick to the scalp.

After rubbing in the rich, creamy Mulsified lather give the hair a good rinsing. Then use another application of Mulsified, again working up a lather and rubbing it in briskly as before. After the final washing, rinse the hair and scalp in at least two changes of clear, fresh, warm water. This is very important.

Just Notice the Difference

YOU will notice the difference in your hair even before it is dry, for it will be delightfully soft and silky.

After a Mulsified shampoo you will find your hair will dry quickly and evenly and have the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it really is.

If you want to always be remembered for your beautiful, well-kept hair, make it a rule to set a certain day each week for a Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo. This regular weekly shampooing will keep the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store or toilet goods counter, anywhere in the world. A 4-ounce bottle should last for months.

Splendid for children —fine for men.

Priceless are the traditions and associations of "CANADA DRY"!

FOR years upon years this fine old ginger ale has been served in the Houses of Parliament in Ottawa, in the residences of the Governor-General, in the Royal Canadian Yacht Club and at affairs of state throughout the Dominion.

Memories of crested shield and royal banner are intimately associated with its historic past, for it is a thoroughbred among beverages—an aristocrat—a ginger ale to the manner born.

In this country, too, "Canada Dry" has made distinguished friendships. It has a personality and a character that commend it instinctively to those who have a fine appreciation of the master's touch.

Practically unknown in this country three years ago, "Canada Dry" is today the accepted ginger ale wherever people of taste and discrimination gather.

The story of its phenomenal rise in public favor is one of the most amazing tributes to quality in the history of American business.

The reason is simply that "Canada Dry" is a better, finer ginger ale—so different from the ordinary ale that it might almost be called by another name.

Announcements such as this have helped to bring it to the attention of countless people, but after all, the best advertisement for "Canada Dry" is "Canada Dry" itself.

Thousands of people—tasting it—liking it—recognizing its quality—have recommended it to their friends. And these friends have told other friends in an ever-widening circle.

Go into any of the leading clubs, hotels and restaurants in this city—visit the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec, the Prince Edward in Windsor, the Ambassador in Los Angeles, the Roosevelt in New Orleans—the Royal Poinciana in Florida—pack your bag and hie away to Cuba, Bermuda, Porto Rico, Peru and Argentina—go almost to the ends of the earth and there you will find people who would never think of drinking any other ginger ale than "Canada Dry."

Once you try it you will never forget its delicate, intriguing flavor.

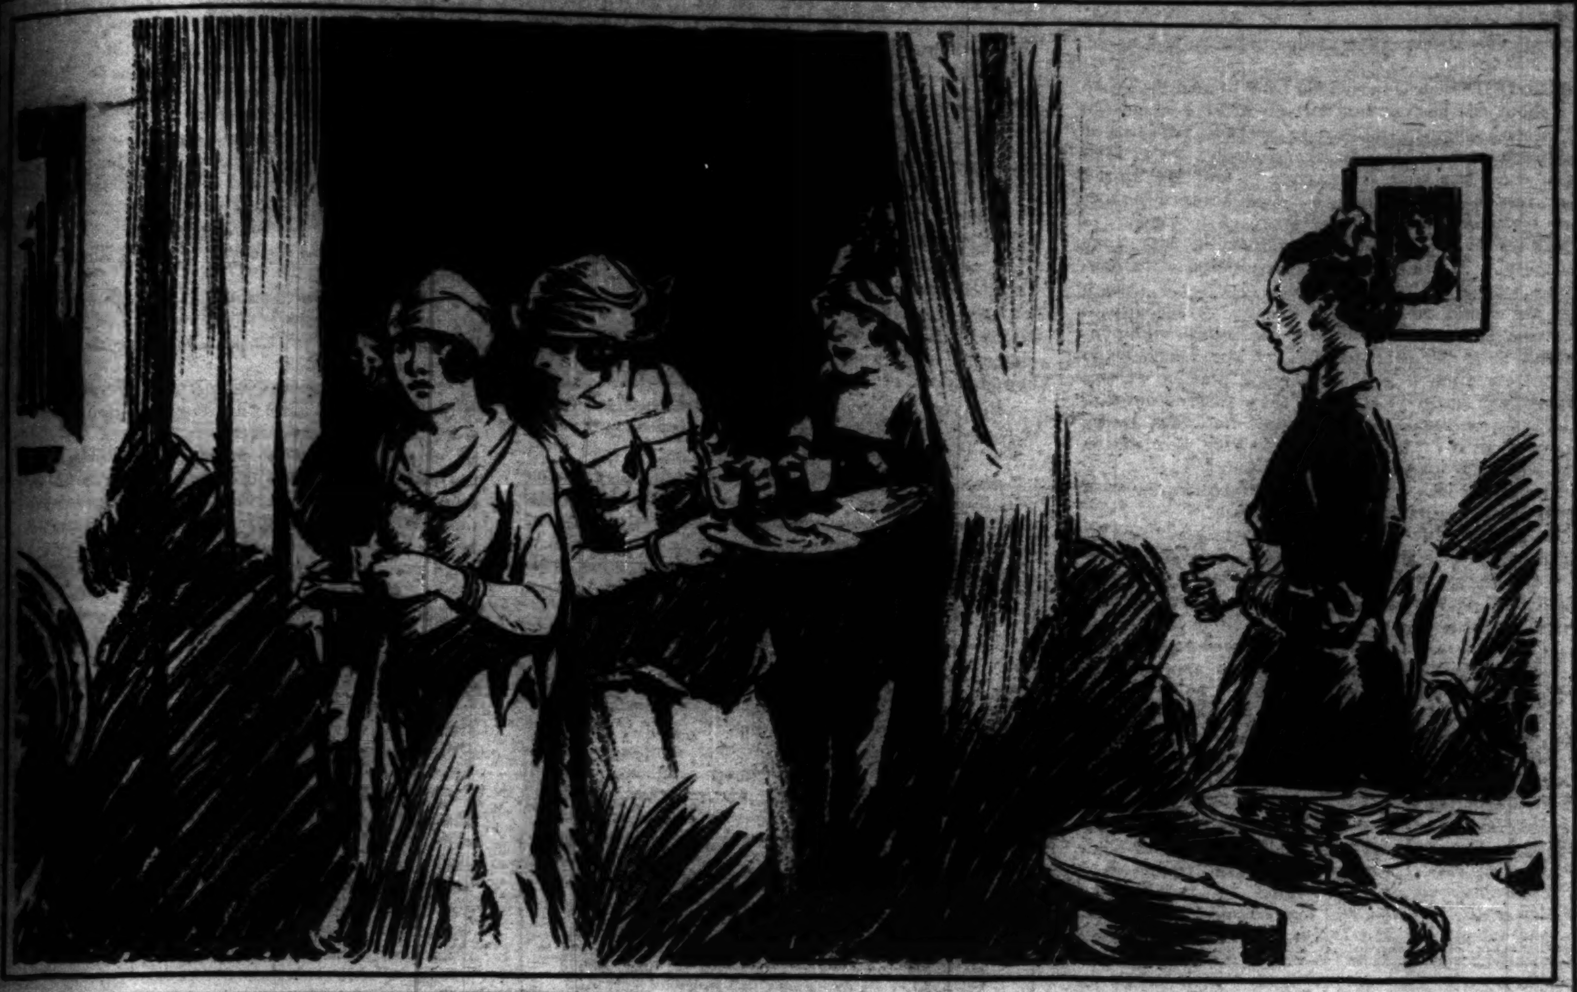
Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite's Husband

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Blue Ribbon Fiction



"I don't care what your husband says," Mrs Dodge interrupted. "The woman's a nuisance."

A Story About What a Woman Knows Because She Knows; and What a Man Can't See

AT FIVE O'CLOCK upon a February afternoon the commodious rooms on the lower floor of Mrs. Cromwell's big suburban house resounded with all the noise that a hundred women unaided by firearms could make. A hundred men, gathered in a similar social manner, if that were possible, might either be quiet or produce a few uproariously bellowing groups, a matter depending upon the presence or absence of noisy individuals; but a hundred habitually soft voiced women, brought together for a brief enjoyment of one another's society and a trifling incidental repast, must almost inevitably abandon themselves en masse to the vocal rioting ultimately so helpful to the incomes of the nerve specialists.

The strain, of course, is not put upon the nerves by the overpitched voices alone. At times during Mrs. Cromwell's "tea" the face of almost every woman in the house was distressed by the expression of caressive animation maintained upon it. The most conscientious of the guests held this expression upon their faces from the moment they entered the house until they left it; they went about, from room to room, from group to group, shouting indomitably, and, without an instant's relaxation, kept sweet liveliness frozen upon their faces, no matter how those valiant faces ached.

Men may not flatter themselves in believing it is for them that women most ardently sculpture their expressions. A class of women has traduced the rest: those women who are languid where there are no men. The women at Mrs. Cromwell's "tea," with not a man in sight, so consistently molded their faces that the invitations might well have read, "From Four to Six: a Ladies' Masque."

What gave most truly the color of a masquerade was the unmasking. This, of course, was never general, nor at any time simultaneous, except with two or three; yet, here and there, withdrawn a little to the side of a room or near a corner, ladies might be seen who wore no expressions at all, or else looked jaded, or even frostily observant of the show. Sometimes little clubs of two seemed to form temporarily, the members unmasking to each other, exhibiting their real faces in confidence, and joining in criticism of the maskers about them. At such times, if a third lady approached, the two would immediately resume their masks and bob and beam; then they might seem to elect her to membership; whereupon all three would drop their masks, shout gravely, close to one another's ears, then presently separate, masked again in facial shapings designed to picture universal love and jaunty humor.

But among the hundred merrymakers there was one of whom it could not be said that she was masked; yet, strange to tell, neither could it be said of her that she was not masked; for either she wore no mask at all or wore one always. Her face at Mrs. Cromwell's was precisely as it was when seen anywhere else, though where it seemed most appropriately surrounded was in church.

Calm, pale, the chin uplifted a little, with the slant of the head always more toward heaven than earth, this angelic face was borne by the straight throat and slender figure like the oriflamme upon its staff; and so it passed through the crowd of shouting women, seeming to move in a spiritual light that fell upon them and illuminated them, yet illuminated most the uplifted face that was its source. Moreover, upon the lips the exquisite promise of a smile was continuously hinted; and the hint foreshadowed how fine the smile would be: how gentle, though a little martyred by life, and how bravely tolerant.

The beholder waited for this promised heavenly smile, but waited in vain. "You always think she's just going to until you see her often enough to find she never does," a broad shouldered matron explained to two of her friends at Mrs. Cromwell's. The three had formed one of the little clubs for a temporary unmasking and were lookers on in Vienna for the moment. "It's an old wornout kind of thing to say," the sturdy matron continued, "but I can never resist applying it to her. Nobody can ever possibly be as good as Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite looks. I'll even risk saying that nobody can ever possibly be as good as she seems to behave!"

"O, Mrs. Dodge!" one of the others exclaimed. "But isn't behavior the final proof? My husband says conduct is the only test of character."

"He doesn't know what he's talking about," the brusque Mrs. Dodge returned. "When we do anything noble it's in spite of our true character; that's what makes it a noble thing to do. I've lived next door to that woman for five years, and though, I seldom exchange more than a word with her, I can't help having her in my sight pretty often. She always looks noble and she always sounds noble. Even when she says, 'Isn't it a lovely day?' she sounds noble—and for my part I'm sick and tired of her nobility!"

"But my husband says——"

"I don't care what your husband says," Mrs. Dodge interrupted. "The woman's a nuisance!"

"To me," said the third of the group, gravely, "that sounds almost like sacrilege. I've always felt that even though Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite is still quite a young woman, she's the focus of spiritual life for this whole community. I think the people here generally look upon her as the finest inspiration we have among us."

"I know they do," Mrs. Dodge said irritably. "That's one reason I think she's a pest. People are always trying to live up to her, and it makes cowards and hypocrites of 'em. Look at her now!"

MRS. BRAITHWAITE had reached the hostess, who was shouting in concert with several new arrivals; but when Mrs. Braithwaite appeared the voices of all this group were somewhat lowered (though they could not be lowered much and hope to be audible), and, what was more remarkable, Mrs. Cromwell's expression and her manner were instantly altered preceptibly; so were the expressions and manners of the others about her, as Mrs. Dodge, vindictively pointed out.

"Look at that!" she said. "Every one of those poor geese is trying to look like her; they feel they have to seem as noble as she is! Instinctively they're all trying to take her hushed sweetness. Nobody dares be natural anywhere near her."

"But that's because of the affection people feel for her," the second of the defenders explained. "Don't you feel——"

"Affection, your grandmother!" the brusque lady interrupted. "What are you talking about?"

"Well, reverence, then. Perhaps that's the better word for the feeling people have about her. They know how much of her life she gives to good works. She's at the head of——"

"Yes, she certainly is!" Mrs. Dodge agreed bitterly. "She's the head and front of every uplifting movement among us. You can't open your mail without finding benefit tickets you have to buy for some good cause she's chairman of. She's always the girl that passes the hat: she's the one that makes us feel like selfish dogs if we don't give till it hurts! She's the star collector, all right!"

"Well, oughtn't we to be grateful that she takes such duties upon herself?"

"Do we ever omit any of our gratitude? Why, the papers are full of it: 'It is the sense of this committee that except for the noble, unflagging and self-sacrificing devotion of Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite this fund could never have reached the generous dimensions necessary for the carrying on of this work. Therefore, be it resolved that the thanks of this entire organization,' and so forth. And as a matter by the way, you never hear whether she gave any of the fund herself."

"She gives time," said the lady who had quoted her husband. "She gives energy. Mr. Battle says, 'Who gives himself gives all.' Mrs. Braithwaite gives herself."

"Yes, she does," Mrs. Dodge agreed. "It's her form of recreation."

Her two auditors stared at her incredulously, so that she could plainly see how shocked they were; but, before either of them spoke, a beautiful change in look and manner came upon them. Both of them elevated their chins a little, so that their faces slanted more toward heaven than toward earth; both of them seemed about to smile angelically, but stopped just short of smiling; a purified softness came into their eyes; and altogether, by means of various other subtle little manifestations, the two ladies began to look noble.

MRS. DODGE had turned her back toward the group about the hostess, but without looking round she understood what the change in her two companions portended. "Good-by, ladies of Shalott," she said. "The curse has come upon you!" And she moved away, just as the ennobled two stepped forward to meet Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite in her approach to them.

"Clever of me!" Mrs. Dodge thought, with some bitterness. "Getting myself the reputation of 'a dangerous woman!'" For she understood well enough that she would do no injury to Mrs. Braithwaite in attacking her; on the contrary, the injury would inevitably be to the assailant; and yet Mrs. Dodge could not forbear from a little boomerang practice at this shining and impervious mark. The reason, unfortunately, was personal, as most reasons are: Mrs. Dodge had come to the "tea" in an acute state of irritation that had been increasing since morning. In fact, she had begun the day with a breakfast table argument of which Mrs. Braithwaite was the subject.

Mr. Dodge made the unfortunate admission that he had recently sent Mrs. Braithwaite a check for a hundred dollars, his subscription to the Workers' Welfare league, and he was forced into subsequent admissions: he had no interest in the Workers' Welfare league, and could give no reason for sending a check to it except that Mrs. Braithwaite had written him appealing for a subscription. She was sure he wouldn't like to miss the chance to aid in so splendid a movement, she said. Now, as Mrs. Braithwaite had previously written twice to Mrs. Dodge in almost the same words, and as Mrs. Dodge had twice replied declining to make a donation, the argument (so to call it) on Mrs. Dodge's part was a heated one. It availed her husband little to protest that he had never heard of Mrs. Braithwaite's appeals to his wife; Mrs. Dodge was too greatly incensed to be reasonable.

Later in the day she was remorseful, realizing that she had taken poor Mr. Dodge for her anvil because he was within reach, and what she really wanted to hammer wasn't. Her remorse applied itself strictly to her husband, however, and she had none for her feeling toward the lady next door. Mrs. Dodge and her neighbor had never discovered any point of congeniality: Mrs. Braithwaite's high serenity, which Mrs. Dodge called suavity, was of so paradoxical a smoothness that Mrs. Dodge said it "rubbed the wrong way from the start." The uncongeniality had increased with time until it became a settled dislike, so far as Mrs. Dodge was concerned; and now, after Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite's successful appeal to Mr. Dodge for what Mr. Dodge's wife had refused, the dislike was rankling itself into a culmination not unlike an actual and lusty hatred.

Mrs. Dodge realized her own condition; she knew hatred is bad for the hater; but she could not master the continuous anger within her. Fascinated, she watched Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite at the "tea"; could not help watching her, although, as the victim of this fascination admitted to herself in so many words, the sight was "poison" to her. Nor was the poison alleviated by the effect of Mrs. Braithwaite upon the other guests: everywhere the angelic presence moved about the capacious rooms it was preceded and followed by deference. And when Mrs. Braithwaite joined a woman or a group of women, Mrs. Dodge marked with a hot eye how that woman or group of women straightway hushed a little and looked noble.

Mrs. Dodge went home early. "I oughtn't to have come," she told her hostess, confidentially, in parting. "I try to be a Christian sometimes, but this is one of the days when I think Nero was right."

"But what——"

"I may tell you—some day," Mrs. Dodge promised, and gloomily went her way.

AT DINNER that evening she was grim, softening little when her husband plaintively resumed his defense. Their daughter, Lily, the only other member of this family, inquired why her mother was of so dread a countenance.

"Me," Mr. Dodge explained. "It began at breakfast before you were up, and it's the old culprit, Lily."

"I guessed that much," Lily said cheerfully. "I haven't been falling in love with anybody foolish for three or four months now; and that's the only thing I ever do to make mamma look like this, so I know it must be you. What you been up to?"

"Aiding in good causes," he answered, sighing. "She hates me for helping the Workers, Lily. Our next door neighbor appealed to Cæsar, over your mother's head. I've explained two or three hundred times that I didn't know there'd been any previous requests to her; but she hates my wicked plotting just the same."

"No. I only hate your weakness," Mrs. Dodge said, somewhat relaxing her severity. "You were so eager to please that woman you couldn't even wait to consult your wife. Her writing to you and ignoring what I'd twice written her was the rudest thing I've ever had done to me, and your donation puts you in the position of approving it. She did it because she's furious with me, and you——"

But Lily interrupted her. "Mamma!" she exclaimed. "Why, you're talking just ridiculously! Everybody knows Mrs. Braithwaite couldn't be 'furious.' Not with anybody!"

"Couldn't she? Then why did she do such an insulting thing to me? Don't you suppose she knows it's insulting to show she can get a poor silly husband to do something his wife has declined to do? Is there a cattier trick in the whole cattish repertoire? She did it because she's the slyest puss in this community and she knows I know it, and hates me for it!"

Lily stared in the blankest surprise. "Why, it just sounds like anarchy!" she cried. "I never heard you break out like that before except when you were talking about some boy I liked! When did you get this way about Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite?"

"I've never liked her," Mrs. Dodge said. "Never! I've always suspected she was a whited sepulchre, and now I've got proof of it."

"Proof? That's quite a strong word, Lydia," Mr. Dodge reminded her.

"Thank you!" she said. "I mean exactly what I'm saying. Mrs. Braithwaite did this thing to me out of deliberate spitefulness; and she did it because she knows what I think of her."

"But you said you had 'proof' that she's a 'whited sepulchre'; that she's 'sly' and a 'hypocrite,'" he said. "The word 'proof'——"

"May we assume that it means reliable evidence reliably confirmed?' Mrs. Dodge asked, with satirical politeness. "Suppose you've done something disgraceful and another person happens to know you did it. Then suppose you play a nasty trick on this other person. Wouldn't it be proof that you hate him because he knows you did the disgraceful thing?"

"I'm afraid I don't follow you," Mr. Dodge said uncomfortably. "When did I ever do this disgraceful thing you're talking about? If it's actually disgraceful to subscribe a hundred dollars to the Workers——"

"I'm not talking of that," his wife said. "I'll try to put it within reach of your intellect. Suppose I know Mrs. Braithwaite to be a whited sepulchre; then if she does an insulting thing to me, isn't that proof she's furious with me for finding her out?"

WILDER FLOWERS

"I didn't raise my boy to be a fringed gentian," said Mr. Erskine Judson . . . A B.V.D. exit from the wild flower parade; and then a he-man drama of love, intrigue and juvenile fistics in gentle Harlow Hills . . . A rollicking yarn

by CLIFFORD RAYMOND

"No," he answered. "It might incline one to think that she resented your poor opinion of her, but it doesn't prove anything at all."

"Doesn't it? You wouldn't say so if you knew what I know!"

LILY'S eyes widened in hopeful eagerness. "How exciting!" she cried. "Mamma, what do you know about Mrs. Braithwaite?"

"Never mind!"

"But you said——"

"I said, 'Never mind!'"

"But I do mind!" Lily insisted. "You haven't got any right to get a person's interest all worked up like that and then just say, 'Never mind!'"

"That's all I shall say, however," Mrs. Dodge informed her stubbornly, and kept to her word, though Lily continued to press her until the meal was over. Mr. Dodge made no effort to aid his daughter in obtaining the revelation she sought—he appeared to be superior to the curiosity that impelled her, but this appearance of superiority may have been only an appearance: he may have foreseen that his wife would presently be a little more explicit about what she had implied against their neighbor.

In fact, Lily had no sooner gone forth upon some youthful junketing, immediately after dinner, than symptoms of forthcoming revelation were manifested: Mr. Dodge's physician allowed him one cigar a day, and it had just begun to scent the library.

"I suppose, of course, you're condemning me for a reckless talker," Mrs. Dodge said. "You assume that I'm willing to hint slander against a woman with only my own injury for a basis, instead of facts."

"On the contrary, Lydia," he returned mildly. "I know you wouldn't have said what you did unless you have something serious to found it on."

Probably she was a little mollified, but she did not show it. "So you give me that much credit?" she asked, sourly. "I imagine it's because you're just as curious as Lily and hope to hear what I wouldn't tell her. Well, I'm not going to gratify your curiosity."

"No?" He picked up a magazine from the table beside his chair, and began to turn over the pages. "O, very well."

"I am going to tell you something, though," she said. "It's because I think you ought to be told at least part of what I know. It may be good for you."

"For me?" he inquired calmly, though he well understood what she was going to say next.

"Yes, you might find it wiser to consult your wife next time, even when you're dealing with people you think are saints."

"Why, I don't think Mrs. Braithwaite's a saint," he protested. "She looks rather like one—a pretty one, too—and the general report is that she is one; but I don't know anything more than that about her. She happens to be a neighbor; but we've never had the slightest intimacy with her and her husband. We've never been in their house or they in ours. I bow to her when I see her and sometimes exchange a few words with her across the hedge between our two yards, usually about the weather. I don't think anything about her at all."

"Then it's time you did," Mrs. Dodge said with prompt inconsistency.

"All right. What do you want me to think about her, Lydia?"

"Nothing!" she said sharply. "O, laugh if you want to! I'll tell you just this much: I found out something about her by pure accident; and I decided I'd never tell anybody in the world—not even you. I'm not the kind of person to wreck anybody's life easily, and I decided just to bury what I happened to find out. What's more, I'd have kept it all buried if she'd had sense enough to let me alone. I wouldn't even have told you that I know something about her."

"It's something really serious?"

"'Serious?'" she said. "No, it's not 'serious.' It's ruinous."

MR. DODGE released a sound from his mouth: "Whee-ew!" Whistled, not spoken, it was his characteristic token that he found himself impressed. "You've certainly followed the right course, Lydia. Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite's standing isn't just a high one; it's lofty. I shouldn't care to be the person who blasts that statue off its pedestal—sometimes statues crush the blasters when they fall. I'm glad you kept your information to yourself." He paused, and then, being morally but an ordinary man, he added, "not—not that I see any particular harm in your confiding in my own discretion in such a matter."

"Didn't I explain I'm not confiding in your discretion?" Mrs. Dodge returned. "Lately, I don't believe you have any. I've told you this much so that next time you won't be so hasty in sending the checks to women who are merely using you to annoy your wife."

He sighed. "There's where you puzzle me, Lydia. If you found out something ruinous about Mrs. Braithwaite, as you say, and if she knows you did—you intimated she knows it, I think?"

"Absolutely."

"Then I should think you'd be the last person in the world she'd want to annoy. I should think she'd do everything on earth to please you and placate you. She'd want to keep you from telling. That's the weak point in your theory, Lydia."

"It isn't a theory. I'm speaking of facts."

"But if she knows you're aware of what might ruin her," he insisted, "she would naturally be afraid of you. Then why would she do a thing that might infuriate you?"

"Because she's a woman," said Mrs. Dodge. "And that's something you'll never understand!"

"But even a woman would behave with some remnants of caution, under the circumstances, wouldn't she?"

"Some women might. Mrs. Braithwaite doesn't because she's so sure of her lofty position she thinks she can deliberately insult me and I won't dare to do anything about it. She wanted to show me that she isn't afraid of me."

Mr. Dodge looked thoughtfully at that point upon his long cigar where a slender ring of red glow intervened between the adhering gray ash and the brown tobacco. "Well, at least she shows a fiery heart," he said. "In a way, you'd have to consider her action quite the sporting thing. You mean she's sent you a kind of declaration of war, don't you?"

"If you want to look at it that way. I don't, myself. I take it just as she meant it, and that's as a deliberate insult."

"But it isn't an 'insult' if she only meant it to show she isn't afraid of you, Lydia."

"It is, though," Mrs. Dodge insisted. "What she means is derision of me. It's the same as if she said: 'Here's a slap in the face for you. I have the satisfaction of humiliating you as your punishment for knowing what you do know about me, and you can't retaliate, because you aren't important enough to be able to injure me!' It's just the same as if she'd said those words to me."

"It seems quite a message," he observed. "Of course I can't grasp it myself, because I haven't any conception of this ruinous proceeding of hers. You were the only witness, I assume?"

"There was a third person present," Mrs. Dodge said stiffly. "But not as a witness."

"Then what was the third person present doing?"

Mrs. Dodge looked at him with severity, as if she reproved him for tempting her to do something wrong; then she took from a basket in her lap a square piece of partly embroidered linen and gave it her attention, not relaxing this preoccupation when her husband began to repeat his question.

"What was the third person——"

"I HEARD you," Mrs. Dodge interrupted, frowning at her embroidery. "If I told you that much I'd be virtually telling the whole thing; and I've decided not to do that, even under her deliberate provocation. If I let myself be provoked into telling, I'd be as small as she is, so you needn't hope to get another word out of me on the subject. The only answer I'll make to your question was that the third person present was not her husband!"

"O!" Mr. Dodge said loudly, and in his sudden enlightenment whistled "Whee-ew" again. "So that's it!"

"Not at all," she said. "You needn't jump to conclusions, and you'll never know anything more about it from me. The only way you could ever know about it would be through her husband's making a fuss and its getting into the papers or something."

"I see," Mr. Dodge said, apparently not much discouraged. "And since it's something he hasn't yet made any fuss about, it's evidently because he doesn't know."

"He!" Mrs. Dodge cried and in her scorn of Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite's consort dropped the embroidery into its basket and stared fiercely at Mr. Dodge; yet it was really at an invisible Mr. Braithwaite that she directed this glare of hers. Apparently the unfortunate gentleman was one of those mere husbands whose existence seems to amuse or to incense the wives of more dominant men: Mrs. Dodge certainly appeared to be incensed. "That miserable little pale shadow of a man!" she cried. "His name's Leslie Braithwaite, but do you ever hear him spoken of except as 'Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite's husband'? He goes down to his little brass rod works at 8 o'clock every morning and gets money for her until 6 in the evening. Then he comes home and works on the account books of her uplifts until bedtime. If they go out he stands around with her wrap over his arm and doesn't speak unless you ask him a question. If you do he begins his answer by saying, 'My wife informs me'! How could that poor little creature know anything about anything?"

"But you know," Mr. Dodge persisted. "You do know, do you, Lydia?"

"I know what I know," she replied, and resumed her preoccupation with the embroidery.

"But you couldn't substantiate it by another witness, I take it," he said, musingly. "That is, she feels safe against you because if you should ever decide to tell she would deny it and put you in the position of an accuser without proofs. It would simply be your word against hers, and she'd have the sympathy that goes to the party attacked, and also the advantage of her wide reputation for lofty character and——"

"Go on," his wife interrupted. "Amuse yourself all you like; you'll not find out another thing from me! Perhaps, if you should ever spend the morning at home, digging around in our flower border along the hedge between her yard and ours, you might happen to hear her talking to her chauffeur; and in that case you might get to know something more. Otherwise, I don't see how you ever will."

"LYDIA!"

"What?"

"I'm not going to dig in any flower border! I'm not going to spy around any hedge just to——"

"Neither did I!" she cried, indignantly. "Did you ever know me to do any spying?"

"Certainly not. But you said——"

"I said 'if you happen to.' You don't suppose I hid and listened deliberately? I was down on my hands and knees planting tulip bulbs and the thick hedge was between us. That's how it happened, and why she never dreamed anybody was near her. I didn't even hear her come in that part of her yard until I heard her speaking right by me, on the other side of the hedge. Please don't be quite so quick to think your wife would be willing to spy on another woman."

"I didn't," Mr. Dodge protested, hastily. "What did she say to the chauffeur?"

"That," his wife replied severely, "is something you'll never hear from me!"

"From whom shall I hear it, then?"

"I've just told you how you might hear it," she said, plying her needle and seeming to give it all her attention.

"But I can't spend my time in the tulip bed, Lydia."

"That's not what I meant. I said if her husband ever makes such a fuss that it gets into the papers."

"If he does, I might find out what she said to the chauffeur?"

"O, maybe," Mrs. Dodge said; and she gave him a sidelong glance of some sharpness, then quickly seemed to be busy again with her work.

"I don't make it out at all," the puzzled gentleman complained. "Apparently you overheard Mrs. Braithwaite saying something to her chauffeur that would be ruinous to her if it were known—something that might cause her husband to make a public uproar if he had heard it himself. Is that it?"

Mrs. Dodge began to hum fragmentarily to herself, and seemed concerned with nothing in the world except the selection of a proper spool of thread from her basket.

"Is that it, Lydia?"

"You'll never find out from me," she said, searching anxiously through the basket. "Anyhow, I shouldn't think you'd need to ask such simple questions."

"So, that is it! What you heard her say to her chauffeur would ruin her if people knew about it. Was she talking to the chauffeur about her husband?"

"Good gracious!" Mrs. Dodge cried, derisively. "What would she be talking to anybody about that poor little thing for? She never does. I don't believe anybody ever heard her mention him in her life!"

"Then was she talking to the chauffeur about some other man?"

"Of all the ideas! If a woman were in love with a man not her husband do you think she'd tell her servants about it? Besides, they've only had this chauffeur about two weeks. Have you noticed him?"

"Yes," said Mr. Dodge. "I've seen him sitting in their car in front of the house several times, and I was quite struck with him. He seemed to be not only one of the handsomest young men I ever saw but to have rather the look of a gentleman."

"SO?" Mrs. Dodge said inquiringly; and her tone was the more significant because of her appearing to be wholly preoccupied with her work basket. "You noticed that, did you?"

"You don't mean to say——"

"I don't mean to say anything at all," she interrupted, crisply. "I've told you that often enough for you to begin to understand it."

"All right; I do. Well, when she'd said whatever she did say to the chauffeur, what happened?"

"O, that!" she returned. "I'm perfectly willing to tell you. I got up and looked at her over the hedge. I wasn't going to stay there and listen—and I certainly wasn't going to crawl away on my hands and knees! I just looked at her quietly, and turned away and came into the house."

"What did she do?"

"She was absolutely disconcerted. Her face just seemed to go all to pieces: it didn't look like her face at all. She was frightened to death, and I never saw anything plainer. That's one reason she hates me so—because I saw her looking so afraid of me and she couldn't help it. Of course, as soon as I got into the house I looked out through the lace curtains at a window—you could hardly expect me not to—and I saw her just going back into her own house by the side door. She'd braced up and looked all stained glass Joan of Arc by that time."

Mr. Dodge sat waggling his head and muttering in wonder. "Of all curious things!" he said. "Human nature is so everlastingly full of oddities it's always turning up new ones that you sit and stare at and can't believe are real. There they are, right before your eyes, and yet they're incredible. What did she say to the chauffeur?"

"No, no," Mrs. Dodge said reprovingly. "That's what I can't tell you." And she added: "I should think you would guess it, anyhow."

"Was there——" He paused a moment, pondering. "Did she use any specially marked terms of endearment in addressing him?"

"No," Mrs. Dodge replied, returning her attention to her work." "Not terms."

"O!" he said. "Just one term, then? She used a single term of endearment in addressing him. Is that correct?"

Again Mrs. Dodge became musical: she hummed a cheerful tune, but her face was overcast with a dour solemnity.

"So she did!" her husband exclaimed. "Did she she call him 'dear'?"

"No, she didn't."

"'Dearest'?"

"No, she didn't."

"Not," he said incredulously, "not—'darling'?"

Mrs. Dodge instantly resumed her humming.

"By George!" her husband cried. "Why, that's just awful! What else did she say to him besides calling him 'darling'?"

"I didn't say she said anything else," Mrs. Dodge returned primly. "The rest wasn't so important anyhow, and she was speaking in a low voice. I thought the rest of it was, 'Rosemary, that's for remembrance.' I couldn't be sure because I didn't hear it distinctly."

"But you did distinctly hear her call him 'darling'?"

"What I heard distinctly," Mrs. Dodge replied, "I heard distinctly."

"So what Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite said to the chauffeur was this: 'Rosemary, that's for remembrance, darling'?"

"You must draw your own conclusions," she advised him severely.

"I do—rather!" he returned, and in a marveling tone slowly pronounced their neighbor's name: "Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite! Of all women in the world, Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite! And when you rose up and she saw you, she just went all to pieces and didn't say a word?"

"I told you."

"What did the handsome chauffeur do?"

"Just stood there."

"IT'S beyond anything!" Mr. Dodge's amazement was not abated; he shook his head and uttered groaning sounds of pessimistic wonderment. "I suppose the true meaning of the saying 'It's the unexpected that happens' is that life is always teaching us to accept the incredible. How long ago was it?"

"A week ago yesterday."

"Have you seen her since?"

"I never talk to her, or she to me. We say 'How-d'-you-do-what-lovely-weather,' and that's all we ever do say. We haven't even any neighborly contact through congenial servants, because of our having colored people; hers are white. I haven't caught a glimpse of her since it happened until this afternoon, when she came to Jane Cromwell's tea. Of course, she knew I was looking at her, and she knew perfectly what I was thinking—particularly about her insult to me in making such a goose of my husband."

"But Lydia——"

"She was having the time of her life over that!"

"Well," he said, reflectively, "leaving out the question of whether or not I was a goose especially, and considering her without personal bias, I must say that under the circumstances she's shown a mighty picturesque intricacy of character, as well as a pretty dashing kind of hardihood. If, as you believe, she sent her note to me as really a derisive taunt—a gauntlet flung at you with mocking laughter—and all the while she knows you know of her philandering with a good looking varlet——"

"She's a bad woman!" Mrs. Dodge exclaimed, angrily. "That's all there is to it, and you needn't be so poetical about her!"

"Good gracious, Lydia, I wasn't——"

"Never mind! We can talk of her just as well without any reference to gauntlets and mocking laughter and varlets. That is, if you insist upon talking about her at all. For my part, I prefer just to keep her entirely out of my mind."

"Very well," he assented, meekly. "I don't know that I can keep anything so singular out of my mind, but I won't speak of it, if it annoys you. What else shall we talk of?"

"Anything in the world except that detestable woman." Mrs. Dodge replied. Then after some moments of silence over her embroidery, she added abruptly: "Of course, you don't think she's detestable!"

"I only said——"

"'Picturesque' was what you said. 'Dashing' was another thing you said. You're quite fascinated with her derisive gauntlets and her mocking laughter! Dear me, if that isn't like men!"

"But I only——"

"O, murder!" Mrs. Dodge moaned, interrupting him. "I thought you said you weren't going to talk about her any more!"

At this he showed spirit enough to laugh. "You know well enough we're both going to keep on talking about her, Lydia. What do you intend to do?"

"About what?" Mrs. Dodge looked surprised. "About her, you mean? Why, naturally, I intend to keep on doing what I have been doing, and that's nothing whatever except to hold my peace. I don't descend to the level of feuds with intriguing women. She gave me a clew, though, this afternoon."

"What sort of a clew, Lydia?"

"I DON'T suppose a man could understand, but I'll try to give you a glimmering. When she wrote that note to you there was one thing she hadn't thought of. She thought of it this afternoon at that tea; it struck her all of a sudden that I could make things a little unpleasant for her if I took the notion to. She just happened to remember that Jane Cromwell is my most intimate friend, and that Jane is the grandest old rock bottomed mountain this community can boast. Jane was born here, and the Leslie Braithwaites only arrived and began working up the pedestal about ten years ago. That woman all at once remembered I might tell Jane."

"How do you know she did?"

"That's what a man couldn't see. I knew it by a lot of little things I couldn't put into words if I tried, but principally I knew it by watching her manner with Jane."

"You mean she tried to ingratiate herself?" he asked. "Her maner was more winsome or flattering than usual?"

"No, not exactly. Not so open—you couldn't understand—but it was perfectly clear to me she was having the time of her life thinking of what she'd done to me through my husband's weakness, when all at once she thought of my influence with Jane. Well, she's afraid of it, and it made her wish she hadn't gone quite so far with me. She'd give a whole lot tonight, I'll wager, if she'd been just a little less picturesque with her gauntlet throwing and her mocking laughter! You asked me what I was going to do and I told you 'nothing.' I hardly think now I'll even do what she's afraid I will and tell Jane. But she'll do something. She's afraid, and she'll make a move of some sort. You'll see."

"But what? What could she do?"

"I don't know, but you'll see. You'll see before long, too."

"Well, I'm inclined to hope so," he said. "It would certainly be interesting, but I doubt her making any move at all. I'm afraid you won't turn out to be a good prophet."

ON THE contrary, he, himself, was a poor prophet; and sometimes destiny seems to juggle miraculously with coincidences in order to attract our attention to the undiscovered laws that produce them. In fact, Mr. Dodge was so poor a prophet—and so near to intentional burlesque are the manners of destiny in its coincidence juggling—that at this moment Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite's husband had just rung the Dodges' front doorbell. Two minutes later a mulatto housemaid appeared in the doorway of the library and produced a sensational effect merely by saying, "Mrs. Braithwaite and Mr. Braithwaite is calling. I showed 'em into the drawing room."

She withdrew, and the staggered couple, after an interval of incoherent whispering, went forth to welcome their guests.

Mrs. Braithwaite was superb—at least, that was Mr. Dodge's impersonal conception of her: never before had he seen sainthood so suavely combined with a piquant beauty, nor an evening gown of dull red silk and black lace so exquisitely invested with an angelic presence. For tonight this lady looked not only noble, she looked charming; and either his wife had made a grotesque mistake or he stood before a sublime actress, unmatched in his experience. She began talking at once, in her serene and sweet contralto voice—a beautiful voice, delicately hushed and almost imperceptibly precious in its pronunciation. "It seemed to us really rather absurd, Mrs. Dodge, that you and your husband should be our next door neighbors for so long without even having set foot in our house, or we in yours. And as Mr. Dodge has lately been so generous to my poor little Workers' Welfare league—the unhappy creatures do need help so, and the ladies of the committee were so touched by your kindness, Mr. Dodge—we thought we'd just make that an excuse to call, even thus informally and for only a few minutes. We wanted to express the thanks of the league, of course, and we thought it was about time to say we aren't really so unneighborly as we may have seemed—and we hope you aren't, either!"

"No, indeed," Mr. Dodge responded with a hasty glance of sidelong uneasiness at his wife. Her large face was red and rather dismayingly fierce, as she sat stiffly in the stiffest chair in the Dodge's white walled, cold and rigidly symmetrical drawing room, but she said "No, indeed," too, though not so heartily as her husband did. In fact, she said it grimly; yet he was relieved, for her expression made him fear that she would say nothing at all.

"One of the things I find to regret about modern existence," Mrs. Braithwaite continued in her beautiful voice, "is the disappearance of neighborliness, even in a quiet suburban life like yours and ours. Of course, this is anything but a new thought, yet how concretely our two houses have illustrated it! So it did seem time, at last, to break the ice, especially as I have good reason to think that just these last few days you must have been thinking of me as quite a naughty person, Mrs. Dodge."

Mrs. Dodge stared at her; appeared to stare not only with astounded eyes but with a slowly opening mouth. "What? What did you say?" she asked, huskily.

"I'M afraid you've been thinking of me as rather naughty," the serene caller said, and her ever promised smile seemed a little more emphatically promised than it had been. "I ought to confess to you that as a collector for my poor little Workers' League I'm terribly unscrupulous. It's such a struggling little organization and the need of help is so frightfully pressing, I may as well admit I haven't any scruples at all how I get money for it. Yet, of course, I know I ought to apologize for asking Mr. Dodge to contribute to a cause that you didn't feel particularly interested in yourself."

"O!" Mrs. Dodge said, and, to her husband's consternation, she added formidably: "Is that what you're talking about?"

No disastrous effect was visible, however. Mrs. Braithwaite nodded sunnily. "I'm sure you'll forgive me for the sake of the happiness the money brought to a pitiful little family—the father hasn't had any work for eight months; there are four young children and one just born. If you could see their joy when——"

"I daresay!" Mrs. Dodge interrupted. "I'm glad it did some good!"

"I was sure you'd feel so." Mrs. Braithwaite glanced gently at her host, whose face was a remarkable study of geniality in conflict with apprehension; then her gaze returned to her hostess. "I wanted to make my peace not only for myself," she added, "but for your husband. I'm sure you're going to forgive him, Mrs. Dodge."

Innocently, Mr. Dodge supposed this to be intended as a kindly effort on his behalf and in the general interests of amiability. He was surprised, therefore, and his apprehensions of an outbreak on the part of his wife were little abated when he perceived that its effect upon her was far from placative. Her ample figure seemed to swell; she was red, but grew redder; her action in breathing became not only visible but noticeable; to his appalled vision she seemed about to snort forth sparks. For several perilous moments she did not speak; then, after compressing her lips tightly, she said: "Mr. Dodge sent you his check upon my direction, of course. Naturally, he consulted me. I told him that since you had twice solicited me for a subscription it would be best for us to send you some money and be done with it."

Mrs. Braithwaite uttered a soothing sound as of amused relief. "That's so much nicer!" she said. "I was afraid you might have been annoyed with both of us—with both poor Mr. Dodge and myself—but that exculpates us. I'm so very glad." She turned to the perturbed host. "I was so afraid I'd involved you, Mr. Dodge—perhaps quite beyond forgiveness."

"Not at all—not at all," he said, removing his gaze with difficulty from his wife's face. "O, no. Everything—eyerthing's been perfectly pleasant," he floundered, and Mrs. Dodge's expression did not reassure him that he was saying the right thing. "Perfectly—ah—pleasant," he repeated, feebly.

"I so hoped it would be," Mrs. Braithwaite said. "I hoped Mrs. Dodge wouldn't be very hard on you for aiding in such a good cause."

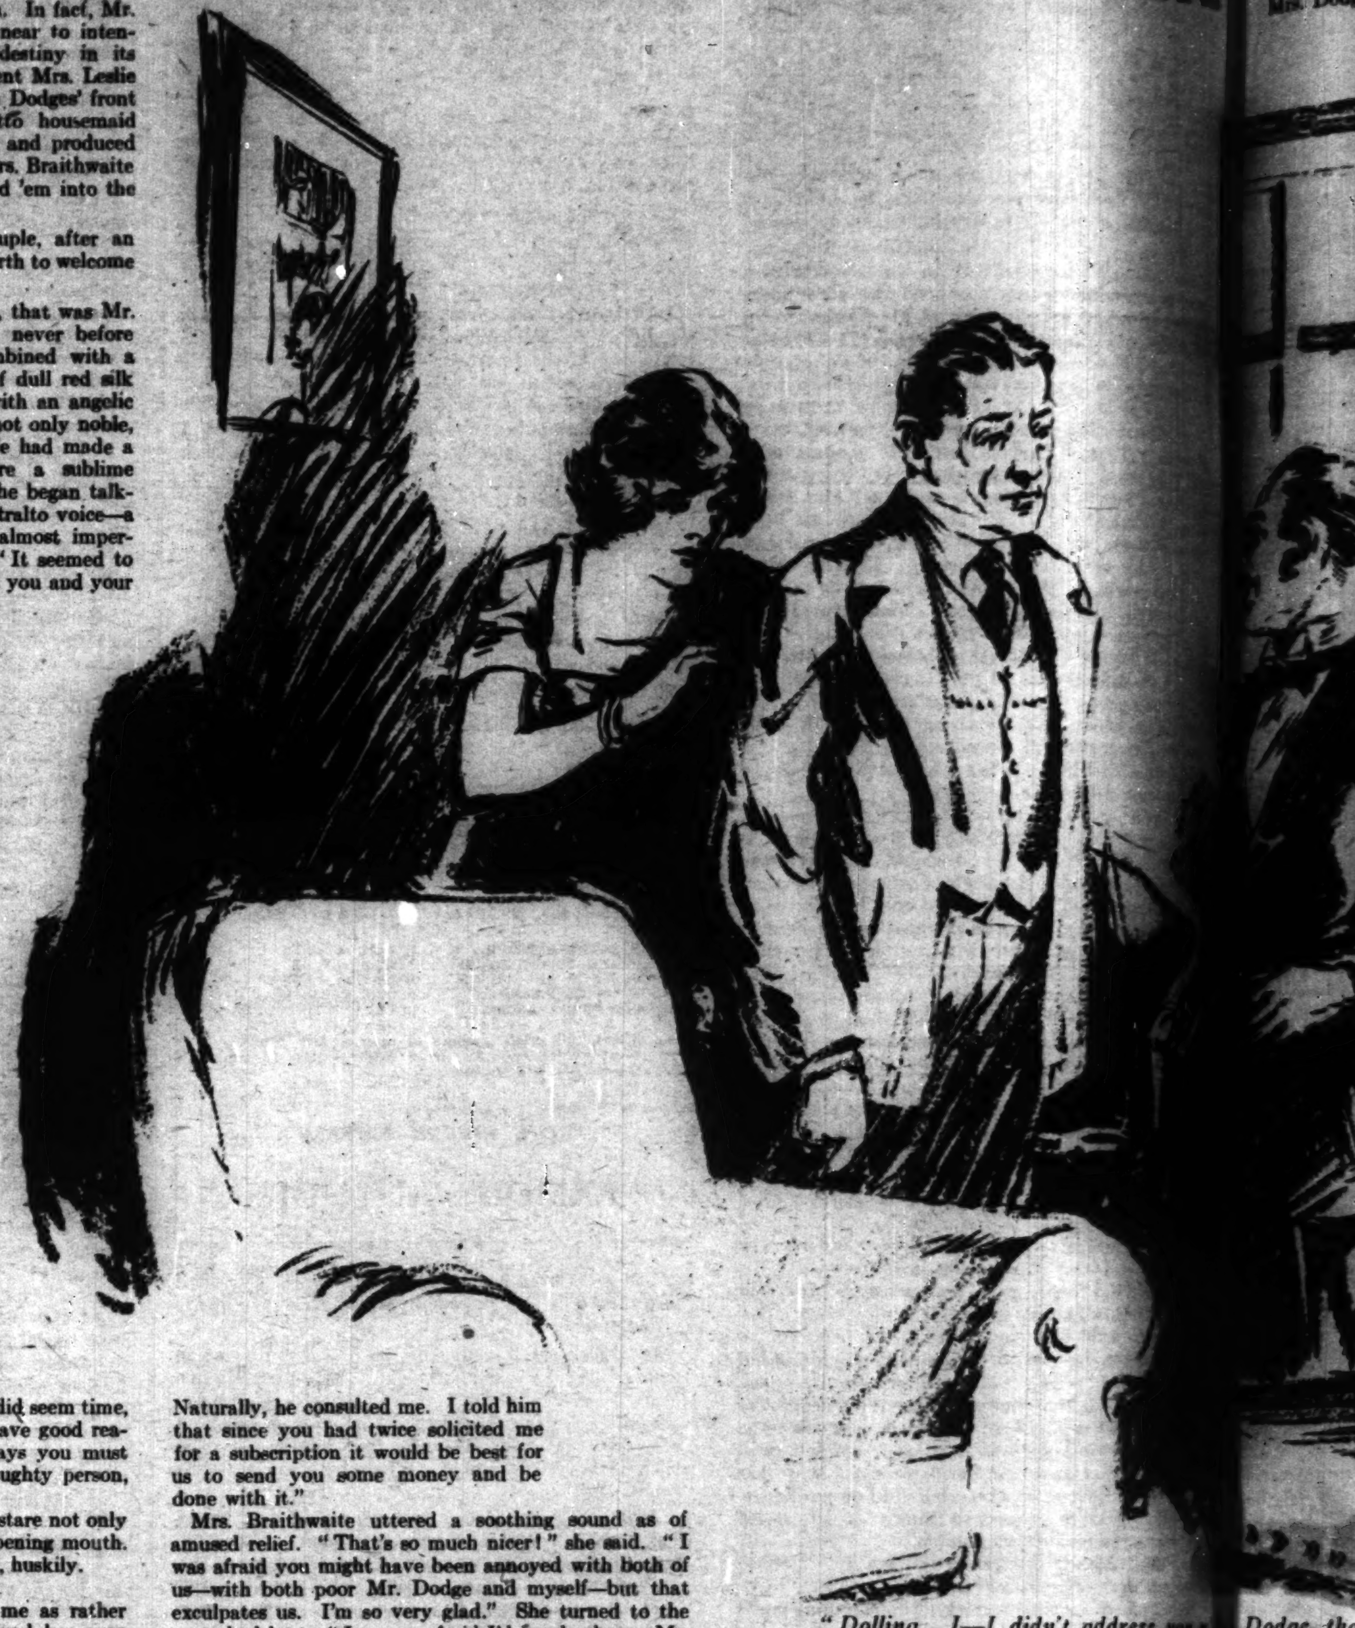
"No," he returned nervously. "No, she—she wasn't. She proved to be entirely—ah—amiable, of course." And again he was dismayed by Mrs. Dodge's expression.

"Of course," Mrs. Braithwaite agreed, sunnily, with only the quickest and sweetest little fling of a glance at her heavily breathing hostess. "I was sure she'd forgive you. Well, at any rate, we've both made our peace with her now and established the entente cordiale, I hope." She turned toward her husband and spoke his name gently, in the tone that is none the less a command to the obedient follower: "Leslie." It was apparently her permission for him to prepare himself for departure; but it may also have been a signal or command for him to do something else—Mr. Dodge noticed that it brought an oddly plaintive look into the eyes of the small and dark Braithwaite.

THROUGHOUT the brief but rather strained interview he had been sitting in one of the Dodges' rigid chairs as quietly as if he had been a well behaved little son of Mrs. Braithwaite's brought along to make a call upon grown people. He was slender, as well as short; of a delicate, almost fragile, appearance, and in company habitually so silent, so self-obliterative that it might well have been a matter of doubt whether he was profoundly secretive or of an overwhelming timidity. But as he sat in the Dodges' slim black chair, himself rather like that chair, with his trim, thin little black legs primly uncrossed and his small black back straight and stiff, there were suggestions that he was more secretive than timid. Under his eyes were semicircles of darkness, as if part of what he secreted might have been a recent anguish, either physical or mental. Moreover, if he had been in reality the well trained little boy his manners during this short evening call had suggested, those semicircles under his eyes would have told of anguish so acute that the little boy had wept.

When his wife said "Leslie," he swallowed; there came into his eyes the odd and plaintive look his host had noticed—it was the look now not of a good little boy but of a good little dog, obedient in a painful task set by the adored master—and he stood up immediately.

"We really must be running," his wife said, rising, too. "This was just our funny little effort to break the ice. I do hope it has, and that you'll both come in to see us some evening. I do hope you'll both come." She put an almost imperceptible stress on the word "both," as she moved toward the door; then said "Leslie" again. He was still standing beside his chair.



"Dolling. I—I didn't address you a[illegible] Dodge, tho

"Yes?" his host said, encouragingly.

"I—that is, I was going to say, by the way, I wonder if you happen to know of a good chauffeur, Mr. Dodge."

At this Mrs. Dodge's breathing became audible, as well as visible, there fell a moment of such silence.

"A—a chauffeur? No," Mr. Dodge said. "No, I don't think I do. We haven't one, ourselves; we do our own driving. A chauffeur? No. I'm afraid I don't know of any."

"I see," Braithwaite returned. "I just happened to ask. We've—ah—lost the man we've had lately. He was a very good driver and we haven't anybody to take his place."

Mrs. Dodge spoke sepulchrally as she rose from her chair. "That's too bad," she said, and, to her husband's relief, stopped there, adding nothing.

"Yes," Braithwaite assented. "He was a very good driver, indeed; but he was a college graduate, and only yesterday he found another position, tutoring, and left us. He was a very good man—Dolling."

"What?" Mr. Dodge said. "Who?"

"Dolling," Braithwaite replied, and followed his wife to the door. "I just happened to mention his name: Dolling. I—I didn't address you as 'darling,' Mr. Dodge, though I see how you might easily have thought I did. The man's name was Dolling. I shouldn't like you to think I'd take the liberty of calling you——"

But here he was interrupted by such an uproarious shout of laughter from his host that his final words were lost. Mr. Dodge's laughter continued, though it was interspersed with hearty expressions of hospitality and parting cheer, until the callers had passed the outer threshold and the door closed behind them. Then the hilarious gentleman returned from the hall to face a wife who found nothing in the world, just then, a laughing matter.

"The worst thing you did," she assured him, "was to be so fascinated that you told her I'd been amiable to you about sending that check—just after I said I knew all about it before you sent it and had told you to send it! That was a pleasant position to put your wife in, wasn't it?"

"Lydia!" he shouted, still outrageous in his mirth, "let's forget that part of it and remember only Dolling!"

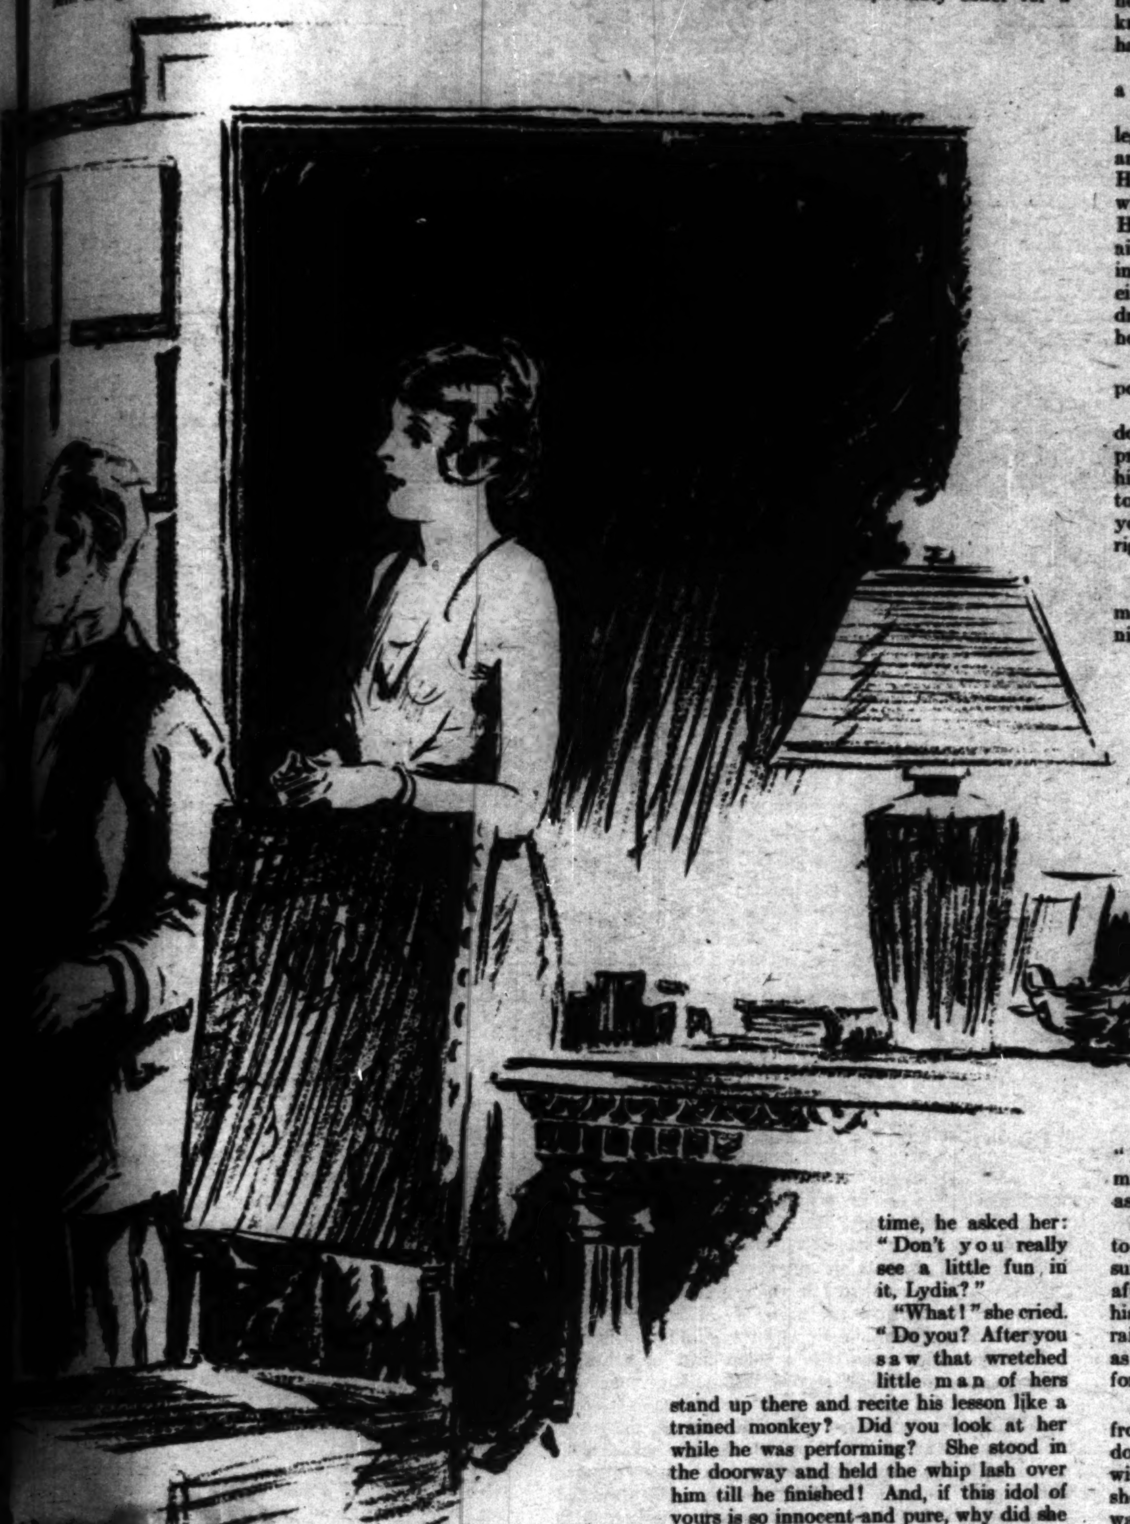
"All right," she said, and her angry eyes flashed, "suppose his name was Dolling. What was she talking to him about Rosemary and remembrance for?"

"I don't know, and it doesn't seem important. The only thing I can get my mind on is your keeping to yourself so solemnly the scandalous romance of Dolling!" And becoming more respectably sober for a time, he asked her: "Don't you really see a little fun in it, Lydia?"

"What!" she cried. "Do you? After you saw that wretched little man of hers stand up there and recite his lesson like a trained monkey? Did you look at her while he was performing? She stood in the doorway and held the whip lash over him till he finished! And, if this idol of yours is so innocent and pure, why did she go all to pieces the way she did when she saw me that morning by the hedge?"

"Why, don't you see?" he cried. "Of course, she saw you thought she'd called the man 'darling'! She knew you didn't know his name was Dolling. Isn't it plain to you yet?"

"No!" his wife said vehemently, "it isn't plain to me and it never will be!"



[illegible] dress you as [illegible] Dodge, though I see how you might easily [illegible] I did."

IN this prediction she was strangely correct, and the strangeness lay in the fact that a partial solution of what she persisted in believing to be a sinister puzzle was after a time revealed to her husband, who held all along that no puzzle whatever existed. To his way of thinking, the episode was an absurd trifle, of no more than a humorous significance, and he had for months dismissed it from his thoughts, as well as (with wisdom) from his domestic conversation, when by chance his singular illumination occurred.

At a restaurant in the skyscraper canyons downtown he was lunching with a younger member of his firm; their table was not far from the cashier's desk, and Mr. Dodge's attention, wandering, happened to become concentrated upon a debonair young man who had finished his lunch and was now engaged in affable discussion with the pretty cashier. He was one of those young men, sometimes encountered, who have not only a strong masculine beauty but the look of talent, with both the beauty and the talent belittled by an irresponsible twinkle of the eye. Standing below the level of the cashier's desk, which was upon a platform, there was something about him that suggested a laughing Romeo, and, in response, the cashier was evidently not unwilling to play a flippant Juliet. She tossed her head at him, tapped his cheek with a pencil, chattering eagerly; she blushed, laughed, and at last looked yearningly after him as he went away. Mr. Dodge also looked, for the young man was Dolling, once Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite's chauffeur.

"Fine little bit comedy, that," the junior member of "Dodge & Co." remarked across the small table "Talked her into giving him credit for his lunch. She'll have to make it up out of her own pocket until he pays her. Of course, he's done it before and she knows him. Characteristic of that fellow; he's a great hand to put it over with the girls!"

"Do you know him, Williams?" Mr. Dodge asked, a little interested.

"Know him? Lord, yes! He was in my class at college till he got fired in sophomore year. Every now and then he comes to me and I have to stake him. He's a reporter just now, but it's always the same, whether he's working or not; he never has any money. He can do anything—act, sing, break horses, drive an airplane, any kind of newspaper work—publishes poetry in the papers sometimes, and he's not such a bad poet either at that—but he's just one of these natural born drifters. Too good looking and too restless. He never holds a job more than a couple of months."

"I suppose not," Mr. Dodge said absently. "I suppose he's tried a good many."

"Rather!" Williams exclaimed. "I've got him I don't know how many myself. The last time he was pretty well down and out, and the best I could get him was a chauffeur's job for a little cuss I happened to know in the brass trade—Braithwaite. Lives out your way somewhere, I think. O'Boyle took it, all right—it was chauff or starve!"

"I beg your pardon. Who took what?"

"O'Boyle," said Williams. "Charlie O'Boyle, the man we're talking about—the chap that was just conning the giddily gilded cashier yonder. I was telling you he took a job as chauffeur for a family out your way in the suburbs."

"Yes. I understand," Mr. Dodge returned, with more gravity than Williams expected as a tribute to this casual narrative. "You said this O'Boyle became a chauffeur to some people named Braithwaite and that you obtained the position for him. I merely wondered—I suppose when you recommended this O'Boyle to Mr. Braithwaite, you—ah—you mentioned his name? I mean to say, you introduced O'Boyle as O'Boyle?"

"WELL, naturally," Williams replied, Surprised and a little nettled. "Why wouldn't I? I wouldn't expect people to take on a man for a family job like that and not tell 'em his name, would I? I don't see what you——"

"Nothing," Mr. Dodge said hurriedly, "Nothing at all. It was a ridiculous question. My mind was wandering to other things or I shouldn't have asked it. We'd better get down to business, I suppose."

But that was something his wandering mind refused to do; nor would it under any consideration or pressure "get down to business" during the rest of that afternoon. He went home early, and, walking from his suburban station in the first twilight of a gray but rainless November day, arrived at his own gate just as the Braithwaites' closed car drew up at the curb before the next house.

An elderly Negro chauffeur climbed down rustily from his seat at the wheel and opened the shining door. Mrs. Braithwaite stepped gracefully down, and, with her lovely saint's face uplifted above dark furs, she crossed the pavement, entered the low iron gateway, and walked up the wide stone path that led through the lawn to the house. On the opposite side of the street a group of impressed women stopped to stare, grateful for the favoring chance that gave them this glimpse of the great lady.

Mr. Braithwaite descended from the car and followed his wife toward the house. He did not overtake her and walk beside her, but his insignificant legs beneath his overcoat kept his small feet moving in neat short steps a little way behind her.

Meanwhile the pausing neighbor gazed at them and his open mouth showed how he pondered. It was not upon this strange woman, a little of whose strangeness had so lately been revealed to him, that he pondered most, nor about her that he most profoundly wondered. For, strange as the woman seemed to him, far stranger seemed the little creature pattering so faithfully behind her up the walk.

In so helpless a fidelity Mr. Dodge felt something touching; and perhaps, too, he felt that men must keep men's secrets. At all events, he made a high resolve. It would be hard on Mrs. Dodge, even unfair to her; but then and there he made up his mind that for the sake of Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite's husband he would never tell anybody—and of all the world he would never tell his wife—what he had learned that day about Mrs. Leslie Braithwaite's husband's loyalty.

The Golden Beast

by E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

HOW THE STORY STARTED:

ISRAEL FERNHAM, first Lord Honerton, entertains at his country house preliminary to a shooting party. His youngest son, Cecil, is called from dinner by a message from Heggs, head gamekeeper. Young Cecil has seduced Heggs' daughter. The old man throws Cecil to the stone floor, killing him. Through Lord Honerton's vast influence Heggs is hanged. Heggs' daughter,

MARGARET, curses the Fernhams. Israel dies and is succeeded by

JOSEPH FERNHAM, second Lord Honerton. Thirty years later Joseph entertains in the same dining room preceding a shooting meet. Joseph's youngest son,

ERNEST, is summoned by the head gamekeeper and vanishes. Lord Honerton's beautiful daughter,

JUDITH, hears Ernest's voice on the telephone, then the wire goes dead. Prince Edgar visits the Fernham plant with Lady Judith and her fiance,

LORD FREDDIE AMBERLEYS. There

SIR LAWRENCE PAULE, the brilliant but mysterious young chief chemist, refuses to let them see his private rooms. Sir Lawrence tells Judith a union between her and Amberleys would be ridiculous. Lord Honerton's brother,

SAMUEL FERNHAM, visits the plant. Paule, under protest, gives old Samuel a drug to make him young again for just two hours. Visiting Paule at the works, Judith peeps into his forbidden rooms while he is elsewhere. She shrieks and faints. Inside are grewsome skeletons which Paule uses in his research. Paule perfects a new nerve tonic which means a fortune for himself and another fortune for the Fernhams. Inspector Rodes asks Judith for a picture of Israel in youth. He is not satisfied that the child of Heggs' daughter really died. Lord Amberleys says the photo resembles Paule. Judith tells Sir Lawrence she fears madness. She fancies she has seen Ernest on waking suddenly. Lady Honerton tells him at a Honerton chase shoot that she has stepped over the edge of the world and has seen and talked with Ernest. She and Joseph have rendered

SAMUEL FERNHAM JR. panicky by expressing fear that he will be the next victim of the Fernham curse. Samuel, unnerved by dissipation, appeals to Paule for treatment when he becomes engaged to LADY JOYCE CLOUGHTON. Paule gives the youth a drug. Samuel falls asleep shortly afterward, and during the night disappears mysteriously from the country house. Sir Lawrence, departing for London the next morning, is followed by Rodes. He gives the inspector the slip by dropping from his car at a village en route. Joseph makes Paule a director of the company and promises him a $200,000 gift of stock. Judith at last pierces the chemist's armor of apparent indifference. He takes her in his arms and kisses her; and the same night she breaks her engagement to Amberleys.

INSTALLMENT X.

Half Way.

THE four young men who had been waiting in the library of the great house in Park Lane for over an hour rose with one accord to their feet as the door was at last opened and Rachel entered. With her white hair and parchment-like skin, her dress of unrelieved black, and her dark, brilliant eyes, she presented an appearance which for a moment absorbed their interest to such an extent that the current of their thoughts was changed and not one of them asked the question which had been trembling on his lips for so long. Rachel was perfectly composed.

"I am Lady Honerton," she announced. "I understand that you gentlemen are from various newspapers and wish to see me."

The young man nearest to her constituted himself spokesman.

"We have been informed, Lady Honerton," he began, "there are some rumors going about, in fact—that Lord Honerton has—er—is not——"

"My husband's prolonged absence from home is certainly causing us great anxiety." Rachel acknowledged calmly.

"May we ask for the exact particulars of his disappearance?" the journalist continued.

"They are very simple," Rachel replied. "He left home at the usual time this morning, spent an hour at the works, called at his bank in the city, and sent the car back from there. Since then I have not received even a telephone message."

"You expected him here to luncheon?" one of the others asked.

"Not only did I expect him, but he had invited some guests," she told her inquisitors. "They arrived at one o'clock, but we had to lunch without him."

"And the bank," her first questioner suggested. "What about the bank? Did he draw out a large sum of money?"

"He drew no money at all."

"Have you any idea why he sent his car home?" one of the visitors asked.

"None at all. It was a most unusual occurrence. He seldom walks a yard if he can help it."

The only member of the little company of journalists who had not yet spoken ventured to intervene.

"Lady Honerton," he said, "you must forgive us for alluding to such a painful subject, but the successive disappearances of your son and nephew have been the most sensational items of news the press has had to deal with during the last few years. The fact that Lord Honerton himself is now missing will, of course, come as a thunderbolt upon the public. May we ask whether you have any theory, any possible explanation as to this amazing sequence of events? Is there any vendetta, for instance, in your family, or—if you will pardon the suggestion—any trace of lunacy?"

"There is nothing of the sort," Rachel replied calmly.

"You have no theory, Lady Honerton, in your mind?"

"I have no theory," she confessed. "I used to think and wonder—now I only suffer. If there is nothing I can do for you, you will perhaps excuse me. I have a visitor waiting in another room."

No one ventured to detain her. The nearest held the door open, and she left the room with unseeing eyes. On the morrow the press of the country could do little except announce, without comment, in the baldest possible terms, the sudden and inexplicable disappearance of Joseph, second Baron Honerton.

PAULE, who was waiting for Rachel in the room upon the ground floor which Joseph was accustomed to call his study, rose to his feet at her entrance and offered an imperturbable greeting. She brushed aside the commonplaces of conversation, however, with her first words.

"Sir Lawrence," she begged, "will you help me to find my husband?"

"I will help, of course, as every one would," he assured her, "but I fear that there is not the slightest chance of my being able to succeed where so many have failed."

"I think otherwise," she rejoined.

He looked at her curiously. Rachel, then, was the source of that suspicion, traces of which he had occasionally found in Judith's manner also.

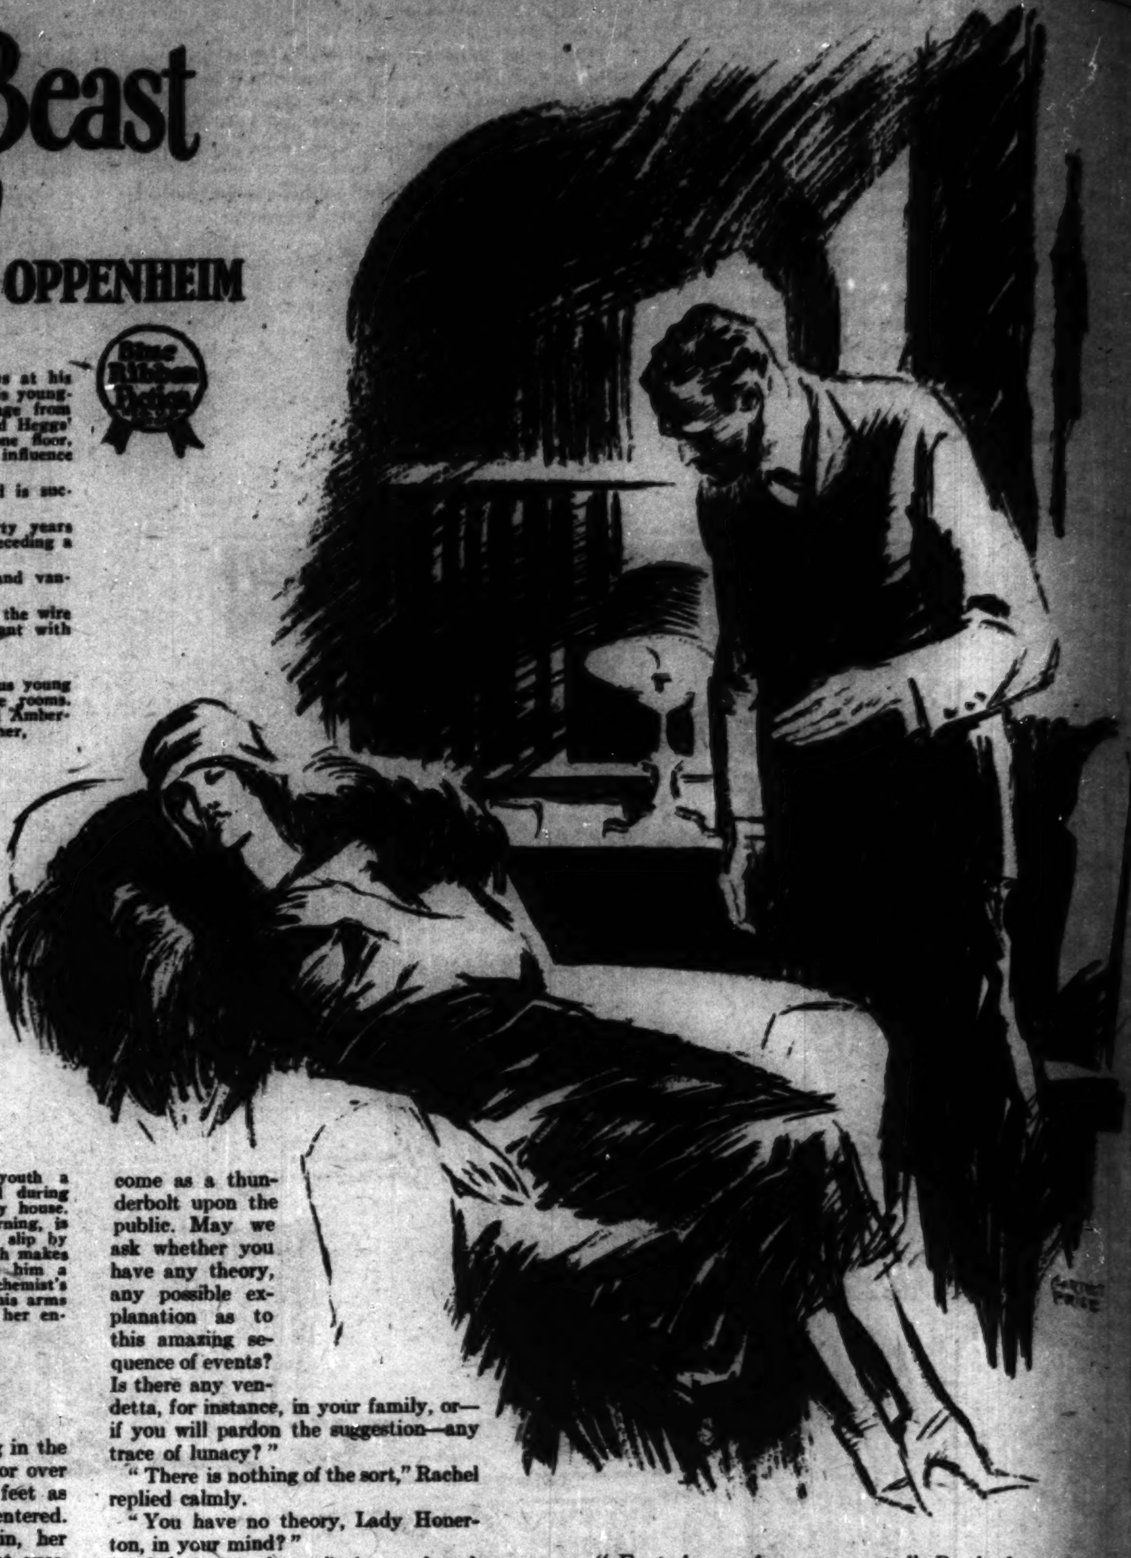
"It is scarcely possible, Lady Honerton," he protested, "that you should suspect me of having any knowledge as to the nature of these disappearances."

She had chosen to seat herself by his side. She leaned over and laid her hand upon his. She was at all times a woman of reserved demeanor, undemonstrative and deliberate. Her action seemed to gain significance from the fact.

"I believe," she said, "that you could solve this mystery for us if you would, or at any rate, put us in the way of solving it for ourselves."

"The idea is absurd," he replied curtly.

"I suppose it is," she admitted, "but then, all ideas or speculations on the subject seem absurd. Sir Lawrence," she went on, "I am an elderly woman and my strength is failing. I want to see my son before I die. Is a mother's appeal to you of any avail?"



"Rest for a few moments," Paule begged.

He spoke to her very much as one would speak to a child of tender years.

"You must have some reason for this extraordinary suspicion," he insisted. "What on earth makes you connect me with the affair at all?"

She shook her head wearily.

"No reason," she acknowledged. "I just feel."

They sat in silence for a moment or two. Rachel fitted a cigaret into a long holder and commenced to smoke.

"I am too much interested in your attitude to [illegible] it as I ought to," Paule confided. "Can you tell me anything more about this feeling?"

"Not very much," she admitted. "It is there all the time, though. I am not a spiritualist," she continued, "but it has always been a belief of mine that there are many things going on around us to which at present we have no clew. An article of yours, which I read in the National Review—long before you came to the works—dealt with this same subject—'Divination.' I believe you said that the mind could be trained into a receptive and apprehensive state."

"I remember something of the sort," he assented.

She leaned over again and looked at him, her [illegible] eyes filled with solemn purpose.

"You used guarded words," she went on; "you always do; but you must have meant that one can learn by training how to look, however hazily, over the edge of the world. Isn't that so?"

"This is, of course, pure speculation," he reminded her gently. "I do not see how you can connect my theories in any way with your husband's disappearance."

"Not definitely," she exclaimed eagerly. "I do not claim that. I only know that I detect a gift in you, a quality which I do not find in other people. You see farther and into a different world. I do not pretend to have your gifts, but my vision is attuned to yours."

He shook his head.

"This is all purely speculative," he warned her [illegible]. "You must put it out of your mind that I can be of any practical help to you in this matter."

She smoked thoughtfully for some minutes. Then she asked him an abrupt question.

"Had you anything to do with Judith's breaking her engagement to marry Lord Amberleys?" she demanded.

"I? Certainly not!" he replied.

"Do you care for Judith?"

"I admire her, as all the world does," he admitted, coldly. "Beyond that, women do not enter into my scheme of life."

"Precisely what is your scheme of life?" she asked him.

"Punctuality is a part of it," he observed, glancing at the clock and rising to his feet. "I have a committee meeting to attend at 10 o'clock."

She caught him by the wrist and held him tightly.

"You are hard to move, Lawrence Paule," she declared. "I scarcely hoped that you would unbend, that you would speak to me as a human being. There is something about you aloof from us all. And yet you are a man—you must have a heart. I waste my time asking questions which you have not the will to answer, but remember what I have said—I am an old woman and I am suffering. If it comes within your power, let me see my son again before I die."

There was a little of the former toleration in his manner, a wintry note of kindliness in his tone.

"If your son should need my help and I should ever be able to give it," he promised, "I will remember what you have asked. For the rest," he concluded, after a moment's hesitation, "if I were you, I should think of him without a doubt as being still alive. The gift of life, the condition of living, is too amazing a thing to be trifled with or extinguished lightly. Fate may have dealt freakishly with him, but not to the last extent."

She dropped his hand.

"You have consoled me," she acknowledged, "because I believe that you know."

PAULE, making rather a late appearance in the conference room at the works one afternoon, a few days later, was astonished to find Samuel Fernham in the chair and Judith by his side. He paused to shake hands before taking his seat at the table. Samuel was gaunt and hollow eyed, but a touch of his old firmness of manner had returned. He had the air of a man stung by adversity into a new era of activity.

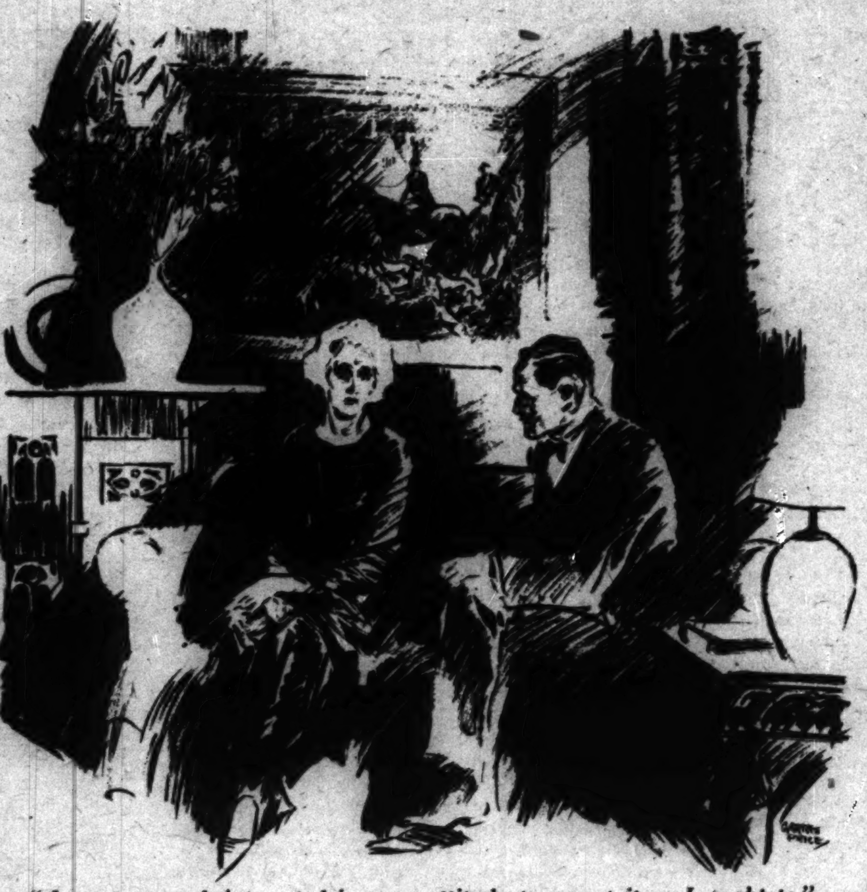
"You are surprised to find me here, Sir Lawrence?" he remarked, as he gripped his fingers. "It is my defiance to our hidden enemies. Ernest has gone, and Samuel has gone, and now Joseph. Yet we who are left are not afraid. I am here to work. I shall remain."

Paule's congratulations were vague and noncommittal. Judith leaned over as he looked around for a seat.

"I hope you don't object to a woman on the board, Sir Lawrence?" she observed, making room for him by her side.

"Not in the least," he assured her. "I really have no place here myself yet, except in an advisory capacity."

The business of the day was being conducted by the managers of the departments, and no reference whatever was made to the extraordinary conditions prevailing. Samuel Fernham had an agenda before him, which he occasionally consulted and which he folded up with an air of relief as soon as the last item had been dealt with. He rose to his feet as a signal that the conference was at an end, but laid his hand on Paule's shoulder when the latter prepared to leave the room with the others.



"I am too much interested in your attitude to resent it as I ought to," Paule confided.

"Lady Judith and I would be glad if you could spare us a minute," he begged. "There is a little matter we desire to mention."

Paule nodded assent, but did not resume his seat. Samuel waited until they were alone, then drew from his pocket a letter and tapped the envelope with his finger.

"This communication, Sir Lawrence," he said, "is from the secretary of the board of governors of St. Philip's hospital. It is addressed to you or to the managing director of the firm. My brother's secretary appears to have accepted the latter alternative and opened it."

St. Philip's Hospital, November 13.

Dear Sir: I am directed by the board to inform you that the number of bodies of patients acquired by the hospital for research purposes is at present insufficient for our own needs, and we are not, therefore, able to continue our arrangement with you. Faithfully yours,

James Colbert,
Secretary.

"What does that mean?" Samuel demanded.

"It seems to me singularly plain," Paule replied. "The hospital authorities look upon my connection with the commercial side of medicine as debarring me for the future from my share of the—er—subjects with which they have been supplying me. It is annoying, but, as it happens, my experiments are practically completed."

Outside there was a fog, and the electric lights in the room were lit, although the curtains were still undrawn. In the somewhat ghastly illumination Samuel appeared older and frailer than ever. Judith, in her rich furs, and with a touch of unusual color in her cheeks, presented a strange contrast to both her companions—serenely beautiful, defiant of any adverse condition. Samuel suddenly lost control of himself.

"What the hell do you want with dead bodies?" he exclaimed.

"What does any scientist want with them?" Paule replied, patiently. "I have, as you know quite well, made the human brain the study of my lifetime. 'Neurota' has been one fruit of my investigations."

Samuel reflected for a moment.

"Sir Lawrence," he said, "I have been in the drug business since I was a lad. I have been at the back of a score of remedies, each one of which has brought us in a small fortune. We never bothered about employing a highly paid chemist or indulging in research work of any sort. We just took an ordinary physician's prescription for any of the ordinary ailments of life, altered it a little to our liking, found the cheapest drugs which corresponded with the original ones, bought them in the best markets, and turned the stuff out wholesale. That's how our business was built up."

"That sounds unenterprising, but it may be the case so far as you are concerned," Paule replied. "On the other hand, it was an experimenting firm of wholesale druggists who discovered antitoxin."

Samuel struck the table before him with his thin clenched fist. His eyes were bright and hard, although his voice lacked the vigor of his movements.

"I don't care a damn about antitoxin," he declared. "I hate your laboratories. This sort of thing doesn't go with our business. I told Joseph so years ago."

"I am sorry," was Paule's cold rejoinder. "Do you desire to give any practical effect to this conversation?"

Judith laid her hand soothingly upon her uncle's.

"Sir Lawrence," she said, "my uncle is naturally much upset by all these strange happenings. I am sure he does not wish to be in any way offensive or to dispute the fact that your experiments have been of great service to the firm. At the same time, it is his wish that they should be conducted, not in private, but in the laboratories of the firm."

"My agreement," Paule reminded her, "gives me the use of my own laboratories, with every facility for carrying on research work outside my duties as chemist to the firm. Do I understand from your uncle that it is his wish to alter the arrangement?"

"I can tell you exactly what it is he wants," Judith replied. "I am not sure that it is unreasonable. He desires to have access to your laboratories and to be informed precisely as to the nature of your research work."

"I see," Paule murmured. "Does he realizes that Lord Honerton never expressed any such desire?"

"My father is no longer here," she pointed out, "and my uncle has assumed the responsibilities of control. You will remember," she went on, after a moment's hesitation, "that I myself, on a certain occasion, had a somewhat terrifying glimpse into your private laboratory."

"What is your own feeling in the matter?" he inquired.

"I think it would be as well if you acceded to my Uncle Samuel's wishes," she answered.

"Either that or close the laboratories," Samuel intervened harshly.

"I am not compelled to adopt either course," Paule observed. "My agreement——"

"Damn your agreement!" Samuel interrupted, leaning forward. "Is that plain enough? I represent the board of directors who own this building and this business. Your laboratories are part of it. I desire to investigate their contents."

Paule for the first time smiled.

"Well," he said, "under some conditions I might feel disposed to resent this attitude. As it is, I must I suppose, make allowances for it. I will conduct you over my laboratories. I warn you, however, that you are going to be disappointed. You will discover nothing of my experiments. Will you come with me now?"

"This instant, sir," Samuel assented, rising.

JUDITH caught the glimmer of Paule's smile, half challenging, half contemptuous, as he threw open the door to his private laboratory, and the sudden impulse of faintness passed. She clutched her uncle's arm, however, as they stood side by side in the sinister looking little room with its marble basins, marble slabs and shelves whose ghastly burden was fully exposed. Samuel, apparently, felt nothing but blank amazement.

"I do not understand this," he declared. "What have these skeletons and heads to do with our business of making drugs?"

"It is not necessary that there should be any connection," Paule answered coldly. "I am perfectly at liberty to pursue here any independent research to which I am attracted. As a matter of fact, however, as you may judge from these harmless objects," he added, pointing to a row of skulls, "I am greatly interested in the brain and the nervous system, and it was in this room that I conceived the idea of 'Neurota.'"

"But these skeletons," Judith faltered.

"They are months old," he observed carelessly—"useless! I have had a human head here, though not so long ago, practically quivering still with life. It is then that one has a chance. It is in the transition period between life and death that one may perhaps stumble upon some of the, as yet, undiscovered secrets of science."

"There is nothing left to discover," Samuel grumbled—"no new possibilities, I mean."

"A rash statement," Paule objected. "Now you are here you better see everything. Here is my private library"

He led them through to an inner room, lined on all sides with bookcases from floor to ceiling. There were volumes of every age and of every quality of binding. Judith read the titles of one or two of them.

"The mind, always the mind!" she exclaimed. "What has the mind to do with actual diseases, Sir Lawrence?"

"More than you or most people imagine," he answered. "I would even go so far as to suggest to you that if any startling discoveries are made during the next decade they will be made in this field rather than in the field of surgery. The will is a great force in the dissemination or the prevention of disease."

"Have you anything else to show us?" Judith asked, a little abruptly.

"My rest chamber," he replied, throwing open the door of the third apartment. "There is nothing else."

They both glanced around the empty room with its solitary hard couch, its atmosphere of chill negation. Samuel was becoming impatient.

"You are a man of strange tastes, Sir Lawrence," he said, looking at him from underneath his bushy eyebrows.

Paule shrugged his shoulders.

"Not so strange to any one who understands," he rejoined. "I do not pretend to explain everything to you. It is not necessary. You have asked to be allowed to inspect the apartments where I pursue my research investigations. I have granted your request. The private laboratory is also at your service. You will find nothing there but drugs in various stages of mixing and decomposition."

"Very well," Samuel said, "let us go."

"If your curiosity is now completely satisfied," Paule suggested, "would you mind telling me why you have insisted upon making this investigation into what I might term my private affairs? My discoveries, so far as they have gone, have been of immense service to the firm. Of what am I suspected?"

One of those sudden and entirely transforming changes which seemed part of her versatile personality swept over Judith. She passed her arm through his in friendly fashion; the cling of it was almost affectionate.

"Don't be foolish," she begged. "We are just beside ourselves, all of us. We are like a family smitten with madness. We scarcely know where to look, or what to suspect, or whom."

A messenger from the cashier's department came in urgent haste for Samuel. Judith lingered in the large outside sitting room, and moved to the big window. Below, the factory proper stretched out in two great wings. The fog had slightly increased, and lights flashed through a row of innumerable windows. In the distance was the dull throb of an enormously powerful engine. A fleet of drays were drawn up around the yard. There was everywhere a sense of movement, of tremendous pulsating energy. Judith's eyes were almost the eyes of a mystic as she looked downward.

"IT is like a great piece of machinery, this," she declared, "grinding out its millions, and millions, and millions. And who wants it all? What good is it? One by one—the men who built it up—Israel, my grandfather, dead of grief; Joseph, my father; Ernest, his son; Samuel, my cousin, all three gone. And still the gold making continues. Do you know what I should like to do?"

Paule shook his head, but remained silent.

"I should like to destroy every brick and stone of these buildings," she cried, passionately, "pour all these drugs into the sewers, pension the workpeople with those idle millions, wipe out this whole place from the face of the earth. Then go somewhere, as far away as possible, and try to forget it all. These millions would crush any one. They're a yoke on any one's spirit. None of us knows how or what it means, but we all believe it is because of them this curse has come upon us."

Paule offered no sympathy, appeared wrapped still in an inviolable mantle of silence. She turned upon him suddenly. For a single moment she seemed to have lost something of her youth; lost it without the faintest detraction from her beauty. It was intense feeling alone which had brought the lines to her face and the shadows under her eyes.

"I don't know why it is to you I always turn when I feel at the limit of all my resources," she exclaimed. "In a vague sort of way I am afraid of you, and yet you are strong—the strongest person I know—and I have all the time the thought that there is something behind your speechless lips. Why don't you behave sometimes like a human being?"

"Once," he began——

"Once!" she repeated bitterly. "You kissed me once. I shall never know a greater humiliation in my life than the memory of it. And afterward you could stay——"

He crushed the words to death upon her lips. Her long, throbbing body lay vibrating in his arms. By degrees the strength seemed to pass from her. She clung to him still with her arms, but the tension left her limbs. Then, without the slightest effort, he lifted and carried her to his easy chair, kissed her hands, and stood away.

"Rest for a few moments," he begged. "There is some one outside at the telephone."

She rested or dozed—she was scarcely conscious which. She heard him speak on the telephone, heard him give brisk, curt orders to the people who had disturbed him. Presently he came back to her side.

"Lady Judith," he began.

She looked at him almost with terror.

"You're not going back?" she implored. "I won't be called anything but Judith. I won't be treated any other way than as the woman who has given you the very breath of her body. Don't pretend that you don't understand," she pleaded. "I have been daring, people have gossiped about me, but you know as well as I do that no kiss has ever left my lips. And you—O, I know about you! It's irrevocable, Lawrence Paule. I shall claim what belongs to me."

He raised her fingers to his lips. She watched the change in his face with joy, met his embrace half way. This time he held her with a new tenderness of which she was blissfully conscious. Without a single word from his lips she knew that victory was hers.

THEY dined together that night in a restaurant a little off the beaten track, a place more frequented by the élite of Bohemia than Judith's own immediate circle of friends. The vogue of picture papers, however, and her own vivid characterization made it as difficult as ever for Judith to avoid recognition. Her broken engagement, her great wealth, her reputation as a beauty, and the amazing tragedy which had made her family the subject of universal discussion had combined to render her notorious. People whispered about her and indulged in speculations as to her distinguished looking but stern companion.

To all this Judith was as blissfully unconscious as Paule himself. The thing which she desired more than anything else in the world was looming over her path; a little intangible still, it seemed, but increasingly desirable. It was amazing to repeat to herself that in all the emotions of her crowded life there had come to her nothing so wonderful as the joy of being alone with him, of knowing that she had broken through, to a great extent, at any rate, the reserve and the mystery in which he had chosen to live. She was stimulated by her happiness into one of her most brilliant moods. She talked lightly but incessantly, and her companion had little to do but listen with amused interest. She deliberately avoided all serious topics. It was not until the close of the meal that, with her elbows upon the table and with a cigaret between her fingers, she leaned across and brought the subject of conversation round to his work.

"Did you see the Times this morning?" she inquired. "They are very curious, indeed, about the paper you are going to read at the Paris congress."

A shadow rested upon his face as he answered her.

"I can't imagine how they know anything about it," he declared, almost irritably. "The president of the congress dislikes all anticipations, and we are not obliged even to disclose our subject."

"What is yours?" she asked him bluntly.

"I am going to give them the result of certain experiments I have made lately," he replied. "Most of my written work has been on chemistry, but, after all, the inexact sciences become more attractive as one progresses."

"What do you mean by 'inexact sciences'?" she demanded.

"It is perhaps a foolish phrase," he admitted. "I mean the fields where our knowledge is obviously imperfect and where we can only work with theories. Astronomy is one, for instance. The fact that science has not yet enabled us to determine exactly whether the planets are inhabited or not and to devise some means of signaling to them, is sometimes almost humiliating. It just happens, I suppose, that the man with the right type of brain has never set his mind to it. The difficulties of the work are tremendous, but there is no longer such a word as impossible where science is concerned."

"Has your paper anything to do with astronomy?" she inquired.

He laughed at her across the table; a laugh which delighted her from its rarity. His whole expression seemed to change. She caught glimpses of suppressed youthfulness, a sense of humor, perhaps long and unduly restrained.

"No," he confessed, "I have wandered a little way into another field of speculation, but, in case you should feel tempted to go down to the office of the Times and set their minds at rest upon the subject, I shall spare you the burden of my confidence."

"I am not sure I think that altogether nice of you," she declared. "Who has a better right to know than I?"

"No one," he admitted.

"Besides," she went on, with the faint beginning of a smile upon her lips, "a visit of the Times office would be opportune. I could hand them in an announcement of our engagement."

He looked at her with an expression in his face which she found it hard to fathom.

"Our engagement?" he repeated. "What do you mean?"

"You mean to marry me, don't you, Lawrence?" she asked. "You haven't been trifling with me, or anything of that sort?"

He tried to fall into her vein.

"Do you think nature ever meant me for a trifler?" he protested.

"I wonder whether you are what nature meant you to be?" she demanded. "However, you haven't answered my question."

He called for the bill. She leaned a little farther across the table and laid her hand upon his.

"Must I repeat it, Lawrence?" she asked quietly.

He had relapsed into his old self, stony, aloof.

"If you knew what manner of man I was," he said, "and who I am——"

"What have those things to do with it?" she interrupted. "Whatever you happen to be or whatever disagreeable things you may have done, you are the only man I have ever thought seriously of marrying. I do not press you, I am in no hurry, but if there is anything you feel you must tell me, let me hear it. I will be your judge. It will have to be very bad indeed if I let you slip away. You see, Lawrence—I am rather fond of you."

He paid the bill in silence, and they left the restaurant a moment or two later. He handed her into the car, and remained upon the pavement.

"Don't be absurd!" she exclaimed impatiently. "Get in at once. You are coming back with me."

He obeyed, and she linked her arm through his as their automobile plunged into the traffic.

"Whatever I am, or whatever crimes I may have committed," he told her sadly, "you have brought repentance into my soul."

"Presently," she threatened, "I will put you into the confessional."

"I will enter of my own accord," he promised, "in three weeks' time."

"Three weeks," she reflected. "Very well; I will wait until then if you remain what I wish you to be."

"Agreed," he murmured a little unsteadily.

IN the hall of the house in Park Lane Martin hastened to receive them.

"We are going up to my room, Martin," Judith said. "Please have some Turkish coffee sent there, with some brandy and whisky and soda."

"Certainly, your ladyship," was the respectful reply. "There is a person here, however, who has been waiting to see you for an hour."

"Who is it?" she inquired.

"He gave the name of Rodes, your ladyship."

"Our mutual friend!" Judith laughed, turning to Lawrence. "We will go in and see him together."

Martin opened the door of a room on the farther side of the hall, and they entered, Judith with her arm through Paule's. Rodes, who had been reading a magazine, rose at their entrance. His words of greeting, however, remained unuttered. He was obviously much surprised.

"Good evening, Mr. Rodes," Judith said. "Any news?"

"I have a communication to make to your ladyship, if you can spare me a minute or two in private," was the somewhat hesitating reply.

"Quite unnecessary," she assured him. "You can say anything you have to before Sir Lawrence."

Rodes' expression was half puzzled,

NOW BRUCE YOU MUST REMEMBER THAT YOU WERE YOUNG ONCE. BEFORE WE WERE MARRIED YOU PLAYED THE MANDOLIN ALL THE TIME AND I HAD TO STAND IT.
THAT MUSIC IS JUST AN EXPRESSION OF HIS YOUTHFUL FEELINGS- IT'S A HARMLESS PASTIME AND YOU OUGHT TO ENCOURAGE HIM- YOU OUGHT TO HIRE A PROFESSOR TO TEACH HIM HOW TO PLAY.
WELL IF THE GROANS THAT COME OUT OF THAT TIN CAN ARE AN EXPRESSION OF SLIM'S FEELINGS, I'LL SAY HE DOESN'T REQUIRE A PROFESSOR- WHAT HE NEEDS IS A DOCTOR.
